Elizabeth-Jane.

Anne-Maria.

Susan.

The earl is one of the representative lords.

Lineage.

This noble house is chief of the very ancient Scottish family of MELVILLE, which, it is said, derive their descent from a person of Anglo-Norman lineage, called MALE, who settled, under DAVID I., upon some lands in the co. Edinburgh, which he called MALE-VILLE, and thence his descendants assumed that designation as a surname.

GALFRID DE MALEVILLE, the first of the family, lived in the reigns of DAVID I., MALCOLM IV., and WILLIAM the Lion. He was Vicecomes de Castella Puellarum for MALCOLM IV., and had the honour of being the first justiciary of Scotland on record. This eminent person left three sons, viz.,

Gregory, whose line terminated in an heir female,

AGNES-MELVILLE, who m. Sir John Ross, of Halkhead, temp. ROBERT II., and conveyed to him the lands of MELVILLE.

PHILIP, ancestor of the MELVILLES of Glenbervie. This branch ended in the male line in 1468, when ALEXANDER MELVILLE, OF GLENBERVIE, left a dau. and sole heir, ELIZABETH, married to Sir John Auchinleck, of Auchinleck, and her grandau., ELIZABETH AUCHINLECK, carried the barony to her husband, SIR WILLIAM DOUGLAS, 2nd son of Archibald, 5th Earl of Angus.

Walter.

The third son,

WALTER DE MELVILLE, was grandfather of

SIR JOHN DE MELVILLE, one of the principal men of Scotland who agreed to the marriage of QUEEN MARGARET with Prince Edward of England, in 1290; and who swore fealty to EDWARD I. in 1296. From this distinguished personage we pass to his lineal descendant,

SIR JOHN MELVILLE, of Raith, who had charters jointly with his wife, Helen Napier, of the king's lands of Murdocarney, in Fife, dated 23 May, 1536, and 23 Oct. 1542. He enjoyed the confidence of JAMES V., who appointed him master-general of the ordnance, and captain-general of the castle of Dunbar, having previously conferred upon him the honour of knighthood. Sir John, in the minority of QUEEN MARY, was, however, convicted of treason, and executed towards the end of 1549. He had married Helen, eldest dau. of Sir Alexander Napier, of Marchistoun, and had issue,

JOHN, who was restored to his father's forfeited estates by the QUEEN REGENT of Scotland, about 1553, and then became of Raith. He was s. by his son,

JOHN, of Raith, who m. Margaret, dau. of Sir William Scot, of Balwearie, and was s. by his elder son,

JOHN, of Raith, who s. his cousin, as third LORD MELVILLE.

ROBERT, of whom presently.

James, (Sir) of Hall-hill, in Fife, ambassador from MARY to ELIZABETH, and of the privy-council to JAMES VI.; d. in 1617, leaving issue.

William, who was appointed a lord of Session in 1587, and sat on the bench till 1614.

Andrew, (Sir) of Garvock, master of the household to QUEEN MARY, and to JAMES VI.

David, of Newmill.

Janet, m. to Sir James Kilkaldy, of Grange, High-TREASURER OF SCOTLAND; by whom she was mother of Sir William and Sir James Kilkaldy, who were executed, in 1573, for their fidelity to QUEEN MARY.

Margaret, m. to Sir James Johnstone, of Elphinstone.

The 2nd son,

SIR ROBERT MELVILLE, of Murdocarney, upon his return from France, where he held some official employments, was sworn of the privy-council of Scotland, and accredited ambassador to England in 1562. In 1567, he had a charter of the hereditary office of keeper of the palace of Linlithgow, and was sent a second time ambassador to England, in 1587, to endeavour to prevent the execution of MARY, Queen of Scots, which duty he discharged with so much boldness before the council that ELIZABETH menaced his life, and would have imprisoned him, but for the interest of his colleague, the master of Gray, with her majesty. In 1589, when Lord Thirlestane, the chancellor, went to Denmark on the affair of the king's marriage, Sir Robert was appointed vice-chancellor and treasurer-depute; and, in 1594, he was constituted an extraordinary lord of Session, under the title of Lord Murdocarnie; from which office he retired in favour of his son in 1601, and was elevated to the peerage, 30 April, 1616, as Baron Melville, of Monymaill, with special remainder, in default of his own male issue, to the heirs male of his brother, JOHN, &c. His lordship d. in 1621, at the age of 94, and was s. by his only son,

ROBERT, 2nd Lord Melville, who had been constituted an extraordinary lord of Session, in 1691, under the designation of Lord Burntisland. This nobleman obtained a charter from CHARLES I., dated Bagshot, 10 Aug. 1627, of the Barony of Monymaill, and the dignity of Lord Monymaill, with reversion to his heirs general bearing the surname and arms of MELVILLE. His lordship d. s. p. 9 March, 1635, when he was s. by his cousin,

JOHN MELVILLE, of Raith, as 3rd lord, (refer to JOHN, eldest son of Sir John Melville, of Raith, father of the 1st lord.) This nobleman m. Anne, eldest dau. and co-heir of Sir George Erskine, of Innertiel, a lord of Session; and dying in 1643, was s. by his elder son,

GEORGE, 4th Lord Melville. This nobleman was involved in the rebellion of the Duke of Monmouth, but had the good fortune to effect his escape into Holland. His estates were consequently forfeited by act of attainder in 1685; but returning to England with KING WILLIAM, his lordship was fully reinstated in fortune and dignity upon the success of that prince, with the additional honours (8 April, 1690) of Lord Raith, Monymaill and Balwearie, Viscount of Kirkaldie, and EARL OF MELVILLE. Lord Melville m. in 1655, Lady Katherine Leslie, (who s. her niece as COUNTESS OF LEVEN;) dau. of Lord Balgonie, and grandau. of Gen. EARLDOM OF LEVEN.

ALEXANDER LESLIE, (son of Capt. George Leslie, of Balgonie, by Anne, dau. of Stewart, of Ballechin,) having adopted the profession of arms, served as captain in Lord Vere's regiment in Holland, against the Spaniards, and there founded his reputation. Thence he entered the service of GUSTAVUS-ADOLPHUS, of Sweden, by whom he was promoted to the rank of lieut.-general, and afterwards made field-marshal of the Swedish army. In 1628, Leslie defended STRALSUND against the imperialists under Count Walstein with so much gallantry that he forced them to raise the siege; and he was rewarded by a considerable present from the citizens, who caused medals to be struck in his honour. He continued in the Swedish service, after the death of GUSTAVUS, until invited back, in 1659, to Scotland, by the COVENANTERS, to take the command of their army. His first exploit after his return was the capture of Edinburgh, at the head of a thousand musqueteers, by assault; and he afterwards commanded the Scottish army at Duncce Law, in May, 1639, where his camp is said to have been a spectacle "not less interesting to the military, than edifying to the devout." His banners were inscribed with the crown and covenant of Christ; his soldiers were summoned by the drum to sermon, and their tents resounded at sunrise and sunset with psalms and prayers. The clergy were instrumental in preserving discipline; and the ambition of the nobles was restrained by the discretion of the general, an unlettered soldier of fortune, of an advanced age, a diminutive size, and distorted person, but prudent, vigilant, experienced, and enterprising. Leslie marched into England in Aug. 1640, and upon the 28th of that month, completely routed the royal army at Newburn, which gave him possession of Newcastle, Tinnmouth, Shields, and Durham, with large magazines of provision and arms. The treaty of Ripon followed this victory, and peace was ratified by parliament in 1641, when General LESLIE was elevated to the peerage as Lord Balgony, and created, 11 Oct. in the same year, EARL OF LEVEN. He was subsequently engaged upon the side of the parliamentarians in the civil war, and commanded the Scottish forces, amounting to 22,000 men, at MARSTON MOOR. His lordship m. 1st, Agnes, dau. of Renton, of Billy, in Berwickshire, by whom he had (with five daus.) two sons, viz.,

His lordship m. in 1656, Margaret, 5th dau. of Sir William Howard, and sister of Charles, Earl of Carlisle, by whom he had two daughters. He d. in 1664, and was s. by the elder,

Lineage.

The family of Anson has resided in the co. of Stafford for several generations; first, at Dunston; but since the time of JAMES I., at Shugborough, which manor was purchased in that reign by

WILLIAM ANSON, Esq., who had been an eminent lawyer in the previous reign; and of whom Sir William Dugdale, in his Antiquities of Warwickshire, gives this account:—"Sir Walter Aston, K.B. and Bart., sold the manors of Bolehall and Glascote, co. Warwick, unto William Anson, Esq. of Lincoln's-Inn, of whom they were purchased by William Cumberland, Esq. of Tameworth, and Anne, his wife, in the 2nd JAMES I." This William Anson m. Joan, dau. of Richard Mitchel, of Oldbury, in Warwickshire; and dying at an advanced age, about the year 1644, was s. by his son,

WILLIAM ANSON, Esq. of Shugborough, who m. Elizabeth, dau. of Thomas Stafford, Esq. of Botham Hall, in Derbyshire, and was s. by his son,

WILLIAM ANSON, Esq. This gentleman m. Isabella, dau. and co-heir of Charles Carrier, Esq. of Wirkworth, and had, (with younger daughters,)

THOMAS, his successor.

GEORGE, of whom presently.

Janette, m. to Sambrooke Adams, Esq. of Sambrooke, co. Salop, and left a son, GEORGE ADAMS, who eventually inherited the estates of his two maternal uncles, and assumed the surname of ANSON.

Mr. Anson, sen., d. in 1720, and was s. by his elder son,

THOMAS, who represented Lichfield in parliament; and at his decease, s. p., bequeathed his property to his nephew, George Adams. The youngest son,

GEORGE ANSON, having early evinced a strong bias to the naval service, was educated suitably for the profession, and appointed, in 1722, captain of the Weazle sloop. On the breaking out of the Spanish war, Commodore Anson was appointed to command a fleet of five ships, destined to annoy the enemy in that dangerous and unfrequented sea which lies beyond America, and to attack him in that unexpected quarter with vigour. His departure being unaccountably delayed some months beyond the proper season, he sailed about the middle of Sept. 1740; and toward the vernal equinox, in the most tremendous weather, arrived in the latitude of Cape Horn. He doubled that perilous cape in March, 1741, after a bad passage of forty days, in which he lost two ships, and arrived off Juan Fernandez in June, with only two ships, besides two attendants on the squadron, and 335 men. He left it in September, took some prizes and burnt Païta; and staid about the coast of America until May, 1742. He then crossed the Southern Ocean, and proceeded with the Centurion only, the other ships having been destroyed in August. Having refreshed his crew at Tinian, he sailed in October for China, remained there till the beginning of 1743, waiting for the galleon at the Philippine Islands; met her on the 20 June, and captured her. Having sold the prize in China, he set sail for England in December, 1743, and arrived at Spithead, 16 June, 1744, having sailed in a fog through the midst of the French fleet, then cruising in the Channel. Soon after his return he was appointed rear-admiral of the blue, and one of the lords of the Admiralty. In April, 1745, he was made rear-admiral of the white, and in July, 1746, vice-admiral of the blue. In 1747, (13 June,) he was elevated to the peerage by the title of LORD ANSON, Baron of Soberton, in Hants, and the same year appointed vice-admiral of the red. In 1751, his lordship was constituted first lord of the Admiralty; and he continued in that high office, with a very brief interval, until his death. This gallant and enterprising seaman is characterized as calm, cool, and steady; but he was known, from the simplicity of his disposition, to have been frequently duped at play; whence it was observed, that although Lord Anson had been round the world, he had never been in it. His celebrated VOYAGE ROUND THE WORLD was composed by Mr. Benjamin Robins, under his own inspection, and few works ever experienced a more favourable reception. Four large impressions were sold off within a year; it has been translated into most of the European languages, and it still sustains its reputation. His lordship espoused Lady Elizabeth Yorke, dau. of Philip, 1st Earl of Hardwicke; but dying s. p. in 1762, the BARONY OF ANSON became EXTINCT, while his fortune devolved upon his nephew,

GEORGE ADAMS, Esq., who subsequently inherited the estates of his elder uncle, THOMAS, and assumed, by sign-manual, 30 April, 1773, the surname and arms of ANSON. Lineage.

The family of Lowther is of great antiquity in the cos. of Westmorland and Cumberland, having been seated at Lowther Hall, in the former, from a period too remote to be specified.

SIR RICHARD LOWTHER, Knt., was high-sheriff of Cumberland in the 8th and 30th of QUEEN ELIZABETH. He s. his cousin, Henry, Lord Scroop, as lord-warden of the West Marches, and was thrice commissioner in the great affairs between England and Scotland, in the time of QUEEN ELIZABETH, and when MARY, Queen of Scots, fled into England, and arrived at Workington, in Cumberland, in May, 1568. Upon notice of that event, QUEEN ELIZABETH sent to Sir Richard, during his sheriffalty, orders, that he should convey the Scottish Queen to Carlisle Castle; but while the princess was in custody, the sheriff incurred the displeasure of ELIZABETH by admitting the Duke of Norfolk to visit his fair prisoner. Sir Richard d. 27 Jan. 1607, leaving, with other children,

CHRISTOPHER, (Sir) of whom presently.

SIR JOHN LOWTHER, who was the 31st knight of the family, in almost direct succession. This gentleman was returned for the co. of Westmorland in 1675, and continued to represent that shire so long as he remained a commoner. Upon the accession of KING WILLIAM, Sir John was sworn of the privy-council. In 1689, he was nominated lord-lieut. of Westmorland and Cumberland; in 1690, appointed first-commissioner of the Treasury; and elevated to the peerage, 28 May, 1696, by the titles of Viscount Lonsdale and Baron Lowther. SIR JAMES LOWTHER, eldest son of Robert Lowther, Esq., governor of Barbadoes, and Catherine, dau. of Sir Joseph Pennington, Bart., (which Catherine Pennington's mother was the Hon. Margaret Lowther, dau. of the 1st Viscount Lonsdale.) This gentleman represented the cos. of Cumberland and Westmorland for several years in parliament, and was elevated to the peerage, 24 May, 1784, by the titles of Baron Lowther, of Lowther, Viscount Lowther, and EARL OF LONSDALE. His lordship m. 7 Sept. 1761, Margaret, dau. of John, Earl of Bute; but having no issue, he obtained a new patent, 10 Oct. 1797, creating him Baron and Viscount Lowther, with remainder to the heirs male of his cousin, the Rev. Sir William Lowther, Bart. of Swillington; and dying 24 May, 1802, all his honours expired, except those of the latter creation, which devolved, according to the limitation, with the deceased earl's estates in Westmorland and Cumberland, upon SIR WILLIAM LOWTHER, Bart., the present peer, who is the eldest son of the late Rev. William Lowther, of Little Preston, prebendary of York, and rector of Swillington, who, at the decease of Sir William Lowther, Bart. of Swillington, (when that baronetcy ceased,) succeeded, by bequest, to the estate of Swillington; and being created a Baronet, 22 Aug. 1764, became the Rev. III., and sheriff of Worcestershire the following year, by whom he left three sons. This Thomas was a considerable benefactor to religious institutions, particularly to the convents of Pershore and the abbey of Evesham. He was s. at his decease by his eldest son,

EDMUND DE LUTTELTON, who resided at Coulesdon, and had lands at Naunton, in Worcestershire, which still continue in possession of a branch of the family of Lyttelton; but dying without issue, his estates devolved upon his youngest and only surviving brother,

THOMAS DE LUTTELTON, who represented the co. of Worcester in parliament from 9th EDWARD II. to the 34th EDWARD III., and was s. at his decease by his eldest son,

THOMAS DE LUTTELTON, who recovered the manor of Frankley, by a writ of right, on failure of issue to his cousin, Thomas de Tatlynton. This Thomas de Luttelton was esquire of the body to three successive kings; namely, RICHARD II., HENRY IV., and HENRY V.; and was rewarded with several grants of money, timber, &c., from each of these monarchs, pro bono et gratuito servitio, as expressed in the grants. He d. in the 1st year of HENRY VI., and left an only dau. and heiress,

ELIZABETH DE LUTTELTON, who m. Thomas Westcote, Esq., the king's servant in court, a gentleman of Devonshire, anciently descended; but she being fair, and of noble spirit, (to use the phraseology of Lord Coke,) and having large possessions and inheritances from her ancestors, de Luttelton, and from her mother, the dau. and co-heir of Quartermain, and other ancestors, resolved to continue the honour of her name, and therefore provided, by Westcote's assent, before marriage, that her issue inheritable should be called by the name of Luttelton. Upon this marriage, Mr. Westcote settled at Frankley, and served the office of escheator of Worcester, 29th HENRY VI., 1450; soon after which he d., leaving four sons and as many daus., and was s. by his eldest son,

THOMAS LUTTELTON, (or Lyttelton, as he began to write it,) who, having been brought up to the bar, was called, in 1454, to the degree of serjeant-at-law; and, in the following year, was nominated king's serjeant, when he rode justice of the assize in the northern circuit. In 1464, (the 4th year of EDWARD IV.,) Mr. Serjeant Lyttelton was appointed one of the judges of the court of Common Pleas; and the king granted him, at the same time, out of the customs of London, Bristol, and Hull, 110 marks yearly, with the sum of 106s. 10½*d.* for a robe and furs, and 66s. 6*d.* for a summer robe, called linura. In the 15th year of the same monarch, his lordship, with the Prince of Wales, and other persons of distinction, was created a knight of the Bath. Sir Thomas wrote his celebrated "Treatise on Tenures" after he had ascended the bench; a book which Lord Coke has characterized "as the ornament of the common law, and the most perfect and absolute work that ever was wrote in any human science." Sir Thomas Lyttelton m. Joan, widow of Sir Philip Chetwind, of Ingestre, co. Stafford, and dau. and co-heir of Sir William Burley, Knt. of Bromscroft Castle, in Shropshire, by whom he had, (with two daus., who d. unm.),

WILLIAM, his successor.

Richard, to whom the Treatise is addressed, and who followed his father's profession. From this gentleman descended the LITTLETONS of Pillaton Hall, in Staffordshire; which family continued, without interruption, always through Sir Edwards, at first knights, afterwards barts., until the death of Sir Edward Littleton, Bart., in 1812, when the title became EXTINCT, and the estates passed to (the grandson of his sister, Frances, and her husband, Moreton Walhouse, Esq.,) his grandnephew,

EDWARD-JOHN LITTLETON, Esq. of Teddesley, M.P. for the co. of Stafford, who has been elevated to the peerage as BARON HATHERTON. (See that title, and BURKE'S History of the Commoners, vol. i.)

Thomas, who was seated at Spechley, near Worcester, and was the ancestor of Lord-Keeper Lyttelton, Baron of Mounslow, temp. CHAR. I., and of Sir William Lyttelton, speaker of the House of Commons, temp. WILLIAM III. (See BURKE'S Extinct Peerage and Extinct Baronetage.)

His lordship d. at Frankley, 23 Aug. 1481, and was interred under an altar-tomb, which he had erected in his lifetime, on the south-side nave of the cathedral at Worcester. In his will, which is a curious document, he bequeaths considerable sums for masses to be said for the repose of his own and the souls of his immediate relations. Sir Thomas was s. by his eldest son,

SIR WILLIAM LYTTELTON, of Frankley, who m. 1st, Ellyn, widow of Thomas Fielding, Esq., and dau. and heir of William Walsh, Esq. of Wanlip, in Leicestershire, by whom he had an only daughter,

Joan, who m. Sir John Aston, of Heywood, in Staffordshire, and carried the manors of Tixhall and Wanlip into the Aston family.

Sir William m. 2ndly, Mary, dau. of William Whittington, Esq. of Pauntley, co. Gloucester; and dying in 1507, was s. by his only son,

JOHN LYTTELTON, Esq. This gentleman m. Elizabeth, dau. and co-heir of Sir Gilbert Talbot, and great-great-grandau. (maternally) of John of Gaunt, Duke of Lancaster; in right of whom the family of Lyttelton quarters the arms of France and England, within a bordure gobony. Of this marriage there were seven sons and two daus. Mr. Lyttelton was s. by his eldest son,

JOHN LYTTELTON, Esq., who d. 17 May, 1532, and was s. by his son,

SIR JOHN LYTTTELTON, Knight. This gentleman was granted by QUEEN MARY, in 1553, the office of constable of Dudley Castle, co Stafford, with the rangership of the old and new parks there; and though adhering to the catholic religion, he enjoyed the confidence of QUEEN ELIZABETH, being, during her majesty's reign, one of the council of the Marches of Wales, deputy-lieutenant and custos-rotulorum of the co. Worcester, and in the commission of the peace for that and the co. Stafford. He received, too, the honour of knighthood from QUEEN ELIZABETH, in 1556, at Kenilworth Castle, when her majesty honoured Dudley, Earl of Leicester, with a visit there. Sir John d. 15 Feb. 1589-90, and was s. by his eldest son,

GILBERT LYTTTELTON, Esq., M.P. for the co. Worcester, 13th and 14th of ELIZABETH, and high-sheriff in the 25th of the same reign. He m. Elizabeth, dau. of Humphry Coningsby, Esq. of Nyend-Solers, in Shropshire, and of Hampton Court, co. Hereford; and dying 1 June, 1599, was s. by his eldest son,

JOHN LYTTTELTON, Esq., M.P. for the co. Worcester, temp. ELIZABETH. This gentleman (to use the words of Sir Francis Bacon) being much respected for his wit and valour, and a Roman catholic, was courted by Lord Essex and his friends; and in some measure drawn in by Sir Charles Danvers to that conspiracy which cost Essex his head, and Lyttelton his estate; for he was tried and convicted of high-treason at the Queen's Bench bar, 20 Feb. 1600-1; and died in prison in the July following, (the execution of the penalty regarding life being averted through the interest of Sir Walter Raleigh.) Mr. Lyttelton m. Muriel, dau. of Sir Thomas Bromley, Knight, and left issue, three sons and five daughters. Mrs. Lyttelton obtained, upon the accession of JAMES I., a reversal of the attainder of her husband, and a grant, by letters patent, of the whole of his estate. She was a person of great prudence, and discharged debts, contracted by her husband and his father, to the amount of £9,000, although she was remarkable for benevolence and hospitality. This lady survived Mr. Lyttelton twenty-eight years, and brought up her children in the reformed religion. The eldest son,

SIR THOMAS LYTTTELTON, Knt, represented the co. Worcester in parliament, and served the office of sheriff of that shire in 1613. He was created a Baronet, 25 July, 1618. This gentleman was an active adherent of royalty during the civil wars, and suffered imprisonment in the Tower in consequence. Sir Thomas m. Catherine, dau. and sole heir of Sir Thomas Crompton, of Driffild, co. York, and had,

HENRY.

He d. 22 Feb. 1649-50, and was s. by his eldest surviving son,

SIR HENRY, who suffered also for his attachment to royalty, and was imprisoned in the Tower of London for seventeen months. The fidelity of the family appears to have been fully appreciated by the following letter, addressed to Sir Henry, in the exiled monarch's own hand, a short time before his restoration:—

"To Sir Henry Lyttelton,—I am well informed how much and how often you have suffered for me, and how much I am beholding to all your relations; and you may be very sure I have the sense of it that I ought to have, of which you shall one day have evidence; in the mean time, cherish your health and prepare for better times, which we shall enjoy together. Commend me to all your friends, and be confident you shall always find me to be

"Your affectionate friend,
"CHARLES R."

MACDONALD.

MACDONALD, BARON, (Godfrey-William-Wentworth Bosville-Macdonald,) of Slate, co. Antrim, in the peerage of Ireland; and a Baronet of Nova Scotia; b. 16 March, 1809; s. as 4th baron and 11th baronet, on the demise of his father, 13 Oct. 1832.

Lineage.

This nobleman is the representative of the Lords of the Isles, princes of the ancient Celtic race, who, for several generations, held themselves independent of the Scottish monarchy.

SOMERLED, Thane of Argyll, who acquired the Western Islands by his marriage with Effrica, or Rachel, dau. of OLAVUS the Swarthy, King of Man, and grandau. of Harald Harfager, King of Denmark, assumed the designation of King of the Isles. This predatory chief was killed at Renfrew, in 1164, in an unsuccessful attempt to invade Scotland, and was s. by his son,

REGINALD, who was designed King of Man and the Isles. This chief was received under the protection of KING JOHN of England, in 1205, and from him we pass to his descendant,

ANGUS, Lord of the Isles, who, after KING ROBERT BRUCE was defeated by the English, in 1306, afforded him an asylum in his castle of Dunavarty. The descendant of this Angus,

DONALD, Lord of the Isles, entered into a treaty with RICHARD II., in 1338, on the footing of a sovereign prince. He m. Lady Margaret Lesly, only dau. of Euphemia, COUNTESS OF ROSS, by Sir Walter Lesly, in her right Earl of Ross, and he subsequently took up arms to establish his right to that earldom. He was defeated, however, or, more correctly speaking, weakened, by the Earl of Marr, who engaged him at HARLOW, near Aberdeen, 24 July, 1411. The battle was bloody and obstinate, but indecisive. On the side of Donald, the chiefs of Macintosh and Maclean fell, with about nine hundred, while Marr lost about five hundred, amongst whom were some persons of rank. The Lord of the Isles was forced to retire; and the Regent Duke of Albany marched to and took the castle of Dingwall. Eventually Donald was compelled to abandon his pretensions to the earldom, to make personal submission, and to give oaths and hostages for indemnification and future observance of peace. He was s. by his son, ALEXANDER, Lord of the Isles. This chief was defeated by JAMES I., at Lochabar, 23 June, 1429, and reduced to the most abject submission. In absolute despair, the Lord of the Isles sent an embassy to sue for peace, which being refused, he resolved to throw himself upon the king's mercy. For that purpose he came privately to Edinburgh, and on the 27 Aug. 1429, attired only in his shirt and drawers, presented his sword to the king upon his knees, before the high altar of Holyrood Church, in presence of the queen and nobles. He m. Elizabeth, only dau. of Alexander Seton, Lord of Gordon and Huntly, and was s. by his son, of England, in 1462, was deemed a traitor to his liege sovereign of Scotland, and was forced to surrender the EARLDOM OF ROSS, which was unalienably annexed to the crown by act of parliament, 10 July, 1476. He d. in 1498, without legitimate issue, when the line was continued by his brother,

JOHN, 11th Earl of Ross and Lord of the Isles. This nobleman having entered into a treaty with EDWARD IV.

HUGH, OF THE ISLES, whose great-grandson,

DONALD, styling himself Lord of the Isles, but being refused the dignity by JAMES V., took up arms to support his pretensions, and laid siege to the castle of Elendouman; from the battlements of which he was shot dead with an arrow in 1537, leaving a son,

DONALD, OF THE ISLES, commonly called "Donald Gorme Macdonald, of Slate." This personage was restored by QUEEN MARY of Scotland to the lands of Slate, forfeited by his father, and took her majesty's part in the civil war of 1567. He d. in 1585, and was s. by his eldest son,

DONALD MAC DONALD, of Slate, who d. s. p. in 1616, and was s. by his nephew,

DONALD MAC DONALD, of Slate, who was created by CHARLES I. a Baronet of Nova Scotia, 14 July, 1625, with a special clause of precedency, placing him second of that order in the kingdom of Scotland. Sir Donald arrayed himself, of course, under the royal banner at the breaking out of the civil war, but died within four years, anno 1643. He m. Janet, (commonly called "Fair Janet,") second dau. of Kenneth, 1st Lord Mackenzie, of Kintail, and was s. by his eldest son,

SIR JAMES MAC DONALD, of Slate, who joined the Marquess of Montrose in 1645, and sent some of his men to the assistance of CHARLES II., when he marched into England, in 1651. He m. 1st, Margaret, only dau. of Sir Roderick Mackenzie, of Tarbet, and had four sons and two daughters. He espoused 2ndly, Mary, eldest dau. of John Macleod, of Macleod, and had another son, John, of Blackney. Sir James d. 8 Dec. 1678, and was s. by his eldest son,

SIR DONALD MAC DONALD, who m. Lady Mary Douglas, 2nd dau. of Thomas, 3rd Earl of Morton; and dying in 1695, was s. by his son, (he left four daus. besides,)

SIR DONALD MAC DONALD, who, joining in the rebellion of 1715, was attainted, and d. in 1718. He was s. by his son,

SIR DONALD MAC DONALD; at whose decease unm., in 1720, the baronetcy reverted to his uncle,

SIR JAMES MAC DONALD, designated of Oransay, who m. 1st, Janet, dau. of Alexander Macleod, of Grishernish, and had issue,

ALEXANDER, his successor.

Margaret, m. to Sir Robert Douglas, Bart. of Glenbervie, author of the Peerage of Scotland.

Lineage.

This very ancient family deduces its descent from a member of the house of Gerald, in Ireland, (whence sprang the noble families of Leinster, Desmond, &c.,) who, with a considerable number of his followers, settled in Scotland about the year 1261, and having powerfully aided ALEXANDER III., a few years afterwards, in repelling the invasion of HACO, King of Norway, was rewarded by a grant of the lands of Kintail, in the co. Ross, which were erected into a free barony by charter, dated 9 Jan. 1266. This personage,

CALINUS FITZGERALD, first feudal Baron of Kintail, m. a dau. of Walter, lord-high-steward of Scotland; and dying in 1278, was s. by his son,

KENNETH, 2nd Baron of Kintail; who was s. in 1304, by his son,

KENNETH, 3rd Baron of Kintail, who, in the Gaelic, was called Kenneth Mac Kenneth, which became corrupted in English into Mackenny, or Mackenzie, and hence arose all the families of Mackenzie in Scotland. From this Kenneth, 3rd baron, we pass to his great-great-grand-son,

ALEXANDER, 7th Baron of Kintail; who m. 1st, Lady Agnes Campbell, and had one son,

KENNETH, (Sir) 8th Baron of Kintail, ancestor of the "Chiefs of Kintail," whose last male representative in the direct line,

FRANCIS-HUMBERSTON MACKENZIE, was created a peer of Great Britain, as LORD SEAFORTH, Baron Mackenzie, of Kintail, in 1796. His lordship m. Mary, dau. of Baptist Proby, D.D., dean of Lichfield; and d. in 1815, having had (with four sons, who d. before him, unm.) six daus., viz.,

* To this lady Sir Walter Scott addressed the last verse of his "Farewell to Mackenzie."

"And thou, gentle dame, who must bear, to thy grief,
For thy clan and thy country, the cares of a chief,
Whom brief rolling moons in six changes have left
Of thy husband, and father, and brethren bereft;
To thine ear of affection how sad is the hail
That salutes thee, the Heir of the line of Kintail."

SIR GEORGE, 2nd baronet; who, for the good services he had rendered to CHARLES II. during his majesty's exile and the restoration, was made by that monarch one of the judges of Session, clerk-register, sworn of the privy-council, and constituted justice-general. His lordship was elevated to the peerage by JAMES II., 15 April, 1685, in the dignities of Lord Macleod and Castlehaven and Viscount of Tarbat. At the Revolution, he went up to court, and was well received by WILLIAM; but his arbitrary proceedings in the former reigns had rendered him so unpopular in Scotland, that his name was not included in the new commission of lords of Session, 1 November, 1689. He was, however, restored to his office of lord-clerk-register in 1692, from which he retired in four years afterwards upon a pension of £400 per annum. On the accession of QUEEN ANNE, Lord Tarbat was sent for to court, and created by letters patent, dated 1 January, 1703, Lord Macleod and Castlehaven, Viscount of Tarbat, and EARL OF CROMARTY, with remainder to his heirs male and of entail. He was at the same time appointed one of the principal secretaries of state, which office he soon after, on account of his great age, exchanged for that of lord-justice-general, and finally retired in 1710, after zealously promoting the union by his parliamentary influence, as well as his writings. His lordship m. 1st, Anne, dau. of Sir James Sinclair, Bart. of Mey, by whom he had, with four daus., three sons,

The honours, however, became forfeited, while the earl was permitted to reside in England, and his son obtained leave, in 1750, to accept a commission in the Swedish service, of which kingdom he was created Count Cromarty, &c. He returned in 1777, raised two battalions of highlanders, and became colonel of the 71st foot, with which he served in India, with the local rank of major-general. His lordship came home in 1784, when his forfeited estates were restored to him; and he d. in 1789, without issue. Applying to the study of the law, Mr. Mackenzie was called to the bar in 1698, where he practised with distinction, and was created a Baronet in 1704. Upon the resignation of his uncle, Lord Prestonhall, he was appointed one of the senators of the college of Justice, and a lord of Justiciary. He assumed the title of LORD ROYSTOUN, and sat on the bench, with high reputation, for more than thirty-four years, even until his death, at which time he was senior lord of Session. Lineage.

The family of Mackworth is of great antiquity in the county of Derby. The name is local, from the parish of Mackworth, which comprises the township of Markeaton, situated about two miles north-west from the town of Derby. The manor of Mackworth, formerly the property of the Touchets, Lords Audley, has always been held with that of Markeaton. A considerable freehold estate at Mackworth was held under the lord of the manor by the ancient family of De Mackworth, who had a castellated mansion there, the gateway of which still remains. At the battle of Poitiers (1356), Edward the Black Prince was attended by James, Lord Audley, K.G., who had four esquires, or aides-de-camp, in immediate attendance, a member of this family being one of the four; and in the late French war, the representatives of these four esquires all served together as aides-de-camp to General Lord Hill. John Touchet, Lord Audley, son-in-law, and eventually heir, to the said James, Lord Audley, K.G., granted, in consideration that John and Thomas Mackworth were valiant men, and for the services rendered by them and their ancestors to the Audley family, a coat-of-arms, made from the arms of Audley and Touchet.* From Derbyshire the chief of the line settled in Rutlandshire, by the marriage with the heiress of Empingham, in that county, in which parish Normanton Hall was the residence of the Mackworths for many years. The manor of Ash (Eisse), in Derbyshire, appears to have been held by the Mackworth family, 8th RICH. II., A.D. 1385.

* In the archives of the College of Arms is a curious instrument, the grant of arms from John Touchet, Lord Audley, (dated at his Manor of Markeaton, in Derbyshire, 1 Aug. 1404,) to John Mackworth, and Thomas, his brother, with this attestation: "Taken from the original, in the custody of Sir Thomas Mackworth, of Normanton, co. Rutland, Bart., 30 July, 1681, by me, Gregory King, Rouge-Dracoon." The instrument is in Norman French, and grants to John and his brother, Thomas Mackworth, who are described as valiant men, &c., the following arms:—"Sable et ermeine, partez et indentez, avec un chevron de goulles, frettez d'or, de les armes D'Audeley, et une creste, c'est assavoir, une eeule q'est pr celle n're creste D'Audeley, de quele eeule les plumes sevront des colours de sable et d'ermeyn."

Lineage.

This family, which settled in England at the Norman Conquest, has ever since, in its various branches, enjoyed opulence, rank, and influence. The founder of the family,

WILLIAM, LORD MALLET DE GREVILLE, one of the great barons who accompanied the CONQUEROR, was charged to protect the remains of the fallen monarch, HAROLD, and to see them decently interred after the battle of Hastings. The son of this warrior,

ROBERT, LORD MALLET, possessed at the general survey, according to Dugdale, thirty-two lordships in Yorkshire, three in Essex, one in Hampshire, two in Nottinghamshire, eight in Lincolnshire, and two hundred and twenty-one in Suffolk. The near kinsman of this Robert,

WILLIAM, Lord of the honour of Eye, in Suffolk, was one of the subscribing barons to Magna Charta; and from him lineally descended

SIR BALDWIN MALET, Knt. of St. Audries, solicitor-general to HENRY VIII., whose great-grandson,

SIR THOMAS MALET, Knt. of St. Audries, co. Somerset, was appointed one of the judges of the court of King's Bench in the 17th year of CHARLES I., and again in the 12th year of CHARLES II., when he sat as judge upon the

Lineage.

The surname of this family was anciently written, in Latin, de Monte Acuto, and in English, Montacute; but the original was, nevertheless, Montagu, from the town of that name in Normandy. The first of the Montagus in England was

DROGO DE MONTEACUTO, a warrior in the immediate train of Robert, Earl of Moreton, at the Conquest. From this personage descended, in nearly five centuries afterwards,

SIR EDWARD MONTAGU, Knt., a distinguished lawyer, who was appointed lord-chief-justice of the court of King's Bench in 1539; which office he resigned in 1545, and was constituted, in the same year, lord-chief-justice of the Common Pleas; "a descent," says Fuller, "in honour, but an ascent in profit." Sir Edward was also of the privy-council, and in such high favour and esteem with his sovereign, HENRY VIII.,* that the king appointed him one of those sixteen executors of his last will and testament who should be regents of the kingdom, and governors to his son, EDWARD VI. He m. thrice; and the eldest son of his third marriage, (the sons of his first marriage all d. in infancy,)

SIR EDWARD MONTAGU, Knt., m. Elizabeth, dau. of Sir James Harington, of Exton, in Rutlandshire, by whom he had six sons. (See BURKE'S Extinct Peerage, Montagu, Dukes of Montagu.) The third son,

SIR HENRY MONTAGU, was one of the representatives of the city of London in the parliament called by JAMES I., upon his accession, (19 March, 1604,) and acquired great distinction as a parliamentary orator. In 1616, he was appointed lord-chief-justice of the court of King's Bench; in 1620, constituted lord-treasurer of England; and elevated, 19 Dec. in the same year, to the peerage, as Baron Montagu, of Kimbolton, and Viscount Mandeville. Upon the accession of CHARLES I., his lordship was advanced (5 Feb. 1626) to an earldom, as Earl of Manchester; and subsequently appointed lord-privy-seal. He m. 1st, Catherine, second dau. of Sir William Spencer, of Yarnton,

* Sir Edward had been speaker, at one time, of the House, and the following anecdote is related of him when filling the chair:—A bill of subsidies not passing, Mr. Speaker was sent for by the king, and thus addressed while on his knees in the royal presence: "Ho! will they not let my bill pass?" and laying his hand on the head of Montagu, HENRY continued, "Get my bill to pass by such a time to-morrow, or else by such a time this head of your's shall be off." The speech was brief and conclusive; for we are told that Sir Edward "wrought so effectually, that before the time prescribed, the bill passed with the approbation of the House, and the sovereign's satisfaction."

in Oxfordshire, third son of Sir John Spencer, of Althorp, and had issue,

EDWARD, his successor.

Walter, who having embraced the catholic religion, retired into a monastery in France; and attracting the notice of the queen-mother, Mary de Medicis, was received into the special favour of that princess, and eventually appointed, by her, abbot of St. Martin's Abbey, near Pontoise, in the diocese of Rhoan. He was also of her cabinet-council, and the chief instrument of introducing Cardinal Mazarin to her majesty. In 1643, he was apprehended at Rochester coming to England with letters of importance, and he remained in confinement here until 1647, when he was banished the kingdom by a vote of parliament. He d. in 1670, and was buried in the church belonging to the Hospital of Incurables, at Paris.

This nobleman was an active and successful general of the parliamentary army during the civil wars, and particularly distinguished by his celebrated victory over Prince Rupert at Marston Moor, in which engagement CROMWELL acted as his lieutenant-gen. His lordship, however, refused to sanction the murder of the king, and retired from parliament until 1660, when he assisted at the meeting of peers who voted for the restoration of CHARLES II.; and was deputed by the lords, as their speaker, to congratulate the king upon his return to his capital; a duty which the earl eloquently fulfilled at Whitehall, 29 May, 1660, concluding his address in these words:

"Great King: give me leave to speak the confidence, as well as the desires, of the peers of England; be you the powerful defender of the true protestant faith, the just asserter and maintainer of the laws and liberties of your subjects, so shall judgment run down like a river, and justice like a mighty stream; and God, the God of your mercy, who hath so miraculously preserved you, will establish your throne in righteousness and in peace."

His lordship was advanced to the Viscounty of Stormont, 16 Aug. 1621; and having no issue,

In 1733, he was associated with the attorney-general, Talbot, and the solicitor-general, York, in an appeal case in the House of Lords; and was, soon afterwards, engaged in so many similar causes, that his friend Pope addressed to him his Imitation of the Sixth Epistle of the First Book of Horace, congratulatory of the circumstance. In 1742, Mr. Murray was appointed solicitor-general; in 1754, attorney-general; and in two years subsequently, 8 Nov. 1756, he was raised to the judgment-seat as lord-chief-justice of the court of King's Bench, when (on the same day) he was elevated to the peerage, as Baron Mansfield, of Mansfield, in the co. of Nottingham. His lordship was created, 19 Oct. 1776, EARL OF MANSFIELD, with remainder, of the dignity of Countess of Mansfield, to Louisa, Viscountess Stormont, wife of his nephew, David, Viscount Stormont, under the impression, at that period, that no English peerage could be limited to a Scottish peer, even in remainder; when the converse was, however, established in law, his lordship obtained another patent, dated 1 Aug. 1792, creating him EARL OF MANSFIELD, of Caen Wood, co. Middlesex, with remainder to his nephew, Viscount Stormont. His lordship m. in 1738, Elizabeth, dau. of Daniel, Earl of Winchilsea and Nottingham; but dying s. p. 20 March, 1793, in the 89th year of his age, the original Barony of Mansfield expired, while the two earldoms devolved according to the specific limitation.* (For the first, Mansfield and Nottingham, see Countess of Mansfield.)

* In 1751, a charge was made against Mr. Murray for being a Jacobite and drinking the Pretender's health at Mr. Vernon's, to which he gave a denial upon oath, and the lords of the council were unanimous in reporting to the king that the charge was groundless. Mr. Vernon was a mercer on Ludgate Hill, who having lost his only son, Mr. Murray's friend and companion at Westminster School, devised to that gentleman estates in the cos. of Chester and Derby.

MARJORIBANKS.

MARJORIBANKS, SIR WILLIAM, of Lees, in the county of Berwick; born in 1830; succeeded his father, as 3rd baronet, 22nd of September, 1834.

Lineage.

The original surname of this family was Johnston, and at what period the alteration took place cannot now be determined; it continues, however, to bear the Johnston arms. The assumed surname, which is local, is said to have been thus derived:—When Walter, high-steward of Scotland, and ancestor of the royal house of Stuart, espoused Marjorie, only dau. of Robert Bruce, and eventually heir to his crown, the Barony of Ratho was granted by the king as a marriage portion to his dau., by charter, which is still extant; and those lands being subsequently denominated "Terre de Matho-Marjoriebankis," gave rise to the name of Marjoribanks.

As in the case with many other private families, no records remain of the early history and intermarriages of the house of Marjoribanks; but several of its members are mentioned in the history of Scotland as representatives in the Scottish parliament. In 1540, Thomas Marjoribanks, of Matho, sat for Edinburgh, and was appointed one of the senators of the college of Justice in 1554.

The duke is a Prince of the holy Roman Empire.

Lineage.

FAMILY OF CHURCHILL.

The patriarch of the CHURCHILLS, according to the eminent antiquary Dr. James Anderson (genealogical tables) was,

GITTO DE LEON, of a noble family in Normandy, who lived in the year 1055, and whose 2nd son,

WANDRIL DE LEON, was Lord of Courcil. This Wandril m. Isabella de Tuya, and his eldest son,

ROGER DE COURCIL, coming into England with the CONQUEROR, was rewarded for his services, as appears by Domesday-Book, with divers grants of lands in the counties of Somerset, Dorset, and Devon. The grandson of this Roger,

SIR BARTHOLOMEW DE CHIRCHIL, a great warrior, and celebrated in old ballads, held the castle of Bristol for KING STEPHEN, and died fighting in his cause. From Sir Bartholomew we pass to

CHARLES CHURCHILL, who was engaged by Thomas Courtenay, Earl of Devon, in the cause of EDWARD IV.; and adhering to that monarch, when the Earl deserted his party, obtained in marriage, by the king's interest, Margaret, dau. and heir of Sir William Widville, a lady nearly allied to the queen. The descendant of this marriage,

JASPER CHURCHILL, of Bradford, m. Elizabeth, dau. of John Chaplet, Esq. of Harrington, in Dorsetshire, and was s. by his elder son,

JOHN CHURCHILL, Esq. of Mintern, in Devonshire, an eminent lawyer, who m. Sarah, dau. and co-heir of Sir Henry Winstan, of Standon, in Lincolnshire; and by that alliance, as well as his practice at the bar, considerably augmented his estate. He was father of

SIR WINSTAN CHURCHILL, b. in 1620; who m. Elizabeth, dau. of Sir John Drake, Bart. of Ashe, in Devonshire, and had, with other issue,

I. JOHN, of whom presently.

II. George, b. in 1635; a naval officer of eminence in the reign of KING WILLIAM, and one of the council in naval affairs to the LORD-HIGH-ADMIRAL, PRINCE GEORGE of Denmark, temp. QUEEN ANNE. He d. unm. in 1710, and was buried in Westminster Abbey.

III. Charles, a military officer, who served with distinction at the battle of Steinkirk and Landen, and was made Lieut.-Gen. by KING WILLIAM. He was subsequently governor of the Tower, and participated in the glory of Blenheim. He d. s. p. in 1714.

IV. Arabella, who was mistress to JAMES II., when Duke of York, and had issue by the king,

1 James Fitz-James, the celebrated Duke of Berwick, (see BURKE'S Extinct Peerage.)

2 Henry Fitz-James, commonly called the grand prior, created by his father DUKE OF ALBEMARLE.

3 Henrietta, m. to Henry, Lord Waldegrave.

4 A dau., a nun.

Arabella Churchill married afterwards, Col. Charles Godfrey, master of the jewel office; and d. in 1714, leaving by him two daughters,

1 Charlotte-Godfrey, m. to Hugh Boscawen, Viscount Falmouth.

2 Elizabeth-Godfrey, m. to Edmund Dunch, Esq. of Wittenham, in Berkshire.

The eldest surviving son,

JOHN CHURCHILL, who became the most celebrated captain of the period in which he lived, and is yet esteemed the first general in the military annals of England, was b. 24 May, 1650, and in his youth was page of honour to James, Duke of York, through whose favour he obtained an ensigny in the guards. In 1671, he served at Tangier against the Moors; and being in the army sent next year, under the Duke of Monmouth, to the assistance of LOUIS XIV., against the Dutch, signalized himself at the siege of Maestricht. In 1679, he attended the Duke of York into Flanders, and the following year into Scotland. He was also with the duke in 1682, when the Gloucester frigate, in her voyage to Scotland, struck on the Lemon and Oar sand, and was one of those persons for whose preservation his royal highness was particularly solicitous. In the December following, by the influence of the duke, he was dignified with the title of LORD CHURCHILL, of Eyemouth, co. Berwick, in the peerage of Scotland; and the next year, being then a general-officer, he got the command of the 1st regt. of dragoons, at that time newly raised. The Duke of York ascending the throne, as JAMES II., Lord Churchill was accredited ambassador to the court of France; and was created a peer of England, 14 May, 1685, as BARON CHURCHILL, of Sandridge, co. Hertford. Notwithstanding, however, these sterling marks of royal favour, Lord Churchill, who had assisted in defeating the unfortunate Duke of Monmouth, at Sedgemore, was amongst the first to attach himself to the fortunes of the PRINCE OF ORANGE, in 1685, and to vote in the Convention Parliament for the vacancy of the throne, and for filling it with the PRINCE AND PRINCESS OF ORANGE. For these good services he was sworn of the privy-council to the new sovereign, and created, 9 April, 1689, EARL OF MARLBOROUGH; in which year he was sent to command the English forces in the Netherlands, under Prince Waldeck, general of the Dutch troops. He subsequently fell under the displeasure of KING WILLIAM, and was confined for a short time in the Tower. Upon the accession of QUEEN ANNE, her majesty appointed the Earl of Marlborough captain-gen. of all her forces in England, and of those employed in conjunction with her allies; and he was created, 14 Dec. 1702, Marquess of Blandford and DUKE OF MARLBOROUGH. Within two years afterwards, 2 Aug. 1704, his grace won the great victory of BLenheim, which has immortalized his name, and for which he obtained a grant from the crown, at the desire of parliament, to himself and his heirs, of the royal manor of Woodstock and hundred of Wootton, in Oxfordshire. Here a splendid palace, bearing the proud name of BLenheim, was erected at the national expense, and a monumental pillar raised to hand down to posterity the achievements of the great and victorious soldier. His grace espoused Sarah, dau. and co-heir of Richard Jennings, Esq. of Sandridge, co. Hertford, by whom he had issue,

John, who d. in infancy of the small-pox, 20 Feb. 1702-3.

HENRIETTA, m. to Francis, Earl of Godolphin, and succeeded, under a special act of parliament, as DUCHESS OF MARLBOROUGH. Her grace had an only son, WILLIAM, Marquess of Blandford; who d. s. p. in 1731.

The duchess d. 24 Oct. 1733.

Anne, m. to Charles Spencer, Earl of Sunderland, (see family of Spencer,) and had issue,

Charles, Earl of Sunderland, who s. his aunt, Henrietta, in the DUKEDOM OF MARLBOROUGH.

Her ladyship d. 15 April, 1716.

Elizabeth, m. to Scroop, 1st Duke of Bridgewater; and d. 22 March, 1713-14, without surviving issue.

Mary, m. to John, Duke of Montague.

The duke having no prospect of heirs male after the death of his only son, and being desirous of having his honours and dignities, together with the manor of Woodstock and house of Blenheim, settled on his posterity, an act for that purpose obtained the royal assent, 21 December, 1706; and on January 28th ensuing, the like sanction was given to another act for settling on him and his posterity a pension of £5000 per annum. The Emperor LEOPOLD, in consideration of the eminent services performed by the Duke of Marlborough, created him a Prince of the Empire in 1704; and his majesty's son and successor, the Emperor JOSEPH, bestowed upon his grace the principality of Mindelheim, in Swabia. The duke d. 16 June, 1722, having survived some years his mental faculties, and was s. under the act of parliament, by his daughter,

HENRIETTA, as Duchess of Marlborough; at whose decease, 24 Oct. 1733, the honours and estates of this GREAT branch of the CHURCHILLS devolved upon her nephew,

CHARLES SPENCER, 5th Earl of Sunderland, as DUKE OF MARLBOROUGH, &c.

FAMILY OF SPENCER.

SIR ROBERT SPENCER, Knt. of Wormleighton, co. Northumberland, descended from Geoffrey Le Despencer, younger brother of Hugh, justiciary of England, (from whom the Barons Le Despencer derive,) was elevated to the peerage, 21 July, 1603, by the title of Baron Spencer, of Wormleighton. This nobleman appears to have been a very spirited member of parliament, as his reply to Thomas Howard, Earl of Arundel, in a debate upon the royal prerogative, in 1621, evinces:—"My lord," said Howard, "when these things were doing, your ancestors were keeping sheep." "When my ancestors were keeping sheep," replied Spencer, "your lordship's ancestors were plotting treason." This excited such irritation at the moment, that Arundel, as the aggressor, was committed to the Tower; but soon after, acknowledging his fault, was discharged. His lordship d. 25 Oct. 1627, and was s. by his son,

WILLIAM, 2nd baron; who m. Penelope, dau. of Henry Wriothesley, Earl of Southampton, by whom he had (with other issue),

HENRY, his successor.

His lordship d. in 1636, and was s. by his eldest son,

HENRY, 3rd baron; who was created, 8 June, 1643, Earl of Sunderland. His lordship m. Dorothy, dau. of Robert, Earl of Leicester; and falling at the battle of Newbury, in 1643, in the royal cause, of which he was an ardent supporter, was s. by his only son,

His lordship m. 3rdly, Judith, dau. and co-heir of Benjamin Tichborne, Esq., by whom he left no child. He d. 21 April, 1729, and was s. by his eldest son,

CHARLES, 5th earl. This nobleman, upon the demise of his aunt, Henrietta, Countess of Godolphin and Duchess of Marlborough, 24 October, 1733, s. to the honours of his illustrious grandfather, JOHN CHURCHILL, and became 2nd Duke of Marlborough, (see family of Churchill.) His grace m. 23 May, 1732, Elizabeth, dau. of Thomas, Lord Trevor, by whom he had, with other issue,

MARR AND KELLIE, EARL OF, (John-Francis-Miller Erskine,) and Baron Erskine, of Alloa, in the peerage of Scotland; and Baron of Dirleton; b. 28 Dec. 1795; s. as 15th earl, upon the demise of his father, 20 Sept. 1828; m. 24 April, 1827, Philadelphia, eldest dau. of Sir Charles-Granville Stuart-Menteath, Bart. of Closeburn Hall, Dumfriesshire.

Lineage.

Of the title of Marr, Lord Hailes says, "This is one of the earldoms whose origin is lost in its antiquity. It existed before our records, and before the era of genuine history."

MARTACUS, Earl of Marr, is witness to a charter of donation by MALCOLM CANMORE, to the Culdees of Lochleven, of the manor of Kilgad-Earnoch, in 1065. From this nobleman we pass to his descendant, GRATNEY, 11th Earl of Marr, who succeeded his father in 1294, and d. before 1300. He m. Lady Christian Bruce, dau. of Robert, Earl of Carrick, and sister of ROBERT I., and by her (who m. 2ndly, Sir Christopher Seton, of Seton; and 3rdly, Sir Andrew Moray, of Bothwell) had issue,

DONALD, his successor.

Elyne, who m. Sir John Mententh, and had a dau.,

CHRISTIAN, m. to Sir Edward Keith, and had a daughter, JANET KEITH, m. to Sir Thomas Erskine, and was mother of SIR ROBERT ERSKINE, who claimed the EARLDOM OF MARR in 1435.

The earl was s. by his son,

DONALD, 12th Earl of Marr. This nobleman, upon the death of Randolph, Earl of Moray, regent of Scotland, was unanimously appointed to fill his place by the parliament assembled at Perth, 2 August, 1332. His lordship immediately assumed the command of the Scottish army, which, by his ignorance of military discipline, was totally defeated by an inferior force under Edward Baliol, 12th of the same month, and the Earl of Marr paid for his inexperience with his life, being smothered in the rout. He had m. Isabel, only dau. of Sir Alexander Stewart, of Bonkill, and had a daughter,

MARGARET, of whom presently, with an only son, his successor,

THOMAS, 13th Earl of Marr, a person of much political importance in the reign of DAVID II. His lordship was great-chamberlain of Scotland in 1358, ambassador to England in 1362, and one of the guarantees of a truce with the English in 1369. The earl obtained from KING DAVID a charter of confirmation of the lordship of Garioch. He d. s. p. in 1377, and with him terminated the direct male line of the old Earls of Marr. His lordship was s. by his sister,

MARGARET, Countess of Marr; who m. 1st, William, Earl of Douglas, (who in her right became 14th Earl of Marr, and was designed Earl of Douglas and Marr,) and had issue,

John, Earl of Douglas and Marr, killed at Otterburn, in 1388, and d. s. p.

Isabel.

Her ladyship being divorced from Lord Douglas, m. 2ndly, Sir John Swinton, of Swinton, who fell at Homildon in 1402. Her ladyship d. in 1385, and was s. by her son, mentioned above, who was s. in the Earldom of Marr by his only sister,

ISABEL, Countess of Marr. Her ladyship m. 1st, Sir Malcolm Drummond, of Drummond, who d. without issue; and 2ndly, Alexander Stewart, natural son of Alexander, Earl of Buchan, 4th son of ROBERT II. The first appearance of this person in life was at the head of a formidable band of robbers, in the highlands of Scotland, when storming the Countess of Marr's castle of Kildrummie, he obtained her ladyship in marriage, either by violence or persuasion. The countess subsequently made a free grant of all her honours and inheritance to her said husband; and dying s. p. 1419, he,

ALEXANDER STEWART, designed, in right of the deceased countess, Earl of Marr and Lord of Garioch, resigned those honours to the crown, when they were re-granted to him, 28 May, 1426, in remainder to his natural son, Sir Thomas Stewart, to revert, in case of failure of male issue of the latter, to the crown. His lordship was ambassador to England in 1406, and again in 1407, when he engaged in a tournament with the Earl of Kent. The following year he went to France and Flanders, with a noble company, and eminently distinguished himself in the service of the Duke of Burgundy, who employed him to assist in quelling a rebellion of the people of Liege against their bishop, John of Bavaria. The earl commanded the royal army at the battle of Harlaw, against the Lord of the Isles, in 1411; and was appointed ambassador-extraordinary to England in 1416; and soon afterwards, warden of the Marches. He d. in 1435, and his natural son, mentioned above, having predeceased him, the Earldom of Marr, according to the charter, reverted to the crown, when it was claimed, in 1435, by Sir Robert Erskine, of Erskine, as lineal descendant of Lady Elyne Marr, (refer to Gratney, 11th earl;) but though the descent was indisputably established, the earldom was not conferred upon the Erskines until it had been enjoyed by four earls of different families, the last of whom was the celebrated REGENT MORAY, a period of 130 years having elapsed, when at last it was restored, in 1565, by QUEEN MARY, to

JOHN, 5th Lord Erskine, who should of right be 6th Earl of Marr of the Erskine race. This nobleman was appointed by charter, in 1566, heritable-sheriff of the co. Stirling, and keeper of Stirling Castle; and chosen regent of Scotland by parliament, in 1571, during the minority of JAMES VI. His lordship m. Annabella, dau. of Sir William Murray, of Tullibardine, ancestor of the Dukes of Atholl; and dying in 1572, was s. by his only son,

JOHN, 7th earl. This nobleman, who took a leading part in Scotch affairs in the reign of JAMES VI., accompanied that monarch into England, and was sworn of the privy-council, and invested with the Garter, 27 July, 1603. His lordship had a charter, on his own resignation, of the Earldom of Marr, Lordships of Strathdon, Strathdee, Garioch, Alloa, &c., the heritable offices of captain of the castle of Stirling, and sheriff of the shire thereof, &c., to to him and his heirs, and erecting the whole into the EARLDOM OF MARR, 3 Feb. 1620. His lordship m. 1st, Anne, 2nd dau. of David, Lord Drummond, and had an only son,

JOHN, his successor.

The earl espoused 2ndly, Lady Mary Stewart, 2nd dau. of Esme, Duke of Lennox, and had, with other issue,

JAMES, Earl of Buchan.

Henry, to whom his father assigned the peerage of Cardross, ancestor of the modern Earls of Buchan.

Alexander, (Sir) a col. in the army, who was blown up at Dunglass, with his brother-in-law, the Earl of Had-dington, in 1640.

Charles, (Sir) of Alva, ancestor of the EARL OF ROSLYN, (see that dignity.)

His lordship d. 14 Dec. 1634, and was s. by his eldest son,

JOHN, 8th earl. This nobleman sold to the crown the heritable-sheriffship of Stirlingshire, and the bailiary of the water of Forth, for £8000, and he accordingly resigned those offices, 4 Nov. 1641. His lordship m. Lady Christian Hay, 2nd dau. of Francis, 9th Earl of Errol; and dying in Sept. 1654, was s. by his son,

JOHN, 9th earl; who m. 1st, Lady Mary Scott, eldest dau. of Walter, 1st Earl of Buchan, but had no issue. His lordship espoused 2ndly, Lady Mary Mackenzie, eldest dau. of George, 2nd Earl of Seaforth; and dying in Sept. 1668, was s. by his son,

CHARLES, 10th earl; who was obliged, in order to satisfy the pecuniary engagements of the last lord, to dispose of a great part of his landed property, particularly the Barony of Erskine, the original possession of the family. His lordship m. Mary, dau. of George, 2nd Earl of Panmure, and had, (with other issue,)

JOHN, his successor.

James, of Grange, a lord of Session, and justice-clerk, in the reign of QUEEN ANNE, subsequently M.P. for the co. of Stirling; d. in 1754, and was s. by his eldest surviving son, (by Rachael, sister of Major Chiesly,

James, knt.-marischal of Scotland; m. Frances, only dau. of John, 11th Earl of Marr; and dying in 1784, left two sons,

JOHN-FRANCIS, of whom hereafter, as restored EARL OF MARR.

James-Francis, who d. in 1806, leaving issue.

His lordship d. in 1689, and was s. by his eldest son,

JOHN, 11th earl, K.T., and secretary of state for Scotland in 1706. His lordship attaching himself, however, to the fortunes of the CHEVALIER ST. GEORGE, and taking an active part in the Rebellion of 1715, (having proclaimed that personage by the title of JAMES VII. of Scotland, and Third of England,) followed his royal master to the Continent after the battle of Sheriffmuir, and was attainted, by act of parliament, in 1715. He d. in 1732, and his only son, Thomas, Lord Erskine, in 1766. From the period of passing the bill of attainder, the earldom remained under its influence until its reversal, through the gracious and special recommendation of his majesty GEORGE IV., by parliament, 17 June, 1824, in favour of

JOHN-FRANCIS ERSKINE, Esq., (revert to children of the 10th earl.) His lordship was b. in 1541; m. in 1770, to Frances, only dau. of Charles Floyer, Esq., governor of Madras, by whom he had issue, Creations—Earl of Marr, not defined; date of precedence, 1457; confirmed to the family of Erskine, 1565. Lord Erskine, 14 Oct. 1467.

FAMILY OF ERSKINE.

Tradition states, that a Scotchman having killed, with his own hand, temp. MALCOLM II., ENRIQUE, a Danish general, at the battle of Murhill, cut off his head, and, with the bloody dagger in his hand, shewed it to the king, saying, in Gaelic, Eris Skine, alluding to the head and dagger; whereupon MALCOLM imposed upon him the surname of Erskine, and assigned for his armorial bearing, a hand, holding a dagger, with "Je pense plus" for motto. It is more probable, however, that the name was assumed from the Barony of ERSKINE, on the Clyde, the property of the family for many ages.

HENRICUS DE ERSKINE was proprietor of the barony of Erskine in the reign of ALEXANDER II. His grandson,

JOHN ERSKINE, of Erskine, submitted to EDWARD I. of England in 1296, and left a son,

SIR JOHN ERSKINE, of Erskine, whose grandson,

SIR ROBERT ERSKINE, of Erskine, was appointed GREAT CHAMBERLAIN of Scotland in 1350; and was one of the commissioners to treat of the release of DAVID II. in 1348, 1351, 1352, and 1354; and at a parliament held at Perth, 17 January, 1356-7, he was nominated, with the Bishops of St. Andrews and Brechin, plenipotentiary to treat with England, not only for the ransom of the king, but likewise for a truce between the two kingdoms. These objects being accomplished, Thomas, son of Sir Robert, was one of the hostages granted for the ransom. MARTIN, SIR ROGER, of Long Melford, co. of Suffolk; b. 22nd Feb. 1778; s. as 5th baronet, upon the demise of his father, 15 Sept. 1815. Sir Roger is senior merchant and 2nd judge of the court of Appeal at Moorshedabab, on the Bengal establishment.

Lineage.

This very ancient and knightly family (as Harvy, in his visitation of Suffolk, terms it) settled at Long Melford in the reign of RICHARD II., where, in 1438,

RICHARD MARTIN died, leaving a son,

LAURENCE MARTIN, who purchased lands, in 1449, of William, then abbot of St. Edmunds Bury, and exchanged others. The great-great-grandson of this Laurence,

ROGER MARTIN, was so remarkable for benevolence, that when he advanced in years, and was not able to go far from home, he contrived a whistle at the end of his cane to collect the poor around him. In the 14th of HENRY VIII., he was appointed one of the commissioners for levying the subsidy granted to that king, having previously been called to the bar, and chosen a bencher of Lincoln's-Inn. In the reign of MARY, upon being offered the secretaryship of state, he replied, that for himself he was highly satisfied with the sufficiency God had bestowed upon him; and as for his son, he would inherit a competency sufficient if he proved an honest man, but if he became otherwise, far too much. This excellent person reached nearly his hundredth year, and from him lineally descended,

MAXWELL.

MAXWELL, SIR WILLIAM-ALEXANDER, of Calderwood, co. Lanark; b. 30 April, 1793; s. as 8th baronet, upon the decease of his father, 16 March, 1837. Sir William is major in the 1st dragoon-guards.

Lineage.

The family of Maccus-ville, by corruption Maccuswell or Maxwell, may be regarded as one of the most ancient and distinguished in North Britain. It is generally believed to have been founded by

MACCUS, son of Unwyn, (evidently of Saxon origin,) who is a witness, in 1116, to the inquisition of David, Earl of Cumberland, (subsequently DAVID I.,) into the possessions of the church of Glasgow. The grandson of this Maccus,

HERBERT DE MACCUSVILLE, living temp. MALCOLM IV., was the first who assumed the abbreviated surname of Maxwell. He d. in 1180, and was s. by his son,

JOHN DE MAXWELL, great-chamberlain and sheriff of Roxburgh in the beginning of the reign of ALEXANDER II.; who d. in 1241, and was s. by his son,

EUMERUS DE MAXWELL, Lord of Carlawerock, who, temp. ALEXANDER II., was justiciar of Galloway. He m. Mary, dau. and heir of Roland de Mearnis, with whom he obtained extensive possessions in the west of Scotland; viz., the lands and baronies of Mearnis, Nether-Pollock, Dryps, and Calderwood. This Eumerus left two sons: Sir Herbert, from whom sprang the Lords Maxwell, Earls of Nithsdale, (an earldom forfeited in 1715;) and

SIR JOHN MAXWELL, Knt., who got from his father the lands and baronies of Nether-Pollock, co. Renfrew, and the lands of Dryps and Calderwood, in the shire of Lanark; and dying in the beginning of the reign of DAVID BRUCE, was s. by his son,

SIR ROBERT MAXWELL, Knt. of Calderwood, who d. in 1363, and was s. by his eldest son,

SIR JOHN MAXWELL, of Pollock and Calderwood. This gentleman m. Isabel, dau. of Sir James Lindsay, and had two sons: JOHN, to whom he gave the lands of Nether-Pollock; and

SIR ROBERT MAXWELL, who got the barony of Calderwood, and other lands. This distribution of the estates of Sir John Maxwell is proved by a mutual indenture and entail entered into by the two brothers, in which all their lands are enumerated; and in which it is provided that, failing heirs male of either of their bodies, the whole estate shall devolve upon the surviving heir male of the other. This deed is dated at Dumbarton, 18 December, 1400. Sir Robert m. in 1402, Elizabeth, dau. and co-heir of Sir Robert Denniston, of Denniston, by whom he obtained a considerable augmentation of landed property. From this marriage lineally descended

SIR JAMES MAXWELL, Knt. of Calderwood, who m. 1st, Margaret, dau. of Robert Porterfield, Esq. of Porterfield, by whom he had two daus. He m. 2ndly, Isabel, dau. of Sir Alexander Hamilton, of Innerwick, by whom, with six daus., he had two sons; and 3rdly, Margaret, dau. of James, 7th Earl of Glencairn, relict of Sir James Hamilton, of Evandale, and sister of Ann, Marchioness of Hamilton, by whom he had four daus. and two sons,

John, lineal ancestor of the present bart.
Alexander.

Sir James d. in 1722, and was s. by his eldest son,

I. SIR JAMES MAXWELL, of Calderwood, who was created a Baronet of Nova Scotia, with remainder to his heirs male whatsoever, 28 March, 1627. Upon the demise of Sir John Maxwell, of Pollock, without surviving issue, in 1647, the estates of that gentleman ought to devolve, it was presumed, upon Sir James, according to the deed mentioned as having been executed, in 1400, by their ancestors, the brothers, Sir John and Sir Robert Maxwell; but Sir John, of Pollock, displeased with the expensive habits of Sir James, made a disposition, sometime before his death, in favour of George Maxwell, of Auldhouse, who succeeded accordingly. Sir James endeavoured to set aside this disposition, but unsuccessfully. He d. in 1667, and was s. by his eldest son,

II. SIR WILLIAM, who re-agitated his claim to the Pollock estates in 1695, but as unsuccessfully as his predecessor. This gentleman m. Jean, dau. of Sir Alexander Maxwell, of Soughton Hall; but leaving no male issue at his decease, having outlived his two sons, the title reverted to his first-cousin,

III. SIR JOHN, (only son of Col. John Maxwell, half-brother of the 1st bart., who fell fighting under the banner of royalty, at the battle of Dunbar, in 1650.) This gentleman m. Margaret, dau. of Captain Wood, and was s. at his decease by his only surviving son,

WILLIAM, who s. as 7th BARONET.

Sir William d. in 1750, and was s. by his eldest son,

V. SIR WILLIAM. This gentleman m. Grizel, dau. of James Peadie, Esq. of Rough Hill; and dying 2 Jan. 1789, left an only surviving son,

VI. SIR WILLIAM, b. 7 Jan. 1748; m. 5 May, 1807, Hannah-Leonora, youngest dau. of the late Robert Pasley, Esq. of Mount Annan, in Dumfriesshire; but dying s. p. 12 Aug. 1829, was s. by his cousin,

VII. SIR WILLIAM, a gen.-officer in the army; b. 4 Dec. 1754; who m. Isabella, dau. and heir of Henry Wilson, Esq. of Newbottle, in the co. of Durham, and by that lady (who d. 1 Oct. 1829) had issue,

WILLIAM-ALEXANDER, present bart.

Robert-Wilson, in the civil service of the East India Company.

Henry, merchant at Leith.

Harriett.

Elizabeth, m. to Archibald Stirling, Esq. of Kenmure.

Sir John s. as 7th baronet, on the decease of his father, in 1785.

Lineage.

This family, with fourteen others, mentioned by Lord Hales, accompanied Edgar Atheling into Scotland, when England submitted to WILLIAM of Normandy; and Maccus (whose posterity took, like Somer, the term ville or well, indicating their possessions) was witness, in 1116, to the Inquisitio Davidii, as the Diplomata Scotiæ proves. A charter from WILLIAM the Lion of a grant of property is still in the possession of the Nether-Pollock family, who had founded the church of Maccuswell, now Maccuston, as early as the beginning of that monarch's reign.

JOHN DE MACCUSVILLE, who was ambassador to England from 1215 to 1220, was a guarantee to the treaty of marriage between Joanna of England and ALEXANDER II. This John left a son,

AYMER DE MACCUSWELL, who acquired lands in Renfrewshire and Dumfriesshire, and was chamberlain of Scotland in the year 1258. As a baron of Scotland, this Aymer (according to Rymer's Fædera) engaged that the Scotch should not make peace without the consent of the Welsh. He left three sons, Herbert, ancestor of the family of Caerlaverock, in Dumfriesshire, Earls of Nithsdale, attainted in 1715.

(See family of CONSTABLE-MAXWELL, of Everingham and Caerlaverock, BURKE'S Commoners, vol. i. p. 325.)

John, founder of the family before us, which is now chief of the ancient house of Maxwell. He is generally styled Dominus de Pollock, and is allied, by marriage, to the celebrated Bruce, and the unfortunate house of Stuart.

Alexander.

SIR JOHN MAXWELL, (descended from the above John,) 3rd Baron of Pollock, and of Calderwood, left two sons; the younger of whom, Sir Robert Maxwell, obtaining the barony of Calderwood from his father, became the founder of the Maxwells of Calderwood; while the elder son,

SIR JOHN MAXWELL, Knt., inherited Nether-Pollock, and several other estates. This Sir John and his brother, Sir Robert, executed a deed in the year 1400, mutually providing that, should the male descendants of one at any time fail, the estates of both were to devolve upon the surviving male heir of the other. Sir John Maxwell d. in the reign of JAMES I., leaving issue,

JOHN, his successor.

Hugh, ancestor of the present bart.

From the elder son,

SIR JOHN MAXWELL, descended

SIR JOHN MAXWELL, at whose decease, without issue, being the last descendant of Sir John Maxwell, one of the parties to the deed of 1400, already mentioned, the estates ought to have devolved, it was asserted, upon Sir James Maxwell, of Calderwood; but sometime previously to Sir John's decease, he made a disposition of those estates in favour of his kinsman, George Maxwell, of Auldhouse. This disposition was subsequently litigated, but without being disturbed. Sir John was therefore s. by

SIR GEORGE MAXWELL, Knt. of Auldhouse, descended from Hugh Maxwell, Esq., younger son of Sir John Maxwell, the first of Nether-Pollock. This Sir George m. Annabella, dau. of Sir Archibald Stewart, by whom he had one son and three daus.; and dying in 1677, was s. by his son,

I. SIR JOHN MAXWELL, of Pollock, who was created a Baronet of Nova Scotia, 12 April, 1682, with remainder, according to a renewed patent, to his heirs male whatsoever. This gentleman was nominated one of the privy-council for Scotland, by KING WILLIAM, on the first institution thereof, in 1696; and constituted one of the lords-commissioners of the Exchequer and Treasury. Sir John was appointed, in 1699, a senator of the College of Justice and justice-clerk. He m. Marian, dau. of Sir James Stewart, of Kirkfield; but dying without issue, the title devolved upon his cousin,

II. SIR JOHN MAXWELL, of Blawarthill, who m. 1st, Lady Anne Carmichael, dau. of John, Earl of Hyndford, by whom he had one son and a daughter. He m. 2ndly, Barbara, dau. of Walter Stewart, Esq. of Blairhill, and by that lady had three other sons and two daus.; and 3rdly, Miss Margaret Caldwell, without issue. Sir John d. about the year 1753, and was s. by his eldest son,

III. SIR JOHN; at whose decease unm. in 1758, the title devolved upon his brother,

IV. SIR WALTER, who m. Darcy, dau. of Thomas Brisbane, Esq. of Brisbane and Bishoptoun; and dying in 1761, was s. by his only child,

M A X

V. SIR JOHN; at whose decease in infancy, nine weeks after his father, the title reverted to his uncle,

WALTER, (3rd son of WALTER, 3rd HIGH-STEWARD of Scotland,) m. in 1258, the COUNTESS OF MENTETH, and thus acquired that earldom. His name occurs frequently in the transactions of the 13th century; and we find him gallantly distinguished at the battle of Largs, in 1263, when his brother, the high-steward, had the chief command. The earl left two sons, (who both assumed the surname of Menteth,) viz.,

Lineage.

The ancient family of Methuen, or Methven, takes its name from the barony of Methven, in Perthshire, which was bestowed by MALCOLM CANMORE, King of Scotland, on a German of distinction, who accompanied QUEEN MARGARET from Hungary, about the year 1070.

The family continued to fill offices of great trust and consideration about the court of Scotland; and in 1440,

John de Methven, one of the secretaries of state in that kingdom, obtained leave to bear his arms on the spread eagle, as indicative of his high German descent. Two of his descendants, John and Andrew de Methven, were well known as active supporters of the Reformation, and were, in consequence, driven to seek refuge at the court of ELIZABETH, who received them with tokens of friendship, bestowing on Andrew a prebend in the cathedral of Wells. From John descended

JOHN METHVEN, of Bishop's Cannings, Wilts, who was, in the reigns of WILLIAM and QUEEN ANNE, successively chancellor of Ireland, and ambassador to Portugal; and was the framer of that treaty for the mutual interchange of port wine and woollen manufactures, which has subsisted till within a few years. His son,

SIR PAUL METHUEN, was a much-esteemed minister of QUEEN ANNE, and of GEORGE I., one of the secretaries of state, a knight of the Bath, envoy to various states, ambassador to Madrid, and comptroller of the household; and was trusted and regarded as a man of the highest honour and uncompromising integrity. He possessed distinguished taste in the fine arts, and formed a very extensive collection of pictures during his residence in Italy and other courts, which he bequeathed to his cousin, Paul Methuen, of Corsham House. The representation, however, of Charles, Lord Lucas, eventually vested in Paul Methuen, of Corsham, and has now devolved upon his grandson and heir, the present Lord Methuen.

Charles, Lord Lucas, married Penelope, dau. of Francis Leke, first Earl of Scarsdale and Baron Deincourt, whose male line failing in 1736, the representation of the noble family of Leke vested in the descendants of his daus.; and Lord Methuen, as representative of Penelope, is one of the co-heirs of Francis, Earl of Scarsdale and Baron Deincourt.

Lineage.

This is a junior branch of the family of Molyneux, Earls of Sefton, springing immediately, it is supposed, from Sir Thomas Molyneux, (2nd son of Sir William Molyneux, of Sefton, a celebrated warrior under the Black Prince,) who added to his arms, as a distinction, the fleur-de-lis in the dexter chief still borne by the family. Sir Thomas commanded the forces of Robert De Vere, Duke of Ireland, but was defeated and slain by the combined insurgent lords at Radcot Bridge, near Farringdon, Berks, in 1388. The genealogy, however, and records of this branch of the Molyneux family, which resided at Calais, being destroyed during the sacking of that town by the Duke of Guise in 1558, a chasm, of necessity, occurs in the pedigree.

SIR THOMAS MOLYNEUX, who was b. at Calais in 1531, falling into the hands of the enemy on the capture of that place, above alluded to, was ransomed for 500 crowns. He came to England in 1568, and was sent to Ireland in 1576, by QUEEN ELIZABETH, as chancellor of the Exchequer, when he obtained, with extensive grants of land from her majesty, a lease for twenty-one years of the exports and imports of the city of Dublin (wines excepted) for the annual rent of £183. He m. Katherine, dau. of Ludorico Stabcort, governor of Burges, and had issue,

Sir Thomas was s. at his decease, in 1596, by his eldest surviving son,

DANIEL MOLYNEUX, Esq., M.P. This gentleman was appointed, in 1586, Ulster king-of-arms, and his celebrated collection of Irish family history, now amongst the MSS. of Trinity College, Dublin, prove him to have been an accurate and very learned antiquary. He m. Jane, dau. of Sir William Usher, clerk of the privy-council, and had five sons and three daus. He was s. in 1632, by his third, but eldest surviving son,

SAMUEL MOLYNEUX, Esq. of Castle Dillon, co. Armagh, chief engineer of Ireland; who m. Anne, dau. and heir of William Dowdall, Esq. of Mount Town, co. Meath, and was s. in 1692, by his eldest son,

In the oldest writings relative to the KYRLES, the name is variously written Crul, Crull, and Crulle; afterwards Cryll, and sometimes Curl, until it was at last spelt universally KYRLE.*

WALTER KYRLE, of the Hill, living in 1489, married and had two sons,

- I. WALTER, of the Hill, whose only daughter and heiress, Alice, wedded Christopher Clarke, Esq., and was represented by the late Mrs. Jane Clarke, whose heir is the present KINGSMILL EVANS, Esq. of the Hill. (See BURKE'S Commoners, vol. ii. p. 242.)

* There were many families, in various parts of England, in the middle of the sixteenth century possessing names and arms each nearly approaching those of Kyrle, who were probably connected with this family.

† Walford Court, or Manor House, still exists. From a battery here Captain Kyrle is reported, by tradition, to have bombarded Goodrich Castle, which, from the relative position of the two places, is not improbable. The estate passed, as hereafter shewn, from the Kyrles to the Gwillyms, and was sold by them to John Clarke, Esq. of the Hill, about the year 1727. It is now, under the will of the late Mrs. Clarke, the property of Kingsmill Evans, Esq.

The MONTGOMERYS, who claim descent from the noble house of Eglinton, have long been settled in the north of Ireland. They were amongst the soldiers of fortune who, by sustaining the English interest there, obtained large grants of land in the counties of Down, Donegal, Fermanagh, Monaghan, and Cavan. The branch of which we are now about to treat has been resident in Donegal for upwards of two centuries.

ROBERT MONTGOMERY, of Boneyglyn, m. Miss Conyngham, and had several sons. To the eldest, JAMES, he left the family estate, which is now in the possession of his grandson, the Rev. Alexander Montgomery. The 2nd son,

Upon his subsequent departure for England, general orders were published to the army, both by the governor-general in council and by the government of Madras, highly complimentary of his services. Captain Montgomery was appointed, in 1803, inspecting-field-officer of yeomanry and volunteers in the co. Donegal, with the rank of lieut.-col. in the army. According to the Scottish historians, this ducal family is as ancient as the restoration of the monarchy of Scotland, by FERGUS II.; and by the same authority, it derives its origin from the renowned GRÆME, who governed that kingdom during the minority of FERGUS's grandson, EUGENE II., which monarch's reign commenced in the early part of the 5th century. It is certain, however, that no family of North Britain can boast of greater antiquity.

SIR DAVID GRAHAM, Knt. of Old Montrose, co. Forfar, (lands obtained by his father, Sir David Graham, of Kincardine, in exchange for the estate of Cardross, from ROBERT I.,) a personage remarkable for patriotism and valour, was one of the Scottish barons employed to negotiate the ransom of DAVID II., made prisoner at the battle of Durham, in 1346; and Sir David's son,

This nobleman was one of the peers to whom John, Duke of Albany, regent of Scotland in the minority of JAMES V., committed the tuition of the young prince during his own absence in France, in 1523. His lordship m. Jane, dau. of William Keith, 3rd earl-marischal, and had four sons, the youngest of whom, Mungo, was ancestor of the Grahams of Orchil and Killern. The earl was s. at his decease, 24 May, 1571, by his grandson,

JOHN, 3rd earl, (posthumous son of Robert, Lord Graham, who was slain at the battle of Pinkey, 10 Sept. 1547, by Margaret, 3rd dau. of Malcolm, 3rd Lord Fleming, great-chamberlain of Scotland.) This nobleman, on the fall of the Earl of Gowrie, the lord-treasurer, in 1582, obtained the white staff, which he soon after surrendered to Sir Thomas Lyon, of Auldbar. He was appointed chancellor in 1598-9, and held the seals until 1604, when it was required that the chancellor should be a lawyer. His lordship was then constituted viceroy of Scotland, by virtue of which high office he presided in the parliament of Perth, A.D. 1606, when the episcopal government was restored to the church. He m. 1569, Jean, eldest dau. of David, Lord Drummond, and was s. at his decease, in 1608, by his eldest son,

JAMES, 5th earl, b. in 1612. This nobleman took a distinguished part, in the first instance, on the side of the covenanters, and afterwards, during the civil wars, on that of his ill-fated sovereign, CHARLES I., and became one of the most illustrious heroes of the age. He was created Marquess of Montrose, 16 May, 1644, and constituted capt.-gen. and commander-in-chief of all the forces to be raised in Scotland for the king's service. His lordship immediately put himself at the head of an army, and numerous brilliant successes followed his first movements. In little more than one year he became master of the greater part of North Britain; but being unexpectedly attacked at Philiphaugh, 13 Sept. 1645, by Major-Gen. David Leslie, he experienced a total and most signal defeat, after which his lordship retired into France; but returning to Scotland in 1650, he collected a new army, and being again defeated, was forced to fly the field of battle in disguise. He was made prisoner a few days after at the house of M'Leod, of Assint, by whom he was betrayed to Leslie, whence he was led captive to Edinburgh, and there executed upon a gallows thirty feet high, 21 May, 1650. The night preceding his execution, he wrote with a diamond, in allusion to the sentence he had received, the following lines upon the prison window:—

"Let them bestow on every airth a limb,
Then open all my veins that I may swim
To thee, my Maker, in that crimson lake;
Then place my parboiled head upon a stake,
Scatter my ashes, strew them through the air—
Lord, since thou knowest where all these atoms are,
I'm hopeful thou'lt recover once my dust,
And confident thou'lt raise me with the just."

His lordship s. as 10th earl, at the decease of his father, 8 Aug. 1810. Lord Moray is lord-lieut. of the co. of Elgin.

Lineage.

The Earldom of Moray became vested in the crown of Scotland by the forfeiture of ARCHIBALD DOUGLAS,* Earl of Moray, in 1455, and it remained dormant until the

* SIR THOMAS RANDOLPH, who commanded the left of the Scottish army at Bannockburn, in 1314, obtained for his gallant services the EARLDOM OF MORAY. He was nephew of ROBERT BRUCE, being the son of Lady Isabel Bruce, that monarch's sister. His lordship m. Isabel, only dau. of Sir John Stewart, of Bonkyl, and had issue,

THOMAS, } successively earls.
JOHN, }

Agnes, m. to Patrick, 9th Earl of Dunbar and March, who in her right became eventually Earl of Moray.

The earl d. in 1332, and was s. by his elder son,

THOMAS RANDOLPH, 2nd Earl of Moray. This noble-reign of JAMES IV., who, by letters patent, dated 20 June, 1501, conferred it upon

JAMES STUART, his natural son, by the Hon. Janet Kennedy, the Lord Kennedy's daughter; but this nobleman dying without male issue, in 1544, (his only child, Mary, m. John, master of Buchan,) the earldom again reverted to the crown, and was presented by QUEEN MARY, in 1548, to George, Earl of Huntly, high-chancellor of Scotland; her majesty recalling, however, that grant, was graciously pleased to bestow the earldom, 30 Jan. 1561, upon

JAMES STUART, prior of St. Andrews, illegitimate son of JAMES V., by Margaret, dau. of John, Lord Erskine, and natural brother to her majesty. This nobleman played a conspicuous part subsequently as REGENT of Scotland, when the unhappy queen was compelled to surrender her crown to her infant son, JAMES VI. His lordship m. in 1561, Anne, dau. of William Keith, Earl-Mareschal, and by that lady had two daus.,

ELIZABETH, m. to Sir James Stewart, son of James, Lord Doune.

MARGARET, m. to Francis, 9th Earl of Errol.

The REGENT MORAY, one of the most prominent persons in Scottish history, is thus characterized: "Personal intrepidity, military skill, and vigour in the administration of civil affairs, are virtues which even his enemies allow him to have possessed in an eminent degree. In a fierce age he was capable of using victory with humanity, and of treating the vanquished with moderation. A patron of learning; zealous for religion to a degree which distinguished him even at a time when professions of that kind were not uncommon. His confidence in his friends was extreme, and inferior only to his liberality towards them, which knew no bounds. His treatment of MARY, to whose bounty he was so much indebted, was unbrotherly and ungrateful. Amidst the turbulence and confusion of the period of his regency, he dispensed justice with so much impartiality, he repressed the licentious borderers with so much courage, and established such uncommon order and tranquillity in the country, that his administration was extremely popular, and he was long and affectionately remembered among the commons by the name of the GOOD REGENT." The Earl of Moray eventually fell a victim to one of his foes. Hamilton, of Bothwellhaugh, a man distinguished for a vindictive disposition, in an age when revenge was counted a virtue and a duty, had, with many of the name, been made prisoner at the fight of Langside; with the other captives he had been doomed to death after the battle, and, like others, he had received pardon from the regent. But though Bothwellhaugh had been favourably treated, a separate property belonging to him had been declared forfeited, and was conferred by Moray upon one of his favourites, who, eager to obtain possession, man adopting, like his illustrious father, the profession of arms, fell in action at DUPLIN, 12 Aug. 1332, just twenty-three days after the late earl's decease; dying unm., he was s. by his brother,

JOHN RANDOLPH, 3rd Earl of Moray; who commanded the first body of the Scottish army at Hallidon Hill, 19 July, 1333. He fell in command of the right wing of the Scots at the battle of Durham, 17 Oct. 1346; and dying s. p. the Earldom of Moray should have reverted to the crown, but it was assumed by his lordship's sister,

AGNES, consort of Patrick Dunbar, 9th Earl of Dunbar and March, and her husband became in her right EARL, in which dignity her ladyship was s. by her 2nd son,

JOHN DUNBAR, who obtained, 9 March, 1371-2, from ROBERT II., a charter confirmatory of the whole Earldom of Moray, and it remained in the Dunbar family until the decease of

JAMES DUNBAR, Earl of Moray, without male issue, in 1430, when the husband of his younger dau., Lady Mary Dunbar,

ARCHIBALD DOUGLAS, obtained the EARLDOM OF MORAY, to the prejudice of the husband of the elder dau. This nobleman joining his brother, the Earl of Douglas, in arms against JAMES II., fell at Arkinholm, 1 May, 1455, and was afterwards attainted, when the EARLDOM OF MORAY, as stated above, became vested in the crown of Scotland.

brutally drove the wife of Bothwellhaugh, then recently delivered of a child, half naked into the fields, where she became, ere morning, furiously mad. Her husband vowed vengeance on the regent as the original author of the injury; and the Hamiltons, his kinsmen, who had so much reason to hate and fear the then ruler of Scotland, encouraged him, by applauding and abetting his design. Having taken singularly active measures for effecting his purpose and his escape, he lurked in an empty lodging in a street in Linlithgow, mortally wounded the Earl of Moray by a shot from a carabine as he rode through the town, and, though closely pursued, got in safety to France. Moray fell 23 Jan. 1570, in the 37th year of his age. He was s. by his eldest daughter,

ELIZABETH, Countess of Moray, who m. in 1580,

SIR JAMES STUART, (son and heir of Sir James Stuart, of Doune, created Lord Doune, 24 Nov. 1581,) who assumed thereupon the title of EARL OF MORAY. This nobleman is known in history by the appellation of the "Bonny Earl of Moray." His lordship had issue,

BEATRIX, m. to Robert, Lord Maxwell, and had a son,

JOHN, Lord Maxwell, of whom hereafter, as 5th Earl of Morton, according to the grant of the crown.

ELIZABETH, m. to James Douglas, (son of Sir George Douglas, of Pittendriech, and brother of the Earl of Angus,) who succeeded under special settlement to the Earldom of Morton.

His lordship having thus no male issue, made an entail of his estates and honours in favour of Sir Robert Douglas, of Lochleven; but afterwards changed the destination in favour of his son-in-law, James Douglas, and Elizabeth, his wife. In consequence of which, at his lordship's decease, in 1553, the honours devolved upon the said

JAMES DOUGLAS, of Pittendriech, as 4th Earl of Morton. This nobleman was raised to the chancellorship by QUEEN MARY, and held the seals until March, 1565, when he was forced to fly into England for alleged acquiescence in the murder of David Rizzio. His lordship obtaining soon afterwards a pardon, returned, and was again chancellor under the regency of the Earl of Moray; he was subsequently high-admiral of Scotland; and in 1572, regent of the kingdom. This tide of prosperity ebbing, however, the earl was accused of being accessory to the murder of Lord Darnley, and being arraigned upon that charge, was found guilty, and publicly executed at the Market-Cross of Edinburgh, 2 June, 1581, by the machine called the Maiden, which he had himself introduced into Scotland. His lordship having no issue, made an entail of the earldom in favour of his nephew, the Earl of Angus; and, in case of failure of issue of that nobleman, then in favour of William Douglas, of Lochleven. After his lordship's execution and forfeiture, however, the crown immediately conferred the Earldom of Morton upon JOHN, Lord Maxwell, grandson of James, 3rd Earl of Morton, who became thus 5th Earl of Morton; but a general act of indemnity passing in 1585, that nobleman was obliged to surrender the earldom to the heir of the entail; in recompence for which, the crown created the Earldom of Nithsdale, with precedence from Lord Maxwell's receiving the Earldom of Morton in 1581. On this surrender, the Earldom of Morton accordingly devolved upon

ARCHIBALD DOUGLAS, 8th Earl of Angus, as 6th Earl of Morton, (Lord Maxwell being regarded as 5th earl;) at whose demise without issue, in 1588, it descended to

SIR WILLIAM DOUGLAS, Knt. of Lochleven, as 7th Earl of Morton, (refer to descendants of Sir Henry Douglas, of Lugton and Lochleven, 3rd son of Sir John Douglas, of Dalkeith.) This nobleman m. Lady Agnes Lesly, eldest dau. of George, 4th Earl of Rothes; and dying in 1606, was s. by (the son of his deceased son, Robert, by Jean, only dau. of John, 10th Lord Glamis) his grandson,

WILLIAM, 8th earl, K.G., and lord-high-treasurer of Scotland. This nobleman, before the civil wars broke out, was one of the richest and greatest subjects in the kingdom. Espousing the royal cause zealously, he advanced considerable sums for its support, disposing for that purpose of the noble property of Dalkeith, with other estates, to the value of no less than £100,000 Scots of yearly rent. On that account the islands of Orkney and Zetland, with the whole jurisdiction and royalties appertaining thereto, were granted to his lordship, 15 June, 1643, by royal charter, redeemable by the crown on payment of £30,000 sterling. He m. Lady Anne Keith, eldest dau. of George, 5th earl-marischal; and dying in 1648, was s. by his eldest son,

ROBERT, 9th earl; who m. Elizabeth, dau. of Sir Edward Villiers, Knt.; and dying in 1649, was s. by his elder son,

WILLIAM, 10th earl. This nobleman procured a new grant of the islands of Orkney and Zetland, but that and the original grant being contested by the king's advocate, and being reduced, these islands were annexed, by act of parliament, to the crown, 27 Dec. 1669. His lordship m. Lady Grizel Middleton, eldest dau. of John, 1st Earl of Middleton; but dying without surviving issue, in 1681, the honours reverted to his uncle,

SIR JAMES DOUGLAS, of Smithfield, as 11th earl. His lordship m. Anne, dau. and heir of Sir James Hay, of Smithfield; and dying in 1686, was s. by his eldest son,

JAMES, 12th earl. This nobleman was of the privy-council to QUEEN ANNE, and one of the commissioners for the Union, which he strenuously supported in parliament. He d. unmarried in 1715, and was s. by his brother,

ROBERT, 13th earl; who d. unm. in 1730, and was s. by his brother,

Edinburgh, but by that lady had no surviving issue. His lordship espoused 2ndly, Frances, dau. of William Adderly, of Halstow, in Kent; and dying in 1738, was s. by his eldest son,

About the middle of the 14th century the ancestors of the earl were seated in the west of England, and in the beginning of QUEEN ELIZABETH'S reign they purchased an estate near Larden, co. Salop, whence, for nearly a century, they were designated the Mores of Shropshire. (See BURKE'S Com- moners, article "More of Linley," vol. iii. p. 427.) In the reign of KING JAMES I.,

RICHARD MOORE emigrated to Ireland, and fixed his abode at Clonmell. This gentleman left two sons; the elder of whom,

STEPHEN MOORE, Esq., purchased the estate of Kilworth, co. Cork, and settled there. Mr. Moore had the honour of being personally known to KING WILLIAM, to whom, upon that prince's arrival in England, he lent £3000, which sum was never refunded; he was, however, constituted by his majesty, governor of the co. Lineage.

This family, which derives its surname from Eggecomb, Egecomb, or Edgecomb, (as it has been variously written in old records,) in the parish of Cheriton-Fitz-Pain, near Crediton, was of great antiquity in the co. of Devon; when, in the reign of EDWARD III.,

WILLIAM DE EGGECOMBE marrying Hillaria, dau. and heir of William de Cotehele, of Cotehele, co. Cornwall, removed to that place, and chiefly resided there. He d. in 1380, and was s. by his son,

WILLIAM EDGCOMB, Esq., who m. the dau. and heir of Denset. He had a grant, in the 6th HENRY V., with Robert Hethe, of the custody of the lead-mines, with the silver ore therein, which were in Devonshire. He left issue,

PETER EDGEComb, Esq., who m. Elizabeth, dau. and heir of Richard Holland, Esq., and was father of

SIR RICHARD EDGEComb, Knt., a person of great eminence in the times of EDWARD IV., RICHARD III., and HENRY VII. In the 7th of the first-mentioned monarch, he served in parliament for Tavistock; and in the same year was escheator of the co. Cornwall, an office then of great trust. He subsequently joined Henry Stafford, Duke of Buckingham, against RICHARD III., and had a narrow escape for his life after the defeat and execution of that nobleman. But making his way into Brittany, he enrolled himself under the banner of the EARL OF RICHMOND, and returning to England, participated in the victory of Bosworth, and received the honour of knighthood from his victorious chief on the field of battle. He was afterwards sworn of the privy-council, and appointed comptroller of his household by the new monarch. He obtained, likewise, grants of the castle, honour, &c., of Totness, and the manor of Cornworthy, with various other lands in the co. Devon, of which shire he served the office of sheriff in 1487. Sir Richard was subsequently sent into Ireland, "being a person (observes Sir James Ware) of singular prudence," to administer the oaths of allegiance and obedience, as well to the nobility, gentry, and prime officers, as to the commonalty of the realm; and brought over with him 500 armed men. He m. Joan, dau. of Thomas Tremayne, Esq. of Collacomb, and had issue,

PIERS, his successor.

Margaret, m. to Sir William Courtenay, of Powderham.

SIR PIERS EDGCOMBE, K.B., who was sheriff of Devonshire in the 10th and 13th of HENRY VII. He m. Jane, dau. and heir of Stephen Durnford, Esq. of East Stonehouse, Devon, and was s. by his eldest son,

He m. Mary, dau. of Sir John Glanvil, of Broad Hinton, in Wilts; and dying in 1660, was s. by his eldest son,

He was constituted one of the lords of the Treasury in 1716; and was elevated to the peerage, 20 April, 1742, as Baron Edgcumbe. MOUNTMORRES.

MOUNTMORRES, VISCOUNT, (the Rev. Herve de Montmorency,) and Baron Mountmorres, of Castlemorres, co. Kilkenny, in the peerage of Ireland; and a baronet of the same part of the United Kingdom; b. 20 August, 1796; m. 5 July, 1831, Sarah, dau. of William Shaw, Esq. of Temple Hill, and has surviving issue, two sons and a daughter, the eldest son b. 20th April, 1832. His lordship s. to the honours, at the demise of his father, 23rd March, 1833.

Lineage.

This ancient family deduces its descent from the great house of Montmorency, in France; a branch of which came into England with WILLIAM THE CONQUEROR, and having obtained a grant in the principality of Wales, became soon after located in the Isle of Anglesey.

The founder of the Anglo-Galic, or extant Irish line of the Montmorencys was,

GEOFFREY, surnamed the RICH, sire de Montmorency, 2nd son of HERVE, Baron de Montmorency, grand-butler of France, styled "Premier Baron Chretien," and next brother of BOUCHARD, fourth continuator of the elder, or ducal, line in France. This Geoffrey was bred up at the court of KING ROBERT, during that monarch's minority, when the regency was vested in BALDWIN, the 4th Count of Flanders, and m. Richilde, dau. and heir of Walter, Castellan of Douay, one of Count Baldwin's vassals, and in the Norman expedition against England, a soldier, with his son-in-law, Geoffrey, in the army of Duke WILLIAM. Geoffrey was chamberlain to Matilda, queen consort of the CONQUEROR, and having acquired a division of the spoil of conquest, was s. at his death by his son,

HERVE, Lord of the Marshes of Ely, from which he and his descendants assumed the designation "de MARISCIS, de MARAIS, de MARISCO, and finally de Morres, (mor-eas, a great marsh.) This Hervé had two wives; by the 1st, Agnes, Countess d'Eu Soissons, he had three sons and a dau., viz.,

ROBERT, Lord of Huntspill Maries, co. Somerset, whose grandson,

GEOFFREY DE MONTEMAURISCO, inherited the estates in Ireland of his great-uncle, HERVE, in 1205, and was governor of that kingdom; of him hereafter.

William-Fitz Hervé, who left a son,

Hervé-Fitz William, chamberlain to HENRY II.; d. in 1183.

Stephen, constable of Cardigan; killed in 1136, leaving an illegitimate son, the gallant

ROBERT-FITZ STEPHEN, the first Englishman who led an armed force into Ireland, in 1169, for the conquest of that kingdom.

By his 2nd wife, Adelaide, dau. of Hugh, Comte de Clermont-Beauvoisis, and DOWAGER-COUNTESS OF CLARE,* he had another son,

HERVE DE MONTE-MARISCO, who accompanied his nephew, Robert Fitz-Stephen, in the first expedition to Ireland, and obtained from KING HENRY II., and from his uterine nephew, the celebrated Richard, Earl of Pembroke, surnamed Strongbow, large territorial grants in the cos. of Wexford, Tipperary, and Kerry; some of which still remain with his successors, but the greater part have been conveyed, by intermarriages, to the houses of Leinster and Ormonde. This Herve, who was constituted constable of Ireland in 1172, m. in 1175, Nesta, daughter of Maurice Fitzgerald, ancestor of the Dukes of Leinster; but in 1179 retired from the world, and became a brother in the monastery of the Holy Trinity, in Canterbury, from which he returned to Ireland as abbot of Dunbrody, in which station he died, in 1205. At his decease,† he bequeathed the principal part of his extensive possessions to his grand-nephew,

GEOFFREY DE MONTE-MAURISCO, who was chief-governor of Ireland in the years 1215, 1226, and 1230, and acquired, by grants from KING JOHN, great tracts of land in the cos. of Tipperary and Limerick. This Geoffrey built the castles Castleisland and Moyaliff, in the co. of Kerry; in which county he founded the Mitred Abbey of Killagh. He also founded, in Limerick county, the priory of Any, for knights-hospitallers of the order of John of Jerusalem; likewise the priory of Adair, in the same co., and that of Thurles, in Tipperary. He was s. at his decease by his eldest son,

JOURDAN DE MONTE-MAURISCO, who, amongst his other great possessions, was lord of the territory of Lateragh, near Nenagh, in the co. of Tipperary, where he erected the round tower and castle of Lateragh, which thenceforward became a favourite residence of his descendants. He was living in 1270, and was s. at his decease by his son,

WILLIAM DE MONTE-MAURISCO; who d. in 1284, leaving, by his 1st wife, one son and a dau., viz.,

JOHN, his successor.

JOAN, m. to Theobald, Baron of Arklow, and was mother of Edmond le Boteller, Earl of Carrick.

By his 2nd wife he had,

William, who d. at Dublin in 1313.

FULCO-FITZ-WILLIAM, of whom hereafter.

He was s. by his eldest son,

JOHN DE MARISCO, who was s. by his son,

HERBERT DE MARIES, or DE MARISCO; who d. in 1336, and was s. by his son,

STEPHEN DE MARISCO, who d. in 1374, without issue, when his unsettled estates in England and Ireland, amounting to seventy-two manors, passed by inheritance to James, 2nd Earl of Ormonde, as next heir of the full blood; the settled estates, however, held in capite, descended to the heir male,

WILLIAM FITZ-FULCO DE MARISCO,‡ whose eldest son and successor,

JOURDAN DE MARISCO, was father of

* Grandmother of Strongbow, Earl of Pembroke.

† His grandnephews, Hereward, Bishop of Leighlin, and Geoffrey, Lord de Montemaurisco, whom he had constituted universal heirs to his estate, erected to his memory a mausoleum, in black marble, in the abbey church, upon which his effigies, in monk's habit, the coat-of-mail appearing underneath, were represented, the right hand bearing a chalice, the left, a general's truncheon.

‡ Son and heir of

JOURDAN-DE-MONTE MAURISCO.

WILLIAM FITZ - JOURDAN, who, at the decease of STEPHEN, in 1374, succeeded to the representation of the family and to its honours in Ireland, as well as to the lordship of the Marshes of Ely in England; the latter he sold, in conjunction with his wife, Mary, in 1378, to Thomas de Cockfield, priest, and Henry de Lezignan. He died issueless, at the castle of Lateragh, in Ormonde, and was s. by his nephew,

HERVE, or HERVEY MONTE-MAURISCO, who married, in despite of a statute law, which rendered it felony in an Anglo-Norman subject to intermarry with the Milesian, or those of ancient Irish race, Ownia (Winifrede), dau. of O'Meagher, of Templemore, dynast of Ikerin, and by her acquired the lordship of Bearnane, &c. &c. His son and successor,

SIR JAMES MORRES, the first of the family who changed the orthography of the name, was computed to be, by descent and inheritance, the 13th or 14th Baron of Monte-Maurisco. He was living in 1469, and at that time, as the Lambeth MSS. attest, was lord of divers lands and manors in Ormonde, Ikerin, &c., joint-lord of Nenagh, Roscrea, &c. The period of his decease has not been ascertained; his son and heir,

SIR JOHN MORRES, is supposed to have pre-deceased him, as, after the battle of Wakefield, fought 31 Dec. 1460, at which he was present, nothing regarding him appears, except his having married Anne, dau. of Sir Robert Dillon, Knight-Banneret, of Proudstown, in the co. of Meath, and having two sons,

OLIVER,* called Fearleathan.
JOHN.

* SIR OLIVER O'FEARLEATHAN MORRES, the elder son, the representative of the family, and lord of its possessions, received the honour of knighthood from Pierce, Earl of Ormonde, for powerfully aiding that nobleman in subduing the sept Fitzpatrick, and conquering Ossory. The elder son,

OLIVER-OGE MORRES, succeeded to the bulk of his father's possessions, but through a course of riotous extravagance, was obliged to alienate the principal part thereof; some portion to Thomas, Earl of Ormonde, but a much larger one to his uncle, John Morres, who had been his guardian and steward. By his first wife, Hannah O'Ryan, he left a son and successor,

JOHN FITZ-OLIVER OGE MORRES, of Cloghyr, Ballyrickard-Morres, &c., called in France, Baron de Morres; who d. of wounds received 7 March, 1621, before the Castle of Vals, fighting in the army of Henry, Duke de Montmorency. The younger son,

He m. Anastacia O'Ryan, and had, with an only dau., the wife of Edward Sweetman, Esq., an only son, his successor at his decease in 1562,

REDMOND MORRES, Esq. of Templemore and Knockagh Castles, b. in 1552; and dying 31 Aug. 1624, was s. by his eldest son (by his first wife, Catharine Cantwell), HERVEY MORRES, Esq., 2nd son of Sir Redmond, the 2nd bart., settled at Castle Morres, co. Kilkenny, and having served under four governments, had the good fortune to obtain grants from each. He was a captain of horse in CROMWELL's regiment, and went to Ireland with the Usurper. In the reign of CHARLES II., he represented the borough of Knocktopher, co. Col. Montmorency has compiled an able genealogical history of the house of Montmorency, and in consequence of the proofs therein adduced, establishing the alliance of the Irish branch with the parent stock in France, the Viscounts Frankford in Ireland obtained a sign-manual to assume the surname of MONTMORENCY only.

William, in holy orders; b. 19 Feb. 1796; and d. 1 Nov. 1830.

His lordship s. as 3rd earl, on the demise of his father, 4 July, 1816.

Lineage.

This family derives its surname from the lordship of Anneslei, co. Nottingham, where its patriarch,

RICHARD DE ANNESLEI, was seated at the time of the general survey in 1079. From this Richard descended

SIR JOHN ANNESLEY, Knt. of Hedynton, co. Oxford, M.P. for Nottinghamshire, temp. EDWARD III. and RICHARD II., who m. Isabel, sister and co-heir of Sir John Chandos, one of the knights of the Garter at the institution of that noble order, Viscount of the Isle of Constantine, in Normandy, great seneschal of Poitou, and high-constable of Aquitaine, and was s. by his son,

THOMAS ANNESLEY, Esq. of Annesley, M.P. for the co. Nottingham, whose great-grandson,

WILLIAM ANNESLEY, Esq. of Rodington, had, with other children,

ROBERT ANNESLEY, Esq. of Newport Pagnell, co. Bucks; who d. in 1553, and was s. by his son,

GEORGE ANNESLEY, Esq. of Newport Pagnell, whose eldest son,

ROBERT ANNESLEY, Esq., was a naval officer in the reign of QUEEN ELIZABETH, and also a capt. in her majesty's army raised to suppress the Earl of Desmond's rebellion; after which he became an undertaker in the plantation of Munster. He m. Beatrice, dau. of John Cornwall, Esq. of Moor Park, co. Hereford, and was s. by his eldest son,

SIR FRANCIS ANNESLEY, Knt., who filled for forty years several of the highest official situations in Ireland. In 1606, he was appointed comptroller over the clerk of the works; in 1607, made joint-clerk of the council, and keeper of the signet in the province of Munster; in 1612, he was constituted constable of the castle of Mountnorris; in the next year, Sir Francis represented the co. of Armagh in parliament; and in 1616, he was constituted one of the principal secretaries of state for Ireland, and sworn of the privy-council; but the office being granted without fee, he had a reversionary patent, dated 8 June, 1618, of the secretaryship and custody of the privy-signet, on the avoidance or death of Sir Dudley North, whereupon he resigned the reversionary grant of the muster-master-generalship, which he had previously obtained. Upon the institution of the order of Baronets of Ireland, Sir Francis Annesley was the second person upon whom that dignity was conferred, by patent, dated 7 Aug. 1620; and in the following year, Sir Francis obtained a reversionary grant, by patent, dated 11 March, 1621, of the Irish Viscounty of Valentia, at the decease of the then viscount, Sir Henry Power. He was put, however, into the more immediate possession of a peerage, by the title of Baron Mountnorris, of Mountnorris, co. Armagh, 8 Feb. 1628. For the sufferings of this nobleman under the government of the Earl of Strafford, see BURKE'S EXTINGUISHED AND DORMANT PEERAGE. His lordship m. 1st, Dorothy, dau. of Sir John Phillips, Bart. of Picton Castle, co. Pembroke, by whom he had ARTHUR, his successor, and other children. He espoused 2ndly, Jane, dau. of Sir John Stanhope, and widow of Sir Peter Courteney, Bart. of Adlington, co. Worcester, by whom he had several children; the eldest of whom,

FRANCIS, m. Deborah, dau. of Henry Jones, Bishop of Meath, and was father of

FRANCIS, of Thorganby, in Yorkshire, M.P., who left, with other issue,

- 1 FRANCIS, ancestor of the Annesleys of Bletchington. (See BURKE's Commoners, vol. i. p. 7.)
- 2 Martin, in holy orders, had issue.
- 3 William, created VISCOUNT GLERAWLEY, ancestor of the EARL OF ANNESLEY.

His lordship d. in 1660, and was s. by his eldest son,

ARTHUR, 2nd baron; who was enrolled amongst the peers of England, 20 April, 1661, as Baron Annesley, of Newport Pagnell, and Earl of Anglesey. This nobleman was treasurer of the navy in 1667, and lord-privy-seal in 1673. His lordship m. Elizabeth dau. and co-heir of Sir James Altham, of Oxey, co. Herts, one of the barons of the Exchequer, by whom he had, (with other children,)

- I. JAMES, Lord Annesley.

JAMES-GEORGE, 2nd Lord Altham; at whose decease, in infancy, the dignity reverted (to his father's younger brother) his uncle,
- III. The HON. AND REV. RICHARD ANNESLEY, D.D., dean of Exeter, as 3rd Lord Altham; who d. in 1701, the year he inherited the peerage, and was s. by his son,

ARTHUR, 4th Lord Altham; who m. Mary, natural dau. of John Sheffield, Duke of Buckingham and Normanby; but dying s. p. in 1727, was s. by his brother,

JAMES, 2nd earl; who m. Elizabeth, dau. of John, Earl of Rutland, and had issue,

JAMES, }
JOHN, } successively Earls of Anglesey.
Elizabeth, m. to Robert Gayer, Esq. of Stoke Poges, Bucks.

His lordship d. in 1690, and was s. by his eldest son,

JAMES, 3rd earl; who m. Lady Catherine Darnley, natural dau. of JAMES II., and left an only dau. and heir,

Catherine, m. to William Phipps, Esq., son of Sir Constantine Phipps, lord chancellor of Ireland, and had a son,

CONSTANTINE PHIPPS, who was created BARON MULGRAVE, in the peerage of Ireland.

His lordship d. 18 Jan. 1701-2, and was s. by his brother,

JOHN, 4th earl; who m. in 1706, Lady Henrietta Stanley, eldest dau. and co-heir of William, Earl of Derby, by whom he had no surviving issue. He d. in 1710, and was s. by his brother,

ARTHUR, 5th earl. This nobleman m. Mary, dau. of John Thompson, Lord Haversham; but dying issueless, the honours devolved upon his kinsman,

RICHARD, 5th Baron Altham, as 6th Earl of Anglesey, (revert to descendants of Altham, 2nd son of 1st earl.) This nobleman was not left, however, in uninterrupted enjoyment of the honours; for soon after his accession, a claimant arose in the person of Mr. James Annesley, who asserted that he was himself the son of Arthur, 4th Lord Altham, and a publication, entitled "The Adventures of an Unfortunate Young Nobleman," gave a very extraordinary and interesting narrative of his case. In that statement it was alleged, that Mr. Annesley was the true and lawful son and heir of Arthur, Lord Altham, and that he had been kidnapped and transported by his uncle RICHARD, to make room for his own accession to the honours and estates of the family. Mr. Annesley followed up the matter, instituted a suit at law for the recovery of the estates, and after a trial in the court of Exchequer in Ireland, James Annesley versus Richard, called Earl of Anglesey, begun 11 Nov. 1743, and continued daily, by adjournment, to the 25th of the same month, obtained a VERDICT. We believe, however, that he did not live long after, as the uncle, notwithstanding this decision, continued to enjoy the honours and fortune. The conduct of that person throughout the whole course of his iniquitous career, fully sustained the presumption that he had been very capable of committing the foul crime thus laid to his charge. He is said to have married three wives, two of whom he heartlessly abandoned, and the offspring of the third was unable but partially to establish his legitimacy. The second lady, Miss Simpson, he wedded when a half-pay officer, without title or fortune, and for some years afterwards was chiefly maintained by her father and friends. After his accession to the Barony of Altham, and subsequently to the Earldom of Anglesey, this lady was received at the vice-regal court in Dublin as the consort of his lordship, and so introduced by himself. He cohabited with her for several years, during which time he had three daus., and these, with their mother, he eventually left to starve. His third wife was a Miss Donovan, whom he espoused in the lifetime of the second, under the allegation that he had a wife living when he married Miss Simpson, and that his marriage with that unhappy lady was therefore illegal. To Juliana Donovan he appears to have been married in 1741, immediately after the decease of Anne Phrust, the first wife, by his own chaplain, the Rev. L. Neil, at his seat, Camolin Park, co. Wexford, and by her (who m. after his decease, Matthew Talbot, Esq. of Castle Talbot, co. Wexford) he had an only son and two daus.,

ARTHUR.

Richarda, m. in 1761, to Robert Phaire, Esq. of Temple Shannon, co. Wexford.

Juliana, m. to Sir Frederick Flood, Bart.

The earl d. 4 Feb. 1761, when the legitimacy of his son was contested by the heir-at-law, John Annesley, Esq. of Ballysack, who petitioned the Irish parliament to be admitted to the honours of the family. The matter excited great public interest, and was pending in the Irish House of Lords for nearly four years, when their lordships came to a decision, establishing the marriage with Miss Donovan, and confirming the right of her son,

ARTHUR, to the VISCOUNTY OF VALENTIA and the other Irish honours. His lordship on coming of age, in 1765, and taking his seat in the House of Lords of Ireland, applied for a writ as EARL ANGLESEY to the English parliament, by there the decision was against him, and the writ was, of course, denied. He continued, however, to sit as Viscount Valentia, (his claim being a second time investigated and confirmed in Ireland,) and was created, 29 Dec. 1793, EARL OF MOUNTNORRIS. His lordship m. 1st, in 1767, Lucy, only dau. of George, 1st Lord Lyttelton, by whom (who d. in 1783) he had,

Lineage.

During the intestine troubles in Scotland, in the reign of QUEEN MARY, this gentleman appears to have espoused the cause of the unfortunate princess, and to have fought under her banner at Langside, in 1568. He was subsequently banished, and his property seized upon by the Regent MORAY. He d. at an advanced age, about the year 1609, and was s. by his grandson,

JAMES NASMYTH, Esq., member of the Scottish parliament in 1627, and sheriff of the co. Peebles. This gentleman m. in 1610, Agnes, dau. of William Burnet, Esq. of Barns, and was s. by his eldest son,

JAMES NASMYTH, Esq., who was appointed, in 1683, falconer to the king; and in 1686, obtained a pension of £100 a year. The aerie of this gentleman has been preserved to the present time; and a lure worn by the king, and presented to him, is yet in the family. He d. unm. 1706, and was s. by his brother,

DR. ROBERT NASMYTH; at whose decease without issue, in 1712, the lands of Posso and the representation of the family reverted to his cousin,

NEALE.

NEALE-BURRARD, SIR HARRY, of Walhampton, co. Hants, admiral of the blue, and a knt.-grand-cross of the Bath; m. 15 April, 1795, Grace-Elizabeth, dau. of the late Robert Neale, Esq. of Shaw House, in the county of Wilts, upon which occasion he assumed, by royal permission, the surname of "Neale." Sir Harry s. as second baronet, upon the demise of his uncle, 12 April, 1791.

Lineage.

This family is presumed to be of Norman descent, and to have come into England with the CONQUEROR, for the name of "Burrard" is still to be found within the ancient dukedom. In the reign of RICHARD II., we find John Burrard appointed (8 Dec. 1397) prior of the monastery of Christchurch, co. Hants, and his remains lie entombed in that splendid cathedral.

NELSON.

NELSON, EARL, (Horatio Nelson,) of Merton and Trafalgar; Viscount Merton and Trafalgar, of Merton, co. Surrey; and Baron Nelson, of the Nile, and of Hilborough, co. Norfolk, in the peerage of the United Kingdom; Duke of Bronte, in Sicily; b. 7 Aug. 1823; s. as 3rd earl, on the demise of his father, in 1835.

Lineage.

"One of the greatest names," says Sir Egerton Brydges, "which will hereafter occur in the annals of British history, or perhaps in the annals of the world, at least as far as the operations of war are concerned, will be NELSON. His heroic deeds are so numerous, so splendid, and so incalculably important, that in him the biographer is confounded with excess of light. Of some men, the great deeds require to be told, because they deserve celebration. The celebrity of NELSON is already so universal that he who endeavours to add to it incurs the hazard of effecting no other purpose than the tedium of a tale a thousand times told. The three words, NILE, COPENHAGEN, TRAFALGAR, would say more than a hundred pages could relate." Fully impressed with the truth of this opinion, we will not dare to dim the glory of this immortal seaman by the faint light which our limited space could throw upon his exploits. His deeds—his fame—his death, are blotless in the recollection of Englishmen; and his name will be cherished by their posterity so long as the shores of England shall be guarded by those WOODEN WALLS which his proud career rendered invincible.

The REV. EDMUND NELSON, M.A., rector of Burnham Thorpe, in Norfolk. This gentleman m. 11 May, 1749, Catharine, dau. of the Rev. Maurice Suckling,* D.D., prebendary of Westminster, and had surviving issue,

* By his wife, ANNE TURNER, daughter of Sir Charles Turner, Bart. of Warham, in Norfolk, by Mary, eldest dau. of Robert Walpole, and sister of Sir Robert Walpole, K.G., 1st Earl of Orford, and of Horatio, Lord Walpole, of Wolterton. (See BURKE'S Commoners.)

The youngest son of the Rev. Edmund Nelson,

HORATIO NELSON, was born at the Parsonage House, Burnham Thorpe, 29 Sept. 1758, and he entered the navy when twelve years of age, on board the RAISONNABLE man-of-war, then commanded by his maternal uncle, Captain Maurice Suckling; which officer was appointed, in 1775, comptroller of the navy, and young Nelson was soon afterwards nominated to act as 4th lieutenant of the WORCESTER, commanded by Capt. Mark Robinson. On the 8th April, 1777, he passed his examination as lieut., and the next day received his commission as lieut. of the ROWESTOFFE frigate; from which, at the end of a year's active service, he was appointed 3rd lieut. of the Bristol, the flag-ship of Admiral Sir Peter Parker. In 1778, at the close of the year, he was a commander in the Badger brig; and in Jan. 1779, POST-CAPTAIN. Thus much for his early promotions. He did not, however, attain the rank of rear-admiral until March, 1797, or before he had fairly won his way by the most gallant and indefatigable services; at this period he was rewarded, too, with the order of the Bath. In addition, we shall briefly state, that his triumph of the NILE was achieved 1 Aug. 1798, and that he was advanced to the peerage in consequence, as BARON NELSON of the NILE, and of Burnham Thorpe, co. Norfolk, a pension of £2000 per annum being attached to the peerage for his own life, and the lives of his two immediate successors. In April, 1801, his lordship appeared before COPENHAGEN, and there, to the fame of a great captain, added the reputation of a prudent negotiator. The next month (22 May, 1801), he was created VISCOUNT NELSON; and soon after gratified (4 Aug. in the same year) by the grant of a collateral peerage to his family, under the title of BARON NELSON OF THE NILE, and of Hilborough, in Norfolk, with remainder to his family, and the heirs male of his body; and after those, to his sisters, Mrs. Bolton and Mrs. Matcham, in succession, and the heirs male of their bodies. From this period we pass over many a valiant exploit, until the HERO at length won the imperishable wreath of immortality, by the proudest conquest ever achieved, the VICTORY OF TRAFALGAR, (21 Oct. 1805.) He fell though, at the moment his country was saved—he fell when the naval host of France and Spain was scattered like dust before the whirlwind, and their importance, as naval powers, for ever annihilated.

His lordship espoused, in 1787, Frances, dau. of William Herbert, Esq., and relict of Josiah Nisbet, M.D. of the Isle of Nevis; but dying s. p., all his honours, save that of the last barony, became EXTINCT; but that, in accordance with the limitation, devolved upon his brother, the *REV. The remains of the gallant and lamented hero were honoured with public obsequies, and deposited in the cathedral church of St. Paul, in London, 9 June, 1806. His lordship was s. by his elder surviving brother, NORBURY.

NORBURY, EARL OF, (Hector-John-Graham Toler,) Viscount Glandine, of Glandine, King's co.; Baron Norbury, of Ballyorenade, co. Tipperary; and Baron Norwood, of Knockalton, all in the peerage of Ireland; b. 17 Sept. 1810. His lordship s. his father 3 Jan. 1839.

Lineage.

The family of TOLER, originally of Norfolk, was established in Ireland by one of the successful soldiers in CROMWELL'S army, who acquired grants in the co. of Tipperary, and settled at BEECHWOOD.

DANIEL TOLER, Esq. of Beechwood, m. Letitia, dau. of Thomas Otway, Esq. of Castle Otway, in the same co., and had issue,

V. Helena-Maria, m. to Richard Maunsell, Esq. of Ballywilliam, co. Limerick.

VI. Catherine, m. to John Green, Esq. of Old Abbey, co. Limerick; and d. in 1797.

VII. Phoebe, m. to John Head, Esq. of Ashley Park, co. Tipperary; and d. in 1803.

The second son,

JOHN TOLER, b. in July, 1740, was called to the Irish bar in 1770, and returned to parliament by the borough of Tralee in 1776, when he arrayed himself under the banner of government; and in the turbulent times that followed, sustained, as well by his eloquence as his personal courage, the cause he had espoused. In 1781, he obtained a silk gown. In 1789, he was appointed solicitor-general, and he succeeded Mr. Wolfe (the lamented Lord Kilwarden) in the attorney-generalship. While holding one of these offices, Mr. Toler accepted a challenge from the celebrated demagogue leader, James Napper Tandy, who afterwards shrunk from the rencontre. In the dreadful era of 1798, when his native country was desolated by a triumphant and vindictive faction; when the brand and the scourge blazed and resounded from one extremity of that ill-fated land to the other, and atrocities were of every-day occurrence, at the bare recital of which humanity now revolts with disgust and horror, the arduous duties of attorney-general devolved upon Mr. Toler,—how he fulfilled them the partisan depicts according to the tone and tinge of his party. Will the impartial historian leave the ermine of Lord Norbury unsullied?

In 1800, he was elevated to the bench and the peerage; to the former, as chief-justice of the court of Common Pleas; to the latter, (by letters patent, dated 29 Dec. in that year,) in the dignity of BARON NORBURY; he had previously obtained a peerage (7 Nov. 1797) for his lady, as BARONESS NORWOOD. His lordship retired from the bench in 1827, when he was advanced to the dignities of Viscount Glandine and EARL OF NORBURY, with remainder to his 2nd son, HECTOR-JOHN. Lord Norbury m. 2 June, 1778, Grace, dau. of Hector Graham, Esq., secondary of the Irish court of Common Pleas, and had issue,

HECTOR-JOHN.

Isabella.

Letitia, m. 8 March, 1813, to William Browne, Esq. of Browne's Hill, co. Carlow, (his 2nd wife.)

"During a long enjoyment of lucrative offices," says a writer in the Gentleman's Magazine, "Lord Norbury accumulated a large fortune; at the same time, he was an excellent landlord, and a gentle and forbearing master. In his deportment towards the bar he was undeviatingly polite; and in private society he was a most agreeable, although a very grotesque, companion. His literary studies stopped short of the present century. He was always a remarkably good horseman, and to his latter years appeared well mounted in the streets." His lordship d. 27 July, 1831, (Lady Norwood pre-deceased him some years, her ladyship having d. 21 July, 1822,) and was s. in the Barony of Norbury by his eldest son, DANIEL, who d. unm. in 1832, and in the EARLDOM OF NORBURY and Viscounty of Glandine by his 2nd son,

HECTOR-JOHN-GRAHAM, 2nd earl, b. 27 June, 1781; who m. 1 Jan. 1808, Elizabeth, only child and heir of William Brabazon, Esq. of Brabazon Park, co. Mayo, and niece of Sir Anthony Brabazon, Bart., and had issue, vi. Grace, m. 23 April, 1832, to Crofton Moore Vandeleur, Esq. of Kilrush House, co. Clare.

Adeliza-Matilda.

This nobleman succeeded to the honours and estates of the house of Norfolk, as 12th duke, at the decease of his distant relation, Charles,* 11th duke, 16 Dec. 1815; his branch of the Howards had previously fallen into obscurity.

* Both descended from Henry-Frederick, Earl of Arundel, who d. in 1652; the late duke (Charles) from the Hon. Charles Howard, the earl's 4th son; and the present, from the Hon. Bernard Howard, the earl's 8th son, the three intervening sons having, as stated, d. unm., (see lineage.)

Lineage.

This ducal house stands, next to the blood royal, at the head of the peerage of England, and is the chief of the family of Howard, of whose origin Dugdale thus speaks: "There are those, perhaps, who will expect that I should ascend much higher in manifesting the greatness of this honourable and large spreading family of Howard, in regard I do not make any mention thereof above the time of EDWARD I., some supposing that their common ancestor, in the Saxon time, took his original appellation from an eminent office, or command; others, afterwards, from the name of a place. And some have not stuck to derive him from the famous Hereward, the chief conductor of those forces which so stoutly defended the Isle of Ely, for a time, against WILLIAM THE CONQUEROR and his army. But to this last I cannot well assent, by reason that Ingulph, then abbot of Crouland, who was his contemporary, affirms that Hereward left no other issue than an heir female, named Turfrida, wife to Hugh de Evermue, Lord of Deping, co. Lincoln. I shall therefore, after much fruitless search to satisfy myself, as well as others, on this point, begin with William Howard, a learned and reverend judge of the court of Common Pleas for a great part of the reign of EDWARD I. and beginning of that of EDWARD II."

This WILLIAM HOWARD, who was chief-justice of the Common Pleas from 1297 to 1308, had large possessions in Wigenhale, co. Norfolk. He m. twice: 1st, Alice, dau. and heir of Sir Edward Fitton, Knt., by whom he had two sons,

JOHN, his successor.
 William.

And 2ndly, Alice, dau. of Sir Robert Ufford, Knt., but there was no issue of that marriage. Sir William was s. by his elder son,

SIR JOHN HOWARD, Knt. of Wigenhall, one of the gentlemen of the bedchamber to EDWARD I. He m. Joan, sister of Richard de Cornwall; and dying in 1331, was s. by his son,

SIR JOHN HOWARD, Knt., who was constituted, in the 9th of EDWARD III., admiral and captain of the king's navy in the north; and in the following year had an assignation of £153. 7s. 6d. for the wages of himself, with his men at arms, &c., in that service. And the same year, having affairs to transact beyond the seas, the king granted him his protection, dated 24 April, 1337, to be in force till the 1st of Aug. following. Sir John was sheriff of Norfolk in 1345. He m. Alice, dau. of Sir Robert de Boys, and sister and heir of Sir Robert de Boys, of Furseld, in Norfolk, by which alliance the whole inheritance of the Boys's came into the Howard family. Sir John Howard was s. by his grandson,

SIR JOHN HOWARD, (only surviving son of Sir Robert Howard, by Margery, dau. of Robert, Lord Scales,) who was sheriff of the cos. of Essex and Hertford in the reigns of HENRY IV. and HENRY V. He m. 1st, Margaret, dau. and heir of Sir John Plaiz, of Tofte, in Norfolk, and of Stansted, Mountfitchet, in Essex, by whom he had issue,

John, (Sir) who d. in the Holy Land during his father's lifetime (1409), leaving by his wife, Joan, dau. of Sir Richard Walton, Knt., and sister and heir of John Walton, Esq. of Wyvenhoe, in Essex, an only dau. and heir,

Elizabeth, who m. John Vere, Earl of Oxford, and through this lady the Veres acquired the barony of Plaiz, and became co-heirs to that of Scales. (See BURKE'S Extinct Peerage.)

Margaret, m. 1st, to Constantine Clifton, of Buckingham Castle, Norfolk; and 2ndly, to Sir George Talbot.

Sir John m. 2ndly, Alice, dau. and heir of Sir William Tendring, of Tendring, and had two other sons,

ROBERT, (Sir) his successor.

Henry, who had, by gift of his father, the manors of Teringhampton, East Walton, Bockenham, Wigenhall, and other lands in Norfolk. He m. Mary, dau. of Sir Henry Hussey, and left a dau. and heir, Elizabeth, m. to Henry Wentworth, of Codham, Essex.

Sir John d. in 1436, and was s. by his elder surviving son,

SIR ROBERT HOWARD, Knt., who m. Margaret, elder dau. of Thomas de Mowbray, Duke of Norfolk, by Elizabeth, his wife, dau. and co-heir of Richard Fitzalan, Earl of Arundel, and cousin and co-heir of John Mowbray, Duke of Norfolk. By this marriage the inheritance of those great families became, eventually, in part vested in the house of Howard; and by Isabel, the other co-heir, partly in the house of Berkeley. (The above-mentioned Thomas de Mowbray, Duke of Norfolk, was son and heir of John, Lord Mowbray, by Elizabeth, dau. and heir of John, Lord Segrave, and of Margaret Plantagenet, his wife, dau. and heir of Thomas Plantagenet, surnamed de Brotherton, Earl of Norfolk, and marshal of England, the eldest son of EDWARD I., by his 2nd wife, Margaret, dau. of PHILIP THE HARDY, King of France. This Thomas de Brotherton, Earl of Norfolk, was invested with the office of earl-marshal, 12 Feb. 1385-6, being the first so designated, his predecessors having been simply styled marshals.) Sir Robert Howard had by this illustrious alliance, two daughters, Margaret, m. to William Daniel, Baron of Rathwire, in Ireland.

Catharine, m. (2nd wife) to Edward Nevil, Lord of Abergavenny.

And an only son,

SIR JOHN HOWARD, an eminent Yorkist, not only on account of his princely birth (maternally) and magnificent fortune, but from the stations of high trust which at different periods had devolved upon him. After distinguishing himself very early in life in the French wars of HENRY VI., Sir John was constituted by EDWARD IV., in 1461, constable of the castle of Norwich, appointed sheriff of the cos. of Norfolk and Suffolk, and granted some of the forfeited manors of James Butler, Earl of Wiltshire, in England, and of Ormonde, in Ireland. In 1468, being treasurer of the king's household, Sir John Howard obtained a grant of the whole benefit that should accrue to the king by coinage of money in the city and Tower of London, or elsewhere in the realm of England, so long as he should continue in that office. In 1470, when he was summoned to parliament under the title of Lord Howard, he was made captain-general of all the king's forces at sea for resisting the attempts of the Lancastrians, then rallying under Nevil, Earl of Warwick, the Duke of Clarence, and others. In 1471, his lordship was constituted deputy-governor of Calais and the marches adjacent; and his summons to parliament as a baron continued until he was created Earl-Marshal of England, and DUKE OF NORFOLK, 28th June, 1483; when his son and heir, Thomas Howard, was created Earl of Surrey. The duke had been previously invested with the insignia of the Garter. As earl-marshal, his grace was empowered (in the king's presence or absence) to bear a golden staff, tipped at each end with black, the upper part thereof to be adorned with the royal arms, and the lower with those of his own family; and for the better support of the dignity of the said office, he obtained a grant to himself, and his heirs for ever, of £20 annually, payable half-yearly, out of the fee-farm rent of Ipswich, in Suffolk. His grace was subsequently constituted lord-admiral of England, Ireland, and Aquitaine, for life, and obtained grants of divers manors and lordships in the cos. of Suffolk, Kent, Cambridge, Cornwall, Somerset, and Wilts. But he did not long enjoy these great possessions; for the next year, being with RICHARD, at Bosworth Field, he fell in leading the van of that prince's army. His grace was warned by some of his friends to refrain from attending his sovereign to the field; and the night previous to the battle the following distich was set upon his gate:—

"Jockey of Norfolk, be not too bold,
For Dickon, thy master, is bought and sold."

Yet he would not desert his royal master; but as he had faithfully lived under him, so he manfully died by his side. His grace m. 1st, Catherine, dau. of William, Lord Molines, by whom he had issue,

THOMAS, Lord Surrey.

Anne, m. to Sir Edmund Gorges, of Wraxhall, Somersetshire, K.B.

Isabel, m. to Sir Robert Mortimer.

Jane, m. to John Timperky, Esq. of Hintlesham, in Suffolk.

Margaret, m. to Sir John Windham, of Croun Thorpe, and Felbrig, in Norfolk.

His grace espoused 2ndly, Margaret, dau. of Sir John Chedworth, Knt., by whom he had one daughter, Catherine, m. to John Bouchier, Lord Berners.

The duke was attainted by parliament, 7 Nov. 1485, when all his honours became forfeited; while his only son,

THOMAS, Earl of Surrey, being also attainted, lost his earldom. His lordship was, however, after suffering an imprisonment of three years in the Tower, restored in 1489; and created Duke of Norfolk and earl-marshal, 1 Feb. 1514, installed a knight of the Garter, and nominated lord-treasurer. This nobleman was a distinguished military commander, and celebrated, as Lord Surrey, for the victory he had achieved over the Scottish monarch at Flodden, in which that prince (JAMES IV.) fell, 9 Sept. 1513. His grace m. 1st, Elizabeth, dau. and heir of Sir Frederick Tilney, Knt. of Ashwell Thorpe, co. Norfolk, and widow of Sir Henry Bouchier, K.B., son of John, Lord Berners, by whom he had, with other issue,

I. THOMAS, created EARL OF SURREY in the duke's lifetime.

II. Edward, K.G., who acquired great eminence in arms, temp. HENRY VII. and HENRY VIII., and was made king's standard-bearer for life, and admiral of his fleets, by the latter monarch; in which capacity he lost his life in boarding a French vessel off Brest, in action, 25 April, 1513.

III. Edmund, marshal of the horse in the battle of Flodden Field, 5th HENRY VIII.; m. 1st, Joyce, dau. and co-heir of Sir Richard Culpepper, and had issue,

1 HENRY, whose wife, Anne Howard, was attainted with QUEEN CATHERINE HOWARD.

5 CATHERINE, Queen Consort of HENRY VIII.

6 Mary, m. to Edward Trafford, Esq. of Trafford.

7 Joyce, m. to John Stanney, Esq.

8 Isabel, m. Henry Baynton, of Bromham, Wilts.

Lord Edmund wedded 2ndly, Dorothy, dau. of Thomas Troyes, Esq., but had no other issue.

IV. John, (Sir) d. s. p.

V. Elizabeth, m. to Thomas, Viscount Rochford, by whom she was mother of ANNE BOLEYN.

VI. Muriel, m. 1st, to John Grey, Viscount Lisle, and afterwards to Sir Thomas Knevet, Knt. of Bokenham Castle.

His grace espoused 2ndly, Agnes, dau. of Hugh Tilney, Esq., by whom he had,

VII. William, ancestor of the LORDS HOWARD of Effingham.

VIII. Thomas, who, aspiring to the hand of Lady Margaret Douglas, dau. of MARGARET, Queen of Scotland, and niece of HENRY VIII., was attainted of treason, and died a prisoner in the Tower of London, in 1536.

IX. Anne, m. to John Vere, Earl of Oxford.

X. Dorothy, m. to Edward Stanley, Earl of Derby.

XI. Elizabeth, m. to Henry Ratcliffe, Earl of Sussex.

XII. Catherine, m. 1st, to Sir Rhese ap Thomas, K.G.; and 2ndly, to Sir Henry Daubeney, Earl of Bridgewater.

The duke d. 21 May, 1524, and was s. by his eldest son,

THOMAS, 3rd duke; who was attainted in 1546, when his honours became forfeited; but he was restored in 1553, and installed a knight of the Garter. His grace m. 1st, the Princess Anne, 3rd dau. of EDWARD IV., but had no surviving issue; and 2ndly, Elizabeth, dau. of Edward Stafford, Duke of Buckingham, by whom he had,

HENRY, K.G., Earl of Surrey, one of the brightest ornaments of the house of Howard, whose iniquitous and savage execution was the last tyrannical act of HENRY VIII. This distinguished statesman, poet, and warrior, Sir Egerton Brydges thus characterizes,—"Excellent in arts and in arms; a man of learning, a genius, and a hero; of a generous temper and a refined heart; he united all the gallantry and unbroken spirit of a rude age with all the elegance and grace of a polished era. With a splendour of descent, in possession of the highest honours and abundant wealth, he relaxed not his efforts to deserve distinction by his personal worth. Conspicuous in the rough exercises of tilts and tournaments, and commanding armies with skill and bravery in expeditions against the Scots under his father, he found time, at a period when our literature was rude and barbarous, to cultivate his mind with all the exquisite spirit of the models of Greece and Rome, to catch the excellences of the revived muses of Italy, and to produce in his own language composition, which, in simplicity, perspicuity, graceful ornaments, and just and natural thought, exhibited a shining contrast with the works of his predecessors, and an example which his successors long attempted in vain to follow." The Earl of Surrey underwent the penalty of his unjust sentence during the lifetime of his father, (whom the death of the tyrant preserved from the same fate,) 20 Jan. 1546, leaving issue by his wife, Frances, dau. of John Vere, Earl of Oxford,

THOMAS, successor to his grandfather.

His grace d. 18 July, 1554, and was s. by his grandson,

THOMAS, 4th duke, K.G.; who m. 1st, Mary, dau. and eventually heir of Henry Fitz-Alan, Earl of Arundel, (see BURKE'S Extinct and Dormant Peerage), by whom he had an only son, PHILIP; and 2ndly, Margaret, dau. and heir of Thomas, Lord Audley, of Walden, by whom he left two sons,

Thomas, who s. to the Barony of Walden, in right of his mother, and was created Earl of Suffolk.

William, from whom the Earl of Carlisle (see that dignity), and Henry Howard, Esq. of Corby Castle. (See BURKE'S Commoners.)

This nobleman shared the fate of his distinguished father; for being attainted of high-treason for his communication with MARY, QUEEN OF SCOTS, he was beheaded in 1572, when all his honours became forfeited. His eldest son,

PHILIP, however, inherited, in right of his mother, the feudal Earldom of Arundel, as owner of Arundel Castle, in Sussex, with the Baronies of Fitz-Alan, Clun, Oswaldestrie, and Maltravers, and was summoned to parliament as Earl of Arundel; but being attainted in 1590, he died a prisoner in the Tower in 1595, leaving by his wife, Anne, sister and co-heir of Thomas, Lord Dacre, of Gillesland, an only son,

THOMAS, b. 7 July, 1592; who being deprived by his father's attainder of the honours and the greatest part of the estates of his family, had only the title of Lord Maltravers by courtesy during QUEEN ELIZABETH'S reign; but was restored, by act of parliament, in the 1st year of JAMES I. (1603) to all such titles of honour and precedence as Philip, Earl of Arundel, lost by his attainder, as also to the honour, state, and dignity of Earl of Surrey; and to such dignity of baronies as Thomas, Duke of Norfolk, lost by his attainder; * created Earl-Marshal in 1621, and Earl of Norfolk, 6 June, 1644. His lordship m. Lady Alethea Talbot, dau. and co-heir of Gilbert, 7th Earl of Shrewsbury,† and had issue,

James, Lord Mowbray and Maltravers, K.B.; d. unm.

William, K.B., m. Mary, sister of Henry, 12th Lord Stafford. (See Baron Stafford.)

* Though he was restored by the said act to all the honours dependent on the title of Earl of Arundel, yet he was not to all possessions; the baronies of Clun and Oswaldestrie, in Shropshire, the ancient inheritance of the Fitz-Alans, Earls of Arundel, having been given to his great-uncle, the Earl of Northampton, and by him transferred to his nephew, Thomas, Earl of Suffolk, and his posterity.

* GILPIN, speaking of the fire at Worksop, in 1761, mentions the rebuilding it as a singular instance of the spirit, perseverance, and disinterestedness of this nobleman. "It had belonged formerly to the Earl of Shrewsbury, and was gone much into decay; but the duke liking the situation, and conceiving it to be a good centre house to his great estates in these parts, resolved to restore it to its ancient splendour. He was now in years, but for the advantage of his heir, Edward Howard, he engaged in the work, and having fitted it up in a very noble manner, at the expense of £30,000, he was just preparing to take possession, when, on 22 Oct. 1761, a fire left carelessly in the library caught hold of the flooring of the apartment, and communicating itself with great rapidity to the other chambers, the whole edifice, and all its valuable furniture, pictures, and books, were burnt to the ground. The loss was estimated at £100,000. Such a catastrophe one should have imagined might have checked the duke's further designs in building, but it only roused him. Almost before the ashes of the old house were cold he engaged again in building a new one; and taking his young heir in his hand, he laid the foundation-stone of a most magnificent pile on 25 March, 1763. It was to consist of a centre and two wings. With this work he went on so rapidly, that the centre part, as it now stands, which is itself a complete palace, extending 300 feet, was finished in 1765. At that time, Mr. Edward Howard dying, the duke, who only built for him, dropt all further thoughts of completing the design." The fire of 1671 deprived the Dukes of Norfolk of one of the most splendid palaces in England; the sale by Bernard, 12th duke, in 1838, deprived them of the manor of Worksop altogether.

NORMANBY.

NORMANBY, MARQUESS OF, (Constantine-Henry Phipps, F.S.A.,) Earl of Mulgrave, Viscount Normanby, and Baron Mulgrave, of Mulgrave, all in the co. of York, in the peerage of the United Kingdom; and Baron Mulgrave, of New Ross, in the co. of Wexford, in the peerage of Ireland; s. as 2nd Earl of Mulgrave, at the decease of his father, 7th April, 1831; and was created Marquess of Normanby, by letters patent, dated 23 June, 1838; b. 15 May, 1797; m. 12 Aug. 1818, the Hon. Maria Liddell, eldest dau. of Thomas-Henry, 1st Lord Ravensworth, and has an only child,

GEORGE-AUGUSTUS-CONSTANTINE, Earl of Mulgrave, an officer in the Scotch fusileer-guards; b. 23 July, 1819.

The marquess was constituted lord-lieutenant of Ireland in 1835; and of his government, the advancement of his excellency in the peerage at the coronation of the queen is probably the highest and most flattering testimonial of approbation which royalty could bestow. He retired from the lieutenancy in 1839, and was constituted principal secretary of state for the colonies.

Lineage.

SIR WILLIAM PHIPPS, who received the honour of knighthood from KING JAMES II., was a distinguished mathematician, and the inventor of the diving-bell, by which he was enabled to recover from the wreck of a Spanish galleon an immense treasure. He was subsequently appointed governor of Massachusetts, and d. there, 18 Feb. 1694, leaving a son and heir,

NORTHE SK.

NORTHE SK, EARL OF, (William-Hopetoun Carnegie,) and Baron Rosehill and Inglismaldie, in the peerage of Scotland; b. 16 Oct. 1794; s. as 8th earl, at the demise of his father, 28 May, 1831.

Lineage.

In the reign of KING DAVID II., Walter Maule granted to John Balinhard a charter of the lands of Carnegie, in the barony of Panmure, co. Forfar, and thence the said John assumed the surname of "CARNEGIE." From him descended

SIR ROBERT CARNEGIE, of Kinnaird, who obtained very considerable territorial grants between the years 1535 and 1563. Sir Robert was one of the senators of the college of Justice, and ambassador to France in 1551. He d. in Jan. 1565, leaving a large family; the second son of which,

DAVID CARNEGIE, of Panbride, m. Elizabeth, dau. and heir of William Ramsay, of Coluthie, by whom he acquired that and other estates. He was, according to Archbishop Spottiswood, "a wise, peaceable, and sober man, in good credit and estimation with the king, and taken into the privy-council for his skill and knowledge in civil affairs." In 1595, he was constituted one of the eight commissioners of the Treasury, called OCTAVIANS; and dying in 1598, left by his first wife, mentioned above, two daus.; and by a second, Eupheme, dau. of Sir John Wemyss, of Wemyss, four sons and three daus., of the two elder of whom we have more immediately to treat:

DAVID (the elder), his successor, was created Lord Carnegie, of Kinnaird, 14 April, 1616, in which year he was constituted one of the extraordinary lords of Session; and elevated to the Earldom of Southesk, 22 June, 1633; honours which expired under the attainder of James, 5th earl, who was involved in the insurrection of 1715; at whose decease, in 1729, the representation of his branch of the family devolved upon Sir James Carnegie, Bart. of Pitcarrow, (see that dignity), great-grandson of the Hon. Sir Alexander Carnegie, Bart., 4th son of the 1st Earl of Southesk.

SIR JOHN CARNEGIE (2nd son of David, of Panbride) obtained from his father the lands of Aithie, Cuickstoun, &c., in the co. of Forfar, of which he had a charter, 1 March, 1595-6; and was elevated to the peerage, 20 April, 1639, as Lord Lour; and advanced, 1 Nov. 1647, to the dignity of Earl of Ethie, which titles his lordship exchanged, after the Restoration, for those of Baron Rosehill, of Rosehill, and EARL OF NORTHE SK. of Launceston. Her Grace of Northumberland was governess to her majesty when Princess Victoria.

Lineage.

The house of Percy was founded in England by one of the Norman chieftains (William de Percy) who accompanied WILLIAM THE CONQUEROR, in 1066; and it derives the name from the village of Percy, near Villedieu. The family of Percy, of Normandy, deduced its pedigree from Geoffrey, (son of Mainfred, a Danish chieftain,) who assisted Rollo, in 912, in subjugating that principality, and acquired considerable possessions there.

WILLIAM DE PERCY being high in favour with the victorious duke, obtained, according to Madox, in his "Baronia Anglica," a barony of thirty knights' fees from that monarch in his new dominions, and thus became a feudal lord of the realm from the Conquest. This Lord William de Percy, who was distinguished amongst his contemporaries by the addition of Alsgernons, (William with the Whiskers,) whence his posterity have constantly borne the name of Algernon, restored, or rather refounded, the famous abbey of St. Hilda, in Yorkshire, of which his brother, Serlo de Percy, became first prior. Accompanying, however, Duke Robert in the first crusade, 1096, he died at Mountjoy, near Jerusalem, the celebrated eminence whence the pilgrims of the cross first viewed the holy city, leaving four sons and two daus. by his wife, Emma de Port, a lady of Saxon descent, whose lands were amongst those bestowed upon him by the CONQUEROR, and, according to an ancient writer, "he wedded hyr that was very heire to them, in discharging of his conscience." His lordship was s. in his feudal rights and possessions by his eldest son,

ALAN DE PERCY, 2nd baron, surnamed the GREAT ALAN; who m. Emma, dau. of Gilbert de Gaunt, (which Gilbert was son of Baldwin, Earl of Flanders, and nephew of QUEEN MAUD, wife of WILLIAM THE CONQUEROR,) and was s. by his eldest son,

WILLIAM DE PERCY, 3rd baron; at whose decease the eldest branch of the first race of Percys, from Normandy, became extinct in the male line, and their great inheritance devolved upon his lordship's two daus., (by Alice de Tunbridge, dau. of Richard, Earl of Clare, who was usually styled De Tunbridge, from his castle of that name,) the LADIES MAUD and AGNES DE PERCY, successively;

MAUDE DE PERCY, the elder, was 1st wife of William de Newburgh, Earl of Warwick, by whom (who d. in the Holy Land, A.D. 1184) she had no issue. Her ladyship d. in 1204-5, and then the whole possessions of the Percys descended to the family of her sister,

AGNES DE PERCY, who m. Josceline, of Lovain, brother of QUEEN ADELICIA, 2nd wife of HENRY I., and son of Godfrey Barbatus, Duke of Lower Lorraine, and Count of Brabant, who was descended from the Emperor CHARLEMAGNE. Her ladyship would only consent, however, to this great alliance upon condition that Josceline should adopt either the surname or arms of Percy; the former of which he accordingly assumed, and retained his own paternal coat, in order to perpetuate his claim to the principality of his father, should the elder line of the reigning duke, at any period, become extinct. The matter is thus stated in the great old pedigree, at Sion House: "The ancient arms of Hainault this Lord Jocelin retained, and gave his children the surname of Percei." Of this illustrious alliance there were several children; of whom,

- I. HENRY DE PERCY, the eldest son, who appears to have died before his mother, m. Isabel, dau. of Adam de Brus, Lord of Skelton, with whom he had the manor of Levington, for which he and his heirs were to repair to Skelton Castle, every Christmas-day, and to lead the lady of the castle from her chamber to the chapel to mass, and thence to her chamber again, and after dining with her, to depart. This Henry left two sons,

- 1 WILLIAM, of whom presently.

- 2 Henry, ancestor of the Percys of Hessel, Sussex.

- II. RICHARD DE PERCY, the youngest son of Agnes and Josceline, got possession of the entire property of his aunt, Maud, Countess of Warwick, and even of a great proportion of that of his mother, and retained the same during the principal part of his life; at length, subsequently to infinite litigation, it was settled between him and his nephew, William de Percy, to whom the inheritance belonged, after a solemn hearing before the king in person, 6 July, 1234, (18th HENRY III.,) that the estates should be divided into equal portions between the parties during Richard's life; and that after his death, all the ancient patrimony of the Percy family should devolve upon his nephew aforesaid; a small reservation having been made for Richard's son and heir, Henry de Percy. This Richard de Percy continued for the whole of his life at the head of the family, and enjoyed all its baronial rights. He was one of those powerful feudal lords who took up arms, in 1215, against KING JOHN, and having a principal hand in extorting the GREAT CHARTER of English freedom, was chosen one of the twenty-five guardians to see the MAGNA CHARTA duly observed. He d. about 1244, and then his nephew,

WILLIAM DE PERCY, came into full possession of all those rights and properties which had been usurped at the decease of his mother, but did not live long to enjoy them. He d. in 1245, and was s. by his son, (by his 2nd wife, Elena, dau. of Ingelram de Balliol, by whom he acquired, in dower, Dalton, afterwards called Dalton Percy, in the Bishopric of Durham,)

HENRY DE PERCY, who m. Alianore, dau. of John Plantagenet, Earl of Warren and Surrey; and dying in 1272, was s. by his only surviving son,

HENRY DE PERCY, 9th feudal lord, who was summoned to parliament from 6 Feb. 1299, (27th EDWARD I.) to 29 July, 1315, (8th EDWARD II.) This nobleman obtained, 19 Nov. 1309, from Anthony Beck, Bishop of Durham, by purchase, a grant of the barony of Alnwick, co. Northumberland. His lordship was one of the great barons who subscribed, in 1301, the celebrated letter to POPE BONIFACE VIII., upon the attempt of his holiness to interpose in the affairs of the kingdom, intimating, "That their king was not to answer in judgment, for any rights of the crown of England, before any tribunal under heaven, &c., and that, by the help of God, they would resolutely, and with all their force, maintain against all men."* He d. in 1315, and was s. by his eldest son,

HENRY DE PERCY, 2nd Lord Percy, of Alnwick. This nobleman had a grant from the crown, in the 2nd of EDWARD III., of the reversion of the Barony and castle of Warkworth, &c. He had summons to parliament from 1322 to the time of his death, 26 Feb. 1351-2, when he was s. by his eldest son, (by Idonia, dau. of Robert, Lord Clifford,)

HENRY DE PERCY, 3rd Lord Percy, of Alnwick; who, in the lifetime of his father, had participated in the glories of Cressy, (26 Aug. 1346.) His lordship m. 1st, in her ladyship's 14th year, the Lady Mary Plantagenet, dau. of Henry, Earl of Lancaster, which Henry was son of Edmund, Earl of Lancaster, Leicester, &c., second son of HENRY III.; by this marriage his lordship had two sons,

HENRY, his successor.

Thomas, created, in 1397, Earl of Worcester, K.G., a very eminent warrior and statesman in the reigns of EDWARD III., RICHARD II., and HENRY IV. (See BURKE'S Extinct and Dormant Peerage.)

His lordship m. 2ndly, Joan, dau. and heir of John de Orbey, of Lincolnshire, one of the barons in the reign of EDWARD III., by whom he left one dau., Mary, who m. John, Lord Ros, of Hamelake, but d. s. p. in 1395. He d. 17 June, 1368, and was s. by his elder son,

HENRY, 4th Lord Percy, of Alnwick; a distinguished military commander in the reign of EDWARD III., who assisting as marshal of England at the coronation of RICHARD II., was advanced on the same day, 16 July, 1377, to the Earldom of Northumberland, with remainder to his heirs generally; and, like a barony in fee, transmissible, it would appear, to female as well as male heirs. His lordship m. 1st, Margaret, dau. of Ralph, Lord Nevill, of Raby, and had issue,

- I. HENRY, (Sir) the renowned Hotspur, so celebrated by all our historians. He fought the famous battle of OTTERBOURN, near the Cheviot Hills, in Northumberland, (Chevy Chase,) where James, Earl of Douglas, was slain, and himself and his brother, Sir Ralph Percy, made prisoners. He m. Philippa, dau. of Edward Mortimer, Earl of March, by Philippa, dau. and heir of Lionel Plantagenet, Duke of Clarence, and falling at the battle of Shrewsbury, in 1403, left issue,

- 1 HENRY, who inherited as 2nd Earl of Northumberland.

- 2 Elizabeth, m. 1st, to John, Lord Clifford; and 2ndly, to Ralph, Earl of Westmorland.

- II. Thomas, (Sir) m. Elizabeth, elder dau. and co-heir of David Strabolgi, Earl of Atholl, by whom (who m. 2ndly, Sir Henry Scrope) he had issue,

Henry, who left two daus., viz.,

Elizabeth, m. 1st, to Thomas, Lord Burgh; and 2ndly, to Sir William Lucy.

Margaret, m. 1st, to Lord Grey, of Codnor; and 2ndly, to Richard, Earl of Oxford.

- III. Ralph, (Sir) m. Philippa, the other dau. and co-heir of David Strabolgi, Earl of Atholl; but d. s. p.

- IV. Alan.

- V. Margaret.

The earl espoused 2ndly, MAUD, sister and heir of Anthony, Lord Lucy, which Anthony settled upon his lordship and his heirs the honour and castle of Cockermouth, with other great estates, on condition that the arms of his sister should be for ever quartered with those of the Percys. In the 7th year of the same monarch, the earl having been elected one of the knights of the Garter, the king bestowed upon him the robes of the order out of the royal wardrobe. In some years afterwards, however, being proclaimed a traitor, and his lands declared forfeited by KING RICHARD, his lordship, in conjunction with his son, Sir Henry Percy, and Henry, Duke of Lancaster, effected the dethronement of that monarch, and placed the crown upon the head of Henry, Duke of Lancaster, under the title of HENRY IV. Again dissatisfied with the government, the duke is charged with concerting the Rebellion, in which his son, HOTSPUR, and his brother, the Earl of Worcester, engaged, in 1403, for transferring the sceptre to Mortimer, Earl of March, then a boy. Of these two eminent persons Sir Henry Percy fell, performing prodigies of valour, at Battle-field, near Shrewsbury, 21 July, 1403; and Thomas Percy, Earl of Worcester, was beheaded, after the battle at Shrewsbury. The Earl of Northumberland fell subsequently, (29 Feb. 1407-8,) in arms against the king, at Bramham Moor, near Halsewood, when his honours became forfeited under an attainder, but were restored, in 1414, to his grandson,

HENRY PERCY, 2nd Earl of Northumberland; who m. Lady Eleanor Nevil, dau. of Ralph, 1st Earl of Westmorland, and Joan de Beaufort, dau. of John of Gaunt, and aunt of HENRY V. Of this nobleman and his countess and their issue, the following account is given in a very curious MS. preserved in the British Museum, and there said to be extracted "Ex Registro Monasterij de Whitby:" "Henry Percy, the son of Sir Henry Percy that was slayne at Shrewesbery, and of Elizabeth, the dau. of the Erle of Marche, after the death of his father and graunt-syre, was exiled into Scotland in the time of HENRY V.: by the labour of Johanne, the Countess of Westmorland, (whose dau., Alianor, he wedded in coming into England,) he recovered the king's grace and the co. of Northumberland, so was the 2nd Earl of Northumberland. And of this Alianor, his wife, he begat IX sonnes and III daus., whose names be Johanne, that is buried at Whitby; Thomas (created) Lord Egremont; Katheyne Gray, of Ruthyn, (wife of Edmund, Lord Grey, afterwards Earl of Kent;) Sir Raffe Percy; William Percy, a Byshopp; Richard Percy; John, that died without issue; another John, (called by Vincent, in his MS. Baronage, at the Herald's office, John Percy, senior, of Warkworth;) George Percy, clerk; Henry, that dyed without issue; besides the eldest sonne and successor, Henry, 3rd Erle of Northumberland." His lordship, who was lord-high-constable, fell at the battle of St. Albans, 23 May, 1455, under the banner of HENRY VI., and was s. by his eldest surviving son,

HENRY, 3rd earl; who m. Eleanor, dau. and sole heir of Richard Poynings, who d. in the lifetime of his father, Lord Poynings; by which marriage the Baronies of Poynings, Fitzpayne, and Bryan, came into the family of Percy; and Sir Henry Percy was summoned to parliament, while his father, the Earl of Northumberland, yet lived, (29th HENRY VI.,) as Baron Poynings. His lordship fell, leading the van of Lancasterians, sword in hand, at the battle of Towton, 29 March, 1461, and his honours became subsequently forfeited by an act of attainder, but were restored to his only son,

HENRY, 4th earl, K.G.; who was confined in the Tower of London from the death of his father until the 27th Oct. 1469, when, being brought before EDWARD IV., at his palace of Westminster, he subscribed an oath of allegiance, and was restored to his freedom and dignity, although the reversal of his father's attainder does not appear upon the rolls of parliament. The king had previously created John, Lord Montague, Earl of Northumberland; but, upon the re-establishment of the rightful earl, Lord Montague was created Marquess of Montague. This Henry, 4th earl, fell a victim, in 1489, to the avarice of HENRY VII. In that year, parliament having granted the king a subsidy for carrying on the war in Bretagne, the Earl of Northumberland, as lord-lieut. of his county, was empowered to enforce the same; but the tax causing a general commotion, his lordship wrote to inform the king of the discontent, and praying an abatement; to which HENRY peremptorily replied, "that not a penny should be abated;" which message being delivered incautiously by the earl to the populace, who had assembled to complain of their grievances, they broke into his house, (supposing him to be the promoter of their sufferings,) Cocklodge, in Yorkshire, and murdered his lordship and some of his attendants, 28 April, 1489. The earl was s. by his eldest son,

HENRY-ALGERNON, 5th earl, K.G.; who m. Catherine, dau. and co-heir of Sir Robert Spencer, Knt. of Spencer-Combe, Devon, (by Eleanor, his wife, dau., and at length co-heir, of Edmund Beaufort, Duke of Somerset,) and had issue,

This nobleman entertained a strong and early passion for the beautiful ANNE-BOLEYN, but, urged by the irresistible influence of HENRY VIII., his father compelled him to renounce all intention of making that lady his wife, and to espouse the Lady Mary Talbot, dau. of George, Earl of Shrewsbury. His lordship d. without issue, in 1537, and his brother, Sir Thomas Percy, having been previously attainted and executed, all the honours of the family became forfeited, and the title of Duke of Northumberland was conferred, by EDWARD VI., upon John Dudley, Earl of Warwick; but that nobleman having forfeited his life and honours by treason against QUEEN MARY, in 1553, her majesty was pleased to advance, by letters patent, dated 30 April, 1557,

THOMAS PERCY, son of the attainted Sir Thomas Percy, to the degree of a baron, by the titles of Baron Percy, of Cockermouth, Baron Poynings, Lucy, Bryan, and Fitz-Payne; and on the day following, his lordship was created Earl of Northumberland, with remainder to Henry Percy, his brother, &c. His lordship m. Anne, 3rd dau. of Henry Somerset, 2nd Earl of Worcester, and had one son and four daus., viz.,

Thomas, who d. young in 1560.

Jane, m. to Lord Henry Seymour.
Mary, prioress of the English nunnery at Brussels.

This nobleman having conspired against QUEEN ELIZABETH, was beheaded at York, 22 Aug. 1572, (avowing the pope's supremacy, and affirming the realm to be in a state of schism, and those obedient to ELIZABETH no better than heretics,) when his honours would have fallen under his attainder, but for the reversionary clause in favour of his brother,

HENRY PERCY, who s. as 8th earl. His lordship m. Katherine, eldest dau. and co-heir of John Nevill, Lord Latimer, by whom he had eight sons and three daus.,

The earl having been committed to the Tower for participating in a supposed plot in favour of MARY, Queen of Scots, was found dead in his bed there, wounded by three bullets from a pistol, 21 June, 1585, when he was s. by his eldest son,

HENRY, 9th earl, K.G. This nobleman, after every effort to involve him in the gunpowder plot proved in vain, was "cast (says Osborne) into the star chamber," by which he was sentenced to a fine of £30,000, with imprisonment in the Tower during his majesty's pleasure, and actually suffered several years' incarceration. His lordship m. Dorothy, sister of QUEEN ELIZABETH's favourite, Essex, and widow of Sir Thomas Perrot, Knt., and had (with two daus., Dorothy, m. to Robert Sidney, 2nd Earl of Leicester, by whom she was mother of Algernon Sidney, the patriot; and Lucy, m. to James Hay, Earl of Carlisle) two sons, ALGERNON and HENRY. His lordship dying 5 Nov. 1632, was s. by his eldest surviving son,

ALGERNON, 10th earl, K.G.; who had been summoned to parliament, in the lifetime of his father, as Baron Percy. This nobleman took an active part, during the civil wars, against CHARLES I., but was entirely free of any participation in his murder. He subsequently promoted the Restoration. His lordship d. 13 Oct. 1668, and was s. by his only son, (by Lady Elizabeth Howard, 2nd dau. of Theophilus, 2nd Earl of Suffolk,)

CHARLES II. created, in 1674, his 3rd natural son, by the Duchess of Cleveland, George Fitzroy, Earl, and afterwards Duke of Northumberland; but that nobleman dying without issue, in 1716, those dignities expired. In the meantime, one James Percy,* a trunk-maker, claimed the honours of the Percy

* CLAIM OF JAMES PERCY,

(KNOWN AS THE TRUNK-MAKER,)

To the honours and estates of the family of Percy, extracted from a case addressed to CHARLES II.

The claimant deduced his descent from

SIR INGELRAM PERCY, 3rd son of Henry, 5th earl, who, he alleged, left two sons, HENRY and Robert. The elder, family, and so annoyed the House of Lords, that their lordships at last sentenced him to wear a paper in Westminster Hall, declaring him "A false and impudent pretender to the Earldom of Northumberland."

LADY ELIZABETH PERCY, only surviving child and heir of Joceline, 11th and last earl, s. to the baronial honours of her ancestors, and was, in her own right, Baroness Percy, Poynings, Fitzpayne, Bryan, and Latimer. Her ladyship m. 1st, when only fourteen years of age (1679), Henry Cavendish, Earl of Ogle, (son and heir of Henry, Duke of Newcastle,) who assumed the name of Percy; but his lordship d. without issue, 1 Nov. 1680, and her ladyship m. 1682, (3rdly, it is stated, but she appears to have been only contracted to Thomas Thynne, Esq. of Longleat, who was assassinated, 12 Feb. 1681-2,) Charles Seymour, Duke of Somerset, who also assumed, by preliminary engagement, the surname and arms of Percy, but from that stipulation he was released when her grace attained majority. By this marriage the duchess had thirteen children; the eldest surviving of whom,

ALGERNON SEYMOUR, was summoned to parliament, in 1722, on the death of his mother, as Baron Percy. His lordship inherited the Dukedom of Somerset in 1741; and was created Baron Warkworth, of Warkworth Castle, co. Northumberland, and Earl of Northumberland, 2 Oct. 1749, with remainder to

SIR HUGH SMITHSON, Bart., (see "Family of Smithson," at foot,) who had married his grace's dau., the Lady Elizabeth Seymour, and who succeeded to those honours upon the demise of the duke, in 1750, obtaining, in the same year, an act of parliament to allow himself and his countess to assume the surname and arms of PERCY. His lordship was installed a knight of the Garter in 1757; and created Earl Percy and DUKE OF NORTHUMBERLAND, 18 Oct. 1766. His grace obtained the Barony of Louvaine, of Alnwick, with remainder to his 2nd son, Lord Algernon Percy, by patent, dated 28 Jan. 1784. He d. in 1786, and was s. by the eldest son,

HUGH, 2nd duke, K.G., b. 14 Aug. 1742, who succeeded to the baronies in fee upon the decease of his mother. He m. 1st, 2 July, 1764, Anne, dau. of John, Earl of Bute, which marriage produced no issue, and was dissolved, by

HENRY PERCY, m. the dau. of one Tibbott, and had three sons, James, William, and HENRY. The two elder d. unm.; but the younger,

Henry, who d. young.

JAMES, the trunk-maker, and claimant to the PERCY HONOURS.

Henry, d. young.

JAMES PERCY, the claimant, arrived in England to prosecute his claim in 1670, and entered the same in the signet-office, 3 Feb. 1671. In 1674, he brought an action at law against one John Clerk, for scandal, in declaring that he had been an impostor, &c.; but upon the trial he was nonsuited, owing, he declares, to the collusion of his attorney; and he states that the Lord-Chief-Justice Hales, dissatisfied with the decision, stood up, and said aloud, in open court, "that the claimant had proved himself a true Percy, by father, mother, grandfather, and grandmother, and of the blood and family of the Percys of Northumberland; and that he did verily believe the claimant was cousin and next male heir to Joceline Percy, late Earl of Northumberland, only he was afraid he had taken the descent a little too late;" and Lord Hales is further stated to have said, when entering his coach, to Lord Shaftesbury, "I verily believe he (James Percy) hath as much right to the Earldom of Northumberland as I have to this coach and horses, which I have bought and paid for." The claimant brought a subsequent action against another of his adversaries, one Wright, for slander, in declaring his illegitimacy, &c., and the case was tried before Lord-Chief-Justice Rainsford, when, having proved his legitimacy and pedigree, he had a verdict for £300 damages. After this he appears to have had a long litigation in the Exchequer, with Edward Craister, Esq., sheriff of Northumberland, for the £20 annual rent out of that shire attached to the earldom; and it must be owned, that all the difficulties which wealth and power could devise, were thrown in the way of anything like a fair decision of the merits of the case.

BARONIES IN FEE.

Through various alliances of the ancient Percys.

SIR HARRIS NICOLAS, in his very able SYNOPSIS, comes to the following conclusions regarding the baronies supposed to be vested in his Grace of Northumberland:—

1. That according to the fair deduction from modern decisions, the ancient BARONY OF PERCY, created by writ of summons, 6 Feb. 1299, became extinct on the death of Henry-Algernon, 6th earl, in 1537.

2. That the BARONY OF PERCY, of Cockermouth and Pelworth, with the Baronies of Poynings, Lucy, Bryan and Fitzpayne, created by the patent of 30 April, 1557, became EXTINCT on the death of Joceline, 11th earl, in 1670.

3. That Algernon Seymour, afterwards Duke of Somerset, and 1st Earl of Northumberland, was erroneously placed in the precedence of the ancient barony on being summoned to parliament in 1722.

4. That Hugh Percy, grandson of the said Duke and Baron Percy, jure matris, and Hugh, present Duke of Northumberland, were likewise erroneously placed in the precedence of the original barony.

5. That the only Barony of Percy vested in his grace, Hugh, present Duke of Northumberland, is the barony in fee, created by writ of summons to his great-grandfather, ALGERNON SEYMOUR, in 1722.

Family of Smithson.

The family of Smithson derives its surname from an ancient town in the North Riding of Yorkshire, called Smithton or Smethton, in which district the Smithsons have possessed considerable estates since the Conquest.

In Domesday-Book the name is written Smethton, and MALGRUM DE SMETHTON held a manor there.

Lineage.

This family paternally derives from the ancient Milesian sept of O'Reilly, princes of Lower Brefney. Of the O'Reillys, Gough, in his additions to Camden, makes the following observations:—"Whence Mr. Camden received his information that the O'Reillys derive from the Riddleys does not concern us to inquire. Spencer falls into a similar error; he derives the Mac Mahons from the Veres of England, because the one in Latin, and the other in Irish, have some affinity in sound to the name of bour pig in those languages; but both are equally the impositions of etymology. Before the English got footing in Ireland, the O'Reillys of Cavan, the Mac Mahons of Monagan, the Mac Guires of Fermanagh, the O'Donels of Donegal, with other chieftains in their own septs, were tributaries to O'Nial, of Ter Oen. Such of the descendants of those chieftains as I have conversed with seem rather to glory in their Milesian extraction. When Hugh O'Nial threw off his allegiance to QUEEN ELIZABETH, he also threw off the title of Earl of Tyrone, saying, that 'he would rather be O'Nial of Ulster, than King of Spain.'"

Lineage.

This is a junior branch of the family of Ogilvie, of Innerquharity (barts.), springing from

ANDREW OGILVIE, son of Sir John Ogilvie, the first possessor of the barony of Innerquharity; from whom we pass to his lineal descendant,

I. GEORGE OGILVIE, Esq., who m. Elizabeth, dan. of the Hon. John Douglas, of Barras, co. Kincardine, which estate he afterwards purchased from his brother-in-law, Sir John Douglas. During the civil wars, Mr. Ogilvie, who had been for many years an officer in the king's service, was nominated lieut.-governor of the fort and castle of Dunottar, wherein the regalia of Scotland had been deposited; and although obliged, after a protracted siege, to surrender to the arms of the Usurper, Captain Ogilvie contrived, nevertheless, to preserve those invaluable insignia of royalty in security until the restoration of the monarchy. The regalia were removed from the castle prior to its surrender by Mrs. Grainger, the wife of Mr. James Grainger, Minister of Kinnese, who passed through the besieging army, attended by a servant, with a bundle of flax upon her back, in which lay concealed the crown, sword, and sceptre of Scotland. After the Restoration, Captain Ogilvie delivered up those valuable ensigns to the earl-marischal, and was created, in consideration of his fidelity and sufferings, a Baronet of Nova Scotia, 5 March, 1661, obtaining a warrant, at the same time, to the Lord-Lyon, to matriculate his coat of arms in the Lyon register conformable to the blazon therein stated; in which he was allowed to bear a crowned thistle, the royal badge of Scotland, with the motto—"Præclarum regi et regno servitium." Margaret-Elizabeth-Catherine-Augusta.

His lordship, for many years a member of the Commons' House of Parliament, was raised to the peerage in 1836. He is lord-lieut. of the co. of Mayo.

Lineage.

This family of BROWNE originally sprang, there is strong reason to believe, from the Montgomerys of England, and the supposition is thus sustained:—

Philip, one of the youngest sons of Roger de Montgomery, Earl of Shrewsbury, held lands in BALDWINSTOWN, in Wales, and bore for arms, arg., an eagle, displayed, az. Several of the first invaders of Ireland were descendants of those who had acquired lands in South Wales by conquest; and from the exact similarity of arms, and from the circumstance of the Irish Brownes having named their castle in the county of Wexford, Balwinstown, it is not at all improbable that the Montgomerys were their original progenitors. From

SIR WILLIAM LE BRUN, Knt., who witnessed a charter of Herve de Montmorency to the abbey of Dunbrothy, in Wexford, immediately after the conquest of Ireland, in 1170, descended,

SIR NICHOLAS LE BRUNE, OR BROWNE, Knt., lord of Mulrankan, in Wexford, living in 1296 and in 1320, whose son,

REGINALD BROWNE, of Mulrankan, in Wexford, was father of

NICHOLAS BROWNE, of Mulrankan, summoned, in 1345, to attend the lord-justice of Ireland with horse and arms, among the other gentlemen of the county of Wexford. He was s. by his son,

JOHN BROWNE, of Mulrankan, grandfather of

SIR MATTHEW BROWNE, Knt. of Mulrankan, living in 1435, who m. Cardula, dau. of Sir John Hore, Knt. of Shandon Castle, co. Waterford, by Elinor, his wife, dau. of Richard, Lord Le Poer, of Curraghmore, and was ancestor of the Brownes of Mulrankan, and of the Brownes of Castle Macgarrett, whose late representative,

DOMINICK-GEOFFREY BROWNE, Esq. of Castle Macgarrett, b. in Aug. 1755, m. in 1785, Margaret, dau. and heir of the Hon. George Browne, 4th son of the 1st Earl of Sligo, and had issue,

SIR JOHN DE WALPOL, living temp. HENRY III., left three sons,

HENRY, his successor.

William.

Ralph, in holy orders, elected Bishop of Norwich in 1288, and translated to the See of Ely by the Pope, in regarding a successor to that bishopric, at the decease of William de Luda.

Sir John was s. by his eldest son,

their degree, to pass with the king beyond seas, "for their own honour, and the safety of their king and kingdom,"

Lineage.

The EARLDOM OF ORKNEY was claimed by

HENRY SINCLAIR, eldest son of Sir William Sinclair, of Roslyn, and Isabel, his wife, dau. and co-heir of Malise, Earl of Strathern, Caithness, and Orkney; and his claim was admitted by HAKON, 6th King of Norway, in 1379, but his investiture was burdened with severe conditions. He was considered as being appointed governor and Earl of Orkney by an absolute grace of the king; was bound to serve him with 100 men completely armed, when required; to defend Orkney against any invasion with the whole power of his house, &c. From this period the earldom remained in the family of Sinclair, until JAMES III. having acquired the islands of Orkney in marriage with Margaret of Denmark, in 1469, William Sinclair, 3rd Earl of Orkney, resigned the earldom the next year into his majesty's hands, and it was annexed to the crown by act of parliament, in 1471; the late earl being styled instead, Earl of Caithness and Lord Sinclair. The Orkneys thenceforward conferred no dignity until the year 1567, when

JAMES HEPBURN, 4th Earl of Bothwell, was created Duke of Orkney, 12 May, in that year, three days after his marriage with MARY, Queen of Scots, but he forfeited all his honours in the December following.

ROBERT STEWART, natural son of JAMES V., abbot of Holyrood House, but who conformed to the protestant faith in 1559, had a grant of the crown lands of Orkney and Zetland in 1565, and was created EARL OF ORKNEY in 1581. He m. LADY JANE KENNEDY, eldest dau. of Gilbert, 3rd Earl of Cassilis, and had issue,

Robert Stewart, of Eday, who m. Miss Isabella Graem, of Graemshall, and left a dau., Jane, m. to Robert Richan, Esq. of Linklater, head of an ancient and distinguished Danish family, which settled in the Orkneys in the 9th century. He was s. by his eldest surviving son,

PATRICK STEWART, 2nd earl; who was condemned for high-treason, and beheaded at the market-cross of Edinburgh, 6 Feb. 1614. He d. s. p., and his estates and honours were forfeited to the crown; the former of which, KING JAMES VI. granted to Bishop Law.

So much for the extinct Lords Orkney; we now proceed with the extant.

LORD GEORGE HAMILTON, 5th son of Lord William Douglas, (created Duke of Hamilton for life,) by Anne, Duchess of Hamilton, was elevated to the peerage of Scotland, 3 Jan. 1696, by the titles of Baron Dechmont, Viscount Kirkwall, and EARL OF ORKNEY, to him and the heirs male of his body; which failing, to the heirs whatsoever of his body. His lordship m. 25 Nov. 1695, Elizabeth, eldest dau. of Sir Edward Villiers, knight-marischal of England, and sister of Edward, 1st Earl of Jersey, by whom he left at his demise, in 1737, three daus. The 2nd, Frances, married the Earl of Scarborough;* and the youngest, Harriet, married John, Earl of Cork and Orrery.† The Earl of Orkney was a celebrated military commander, and distinguished himself in the wars between JAMES and WILLIAM, in Ireland; and subsequently participated in the brilliant triumphs of the reign of QUEEN ANNE. ORMONDE.

ORMONDE, MARQUESS OF, (John Butler,) Earl of Ormonde and Ossory; Viscount Thurles, of Thurles, co. Tipperary; and Baron Arklow, of Arklow, in the peerage of Ireland; Baron Ormonde, of Llanthony, co. Monmouth, in the peerage of the United Kingdom; b. 24 Aug. 1808; inherited as 2nd marquess, at the decease of his father, 18 May, 1838.

Lineage.

The antiquity of this family is indisputable; but its origin is not so clearly established. The surname, however, admits of no doubt, as springing from the chief-butlerage of Ireland,* conferred by HENRY II. upon

THEOBALD WALTER, in 1177, who had accompanied him into that kingdom in 1171. This Theobald was eldest son of Herveus Walter, (one of the companions of the CONQUEROR,) by Maud de Valois, and brother of Hubert, Archbishop of Canterbury in 1193, (translated from the see of Salisbury while a prisoner in the Holy Land,) and subsequently chancellor, chief-justice, and treasurer of England. Theobald Walter having returned to England, afterwards accompanied Prince JOHN into Ireland, anno 1185. He was possessed of the baronies of Upper Ormond, Lower Ormond, and numerous other territories; and dying in 1206, was s. by his only son, (by his wife, Maud, dau. and heir of Robert Vavasour, a great Baron of Yorkshire,)

THEOBALD, who first assumed the surname of Le Botiler, or Butler, in 1221, and was appointed lord-justice of Ireland in 1247. He m. Joan, eldest sister and co-heir of John de Marisco, a considerable baron in Ireland, to whose estates in that kingdom and in England his posterity succeeded; and dying in 1248, was s. by his eldest son,

THEOBALD LE BOTILER, who m. Margery, eldest dau. of Richard de Burgo, (ancestor of the Lords Clanricarde,) by whom he acquired a considerable accession of landed property, and was s. by his son,

THEOBALD, 4th butler; who sat as a baron in the parliament of Ireland, and assisted EDWARD I. in his wars in Scotland. He m. Joan, eldest dau. of John Fitz-Geoffry, Lord of Kirtling and Baron of Berkhamstead, lord-justice of Ireland, and youngest son of the famous Geoffry Fitzpiers, Earl of Essex and lord-justiciary of England, by

* For a very interesting account of the hereditary office of "CHIEF-BUTLER," and of the ORMONDE FAMILY, see "A View of the Legal Institutions &c. of Ireland, by the late William Lynch, Esq., F.S.A.;" decidedly the ablest work, as yet published, upon the feudal dignities of that kingdom. PRINCE JOHN confirmed the grant of butlerage upon the wines imported into Ireland to Theobald Walter; and when confirming and enlarging the incorporation charters of Ireland, he reserved, according to Mr. Lynch, a privilege, "That out of each ship that thither should happen to come, his officer (meaning Lord Theobald, who is styled 'Pincerna' in those charters) might choose two hogsheads of wine for his use for forty shillings; that is to say, for twenty shillings each hogshead, and nothing more, unless at the pleasure of the merchant."

whom he had a numerous family. This Lord Theobald, who obtained a grant from EDWARD I. of the prize of wines in Ireland,* d. in 1285, and was s. by his eldest son,

THEOBALD, 5th butler; who sat in parliament as a baron, his name appearing 5th upon the roll. He d. unm. in 1299, and was s. in his barony and estates by his brother,

EDMOND. This feudal lord received the honour of knighthood in London, in 1309. In 1312, he was appointed lord-deputy of Ireland; in 1314, chief-governor, under the title of lord-justice; and on the 1st Sept. 1315, created Earl of Carrick-Mac-Griffyne. His lordship m. in 1302, Joan, dau. of John, 1st Earl of Kildare, by whom, with two daus., he left three sons,

JAMES, his successor.

John, from whom the present Earl of Carrick derives.
Lawrence.

The earl going on a pilgrimage into Spain, to the shrine of St. James of Compostella, died after his return to London, 13 Sept. 1321, and was s. by his eldest son,

JAMES, 2nd Earl of Carrick and 7th butler. This nobleman was a minor at the decease of his father, but obtained licence in four years after, for the sum of 2000 marks, to marry whomsoever he pleased; he accordingly wedded Eleanor, 2nd dau. of Humphrey de Bohun, 4th Earl of Hereford and Essex, HIGH-CONSTABLE of England, by Elizabeth, dau. of EDWARD I.; and was created, in consequence of this alliance, by EDWARD III., 2 Nov. 1328, Earl of Ormonde. His lordship had a renewed grant of the prize of wines, (which had been resumed by the crown,) and a grant of the regalities, liberties, &c., of the co. Tipperary, with the rights of a palatine in that county for life. He d. 6 Jan. 1337-8, and was s. by his elder son,

JAMES, 2nd Earl of Ormonde, called the Noble Earl, on account of being great-grandson of EDWARD I. In 1359 and 1360, his lordship was appointed lord-justice of Ireland; and dying in 1382, was s. by his son, (by Elizabeth, dau. of Sir John Darcy, lord-justice of Ireland,)

JAMES, 3rd earl; who by building and making the castle of Gowran his usual residence, was commonly called Earl of Gowran. His lordship purchased, in 1391, the castle of Kilkenny, from the heirs of Sir Hugh le de Spencer, Earl of Gloucester, (an edifice erected in the beginning of the 13th century, by William, earl-marshal,) which he made his chief place of abode, and which has ever since been so considered by the head of the family. In 1392, 1401, and 1404, his lordship was lord-justice of Ireland. He m. Anne, dau. of John, Lord Welles, and had issue,

JAMES, his successor.

Richard, (Sir) of Polestown, co. Kilkenny, m. Catharine, dau. of Gildas O'Reilly, lord of the co. of Cavan, and was s. by his son,

Edmund, (Sir) who was s. by his son,

James, (Sir) m. Sabina, dau. of Donald Reogh Mac Murrough Cavenagh, prince of his sept; and dying in 1487, left, with other issue,

PIERCE, of whom hereafter, as 8th Earl of Ormonde.

His lordship d. in 1405, and was s. by his elder son,

JAMES, 4th earl; who was called the White Earl, and esteemed a very learned personage. His lordship prevailed upon HENRY V. to create a king-of-arms in Ireland, by the title of Ireland king-of-arms, (a designation altered by HENRY VIII. to Ulster king-of-arms,) and he gave lands for ever to the heralds' college. He was lord-justice of Ireland in 1407, and again in 1440, in which latter year he had a grant of the temporalities of the See of Cashel for ten years after the death of the archbishop, Richard O'Hedian. His lordship m. 1st, Joan, dau. of Gerald, 5th Earl of Kildare, by whom he had three sons, successive earls, and two daus.; and 2ndly, in 1432, Elizabeth, dau. of William Beauchamp, Lord Bergavenny, and widow of John, Lord Grey, of Wilton. He d. in 1452, and was s. by his eldest son,

JAMES, 5th earl; who was created by HENRY VI., 8 July, 1449, for his fidelity to the Lancastrian interest, Earl of Wiltshire, in the peerage of England. In 1451, he was made lord-deputy of Ireland; and the next year, succeeding his father in the title of ORMONDE, was appointed lord-lieutenant for ten years. In 1455, he was constituted LORD-HIGH-TREASURER OF ENGLAND, and afterwards made a knight of the Garter. Falling into the hands of the Yorkists, after the battle of Towton, his lordship was beheaded, at Newcastle, 1 May, 1461, when the Earldom of Wiltshire expired, as would that of Ormonde, the earl's brother and heir being also at the battle of Towton, and in consequence attainted, had not EDWARD IV. restored him in blood, and so enabled him to succeed as

JOHN, 6th Earl of Ormonde. This nobleman was considered one of the first gentlemen of the age in which he lived; and EDWARD IV. is reported to have said, "that if good breeding and liberal qualities were lost in the world, they might be all found in the Earl of Ormonde." He was complete master of the languages of Europe, and was sent ambassador to its principal courts. He d. in 1478, in the Holy Land, having, in a fit of devotion, made a visit to Jerusalem, and was s. by his brother,

THOMAS, 7th earl; who was also attainted, but restored by HENRY VII.'s first parliament, in November, 1485, and the statutes made at Westminster, 1st EDWARD IV., which declared him and his brothers traitors, were utterly abrogated. He was afterwards sworn of the privy-council of England, and had summons to parliament, 14 Nov. 1495, as Lord Rochford. He d. in 1515, leaving two daughters, (by his wife, Anne, dau. and heir of Sir Richard Hankford,) who inherited the English estates, namely,

ANNE, m. to Sir James St. Leger.

MARGARET, m. to Sir William Boleyn, K.B., by whom she had,

THOMAS, (Sir) who was created, 18 June, 1525, Baron and Viscount Rochford, and 29 Nov. 1527, Earl of Wiltshire and Ormonde, all in the peerage of England. His lordship m. Elizabeth, dau. of Thomas, Duke of Norfolk, and had,

GEORGE BOLEYNE, Lord Rochford, beheaded 17 May, 1536.

ANNE BOLEYNE, m. 25th January, 1532, to HENRY VIII., by whom she had an only dau., ELIZABETH, who ascended the British throne. The fate of the unhappy ANNE BOLEYNE* is so well known, as hardly to require the statement that she suffered decapitation, 19 May, 1536.

Mary Boleyn, m. to William Cary, and had,

WILLIAM, Lord Hunsden.

At the demise of Earl Thomas, in 1515, the peerage passed to his kinsman,

SIR PIERCE BUTLER, as 8th Earl of Ormonde, (refer to second son of 3rd earl;) but this nobleman was obliged to relinquish it to Thomas, Viscount Rochford, (see descendants of 7th earl.) In consideration of which abandonment, however, Sir Pierce was created by HENRY VIII., 23 Feb. 1527-8, Earl of Ossory. Soon after this, he returned to Ireland, where he was chosen lord-deputy by the council, and proceeding through the city on horseback to St. Mary's Abbey, was there sworn into office. Thomas Boleyn, Earl of Ormonde, dying s. p. in 1537, the king restored the Earl of Ossory to his original title of Ormonde. He m. Margaret, second dau. of Gerald, 8th Earl of Kildare, (which lady was called the Good Countess of Ormonde;) and had, with other issue,

JAMES, his successor.

Margaret, m. 1st, to Rory O'More, of Leix; and 2ndly, to Sir Maurice Fitzgerald, of Lackagh.

* This grant was purchased, in 1810, from Walter, Marquess of Ormonde, for £216,000; and the contract received the sanction of parliament by an act passed 31 May, 1811.

* For a more particular account of the Boleynes, see BURKE'S Extinct and Dormant Peerage.

His lordship d. in 1539, and was s. by his eldest son,

JAMES, 2nd Earl of Ossory, who had been created, in 1535, Viscount Thurles; and was subsequently restored, by act of parliament, 6 Nov. 1541, to the Earldom of Ormonde, as 9th earl. His lordship m. Joan, dau. and heir of James, 11th Earl of Desmond, and had seven sons, viz.,

THOMAS, Viscount Thurles.

Edmund, (Sir) of Roscrea and Clougrenan.

John, of Kilcash, m. Catherine, dau. of Cormac M'Carty Reagh, and left, in 1570, with two daus.,

Walter, of Moyalliffe.

James.

Edward, of Cloghinche, co. Tipperary.

Pierce, of Grantstown, in Tipperary, and of Leix Abbey.

His lordship d. 17 Oct. 1546, (by poison administered at a supper at Ely House, Holborn,) and was s. by his eldest son,

THOMAS, 10th Earl of Ormonde and 3rd Earl of Ossory, called, from the darkness of his complexion, the "Black Earl." This nobleman was the first of his family who conformed to the church of England. He was educated at the court of England, and stood high in the estimation of QUEEN ELIZABETH, by whom, in 1559, he was constituted LORD TREASURER OF IRELAND. The right of this earl to the butlerage having been denied by the merchants of Wexford, from whom his servants had demanded "twoe tonnes of sacke" as his prizage on a certain cargo of Spanish wines there imported, his lordship, when pleading his right to the butlerage, alleged that such office and prizage was in him and his ancestors from time immemorial, that it was subsequently confirmed to them by divers royal grants therein specified, and that the duty consisted of "one choyse tonne of Wyne out of every shippe or bottome arriving, and containyng nyne tonnes of Wynes, and twoe choyse tonnes of every shippe or bottome so arriving, and containyng twenty tonnes of Wynes, or upwards." His lordship d. in 1614, and leaving (by his 2nd countess, Elizabeth, dau. of John, 2nd Lord Sheffield) one surviving child only, ELIZABETH, who, through the influence of KING JAMES, was married to Sir Richard Preston, Baron Dingwall in Scotland, and Earl of Desmond in Ireland, the honours devolved upon,

He m. Lady Frances Touchet, youngest dau. of Mervin, Earl of Castlehaven, and had issue,

This nobleman, for his fidelity to the house of Stuart, and his eminent services in the royal cause, was elevated at the restoration of the monarchy, 23 March, 1661, to the DUKE-DOM OF ORMONDE, in Ireland; and enrolled amongst the peers of England, in 1673, as Baron Butler, of Llanthony, and Earl of Brecknock; and created, in 1682, Duke of Ormonde, also in England. His grace was appointed lord-lieut. of Ireland in 1661, and continued in that high office until 1668. He m. his cousin, Lady Elizabeth Preston, BARONESS DINGWALL,* and had surviving issue,

I. THOMAS, the "gallant EARL OF OSSORY," who was summoned by writ to the parliament of England, in 1665, as LORD BUTLER, of More Park. appointed a lord of the bedchamber in 1685; and serving in the army, participated in the victory over the unfortunate Duke of Monmouth, at Sedgemore. He was afterwards, however, one of the first to join the standard of the Prince of Orange; and when that prince ascended the throne, his grace obtained the Garter, and was constituted HIGH-CONSTABLE OF ENGLAND for the coronation. He attended WILLIAM into Ireland, was at the Boyne, and subsequently entertained his majesty most sumptuously at his castle in Kilkenny. In 1693, he was at the battle of Landen, where he received several wounds, and had a horse shot under him. In 1702, his grace was constituted, by QUEEN ANNE, COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF of the land forces sent against France and Spain, when he destroyed the French fleet, sunk the Spanish galleons in the harbour of Vigo, and took the fort of Redondella, for which important services he received the thanks of both houses of parliament. In 1711, he was declared CAPTAIN-GENERAL and COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF of the land forces in Great Britain, or which were, or should be, employed abroad in conjunction with the troops of the allies; which post he held till the treaty of Utrecht, in 1713; in which year he was made warden of the cinque ports, and constable of Dover Castle. But in two years afterwards, (GEORGE I. having in the interim succeeded to the throne,) his grace was impeached (21 June, 1715) of high-treason, and having retired into France, was attainted, when his estates became forfeited, his (English) honours EXTINGUISHED, and parliament passed an act, which annulled the regalities and liberties of the County Palatine of Tipperary, vested his lands in the crown, and proclaimed a reward of £10,000 for his apprehension, should he attempt to land in Ireland. But the same parliament passed also an act (24 June, 1721) to enable the duke's brother, the Earl of Arran, to purchase the estate, which his lordship did accordingly. This great but unfortunate nobleman m. 1st, Anne, dau. of Laurence, Earl of Rochester, but that lady died issueless. His grace espoused 2ndly, Mary, eldest surviving dau. of Henry, 1st Duke of Beaufort, and left one surviving child,

MARY, m. in 1710, to John, Lord Ashburnham; and d. s. p. in 1712.

The duke resided in his exile chiefly at Avignon, he had a pension from the court of Spain of 2000 pistoles, and d. 16 Nov. 1745, when his remains were brought into England, 22 May, 1746, and deposited in the family vault, in HENRY VIII.'s chapel, Westminster Abbey. At this period, it was supposed that the duke's honours were all forfeited under the act of attainder passed by the English parliament; but it was subsequently decided, that no proceeding of the English legislature could affect Irish dignities. According to that decision, his grace's brother,

CHARLES, Earl of Arran, was really 14th Earl of Ormonde and 3rd Duke of Marquess; but his lordship never enjoyed, assumed, or was aware of possessing those dignities. He m. Elizabeth, 4th and youngest dau. of Thomas, Lord Crew, of Stene, but had no issue. He d. 17 Dec. 1758, when his own honours became EXTINGUISHED, with the Marquessate and Dukedom of Ormonde. The Scottish BARONY OF DINGWALL passed from the BUTLER family to the heir of the Prestons, in which it is now certainly vested, and the Irish EARLDOM OF ORMONDE and Viscounty of Thurles, supposed to have fallen under the English attainder, became dormant, in which state those honours remained, until restored, in 1791, by the decision of the House of Lords in Ireland, to

JOHN BUTLER, Esq. of Garryricken, (revert to the descendants of Richard Butler, Esq. of Kilcash, 2nd son of Walter, Lord Thurles, son of Walter, 11th earl,) as 17th Earl of Ormonde. His lordship m. 26 Feb. 1769, Lady Anne Wandesford, dau. and sole heir of John, last Earl of Wandesford, (who d. in 1784,) and by that lady had issue,

Mr. Charles Butler obtained permission for himself and his heirs, by sign-manual, in 1820, to assume the additional surname of CLARKE after BUTLER; and in June, 1830, by a similar licence, those of WANDES-FORD and SOUTHWELL, and to bear the arms of those families quarterly with his present ensigns.

Lineage.

The family of Harley can be traced to a period antecedent to the Conquest; and its station was then so eminent, that the great house of Harlai, in France, deduces its origin from the Harleys of England.

SIR ROBERT DE HARLEY (eldest son of Sir Richard de Harley, Knt., who d. about the 13th of EDWARD II.) m. Margaret, eldest dau. and co-heir (with her sister, Elizabeth, wife of Sir Richard de Cornwall, son of Richard, Earl of Cornwall, King of the Romans, brother of KING HENRY III.) of Sir Bryan de Brampton; by which marriage he acquired a great estate and the seat of Brampton Castle, which has continued ever since the chief residence of his descendants. His great-grandson,

SIR JOHN HARLEY, of Brampton Castle, received the honour of knighthood from EDWARD IV., on the field of battle at Gaston, near Tewkesbury, 9 May, 1471; and was sheriff of Shropshire in the 21st year of the same monarch. From him lineally descended

THOMAS HARLEY, Esq.* of Brampton Castle, who was born about the year 1543, and obtained a grant from KING JAMES I. of the honour and castle of Wigmore, co. Hereford. He m. Margaret, dau. of Sir Andrew Corbet, Knt. of Morton Corbet; and dying in 1631, was s. by his only surviving son,

SIR ROBERT HARLEY, K.B., M.P. for the co. Hereford. This gentleman had a grant, 12 Sept. 1626, of the office and offices of master and worker of moneys to be coined in the Tower of London during his life, with a salary of £4000 a-year; but, after the murder of the king, refusing to coin with any other than the die of the deceased monarch, he was removed by parliament. Sir Robert m. 1st, Anne, dau. of Charles Barret, Esq. of Belhouse, Essex; 2ndly, Mary, dau. of Sir Francis Newport; by neither of whom, however, had he any issue to survive; and 3rdly, Brilliana, (so christened from Brill, of which her father was governor at the time of her ladyship's birth,) dau. of Edward, Viscount Conway, by Dorothy, dau. of Sir John Tracy, of Todington, co. Gloucester, and sister to Mary, wife of the celebrated General Sir Horace Vere, Lord Vere, of Tilbury, (by which alliance the Harleys became connected with the Veres, Earls of Oxford, Holles's, Earls of Clare, and other ancient families.) Lady Brilliana Harley was celebrated for her gallant defence of Brampton Castle, during the civil wars, when invested, in 1643, by the rebels, whom she forced to raise the siege after seven weeks' of unavailing hostility. Her ladyship dying, however, in the October following, the besiegers returned to the castle, which, after a second gallant resistance, being forced to surrender, was burnt to the ground. Sir Robert Harley d. 6 Nov. 1656, and was s. by his eldest son,

COL. SIR EDWARD HARLEY, member for the co. Hereford in the parliament which restored CHARLES II., by whom he was appointed governor of Dunkirk. Sir Edward m. 1st, in 1654, Mary, daughter of Sir William Button, of Parkgate, by whom he had four daus.; and 2ndly, Abigail, dau. of Nathaniel Stephens, Esq. of Essington, co. Gloucester, by whom he had (with other issue),

ROBERT, of whom presently, as Earl of Oxford.

Edward, of Eyewood, co. Hereford, M.P., m. Sarah, 3rd dau. of Thomas Foley, Esq. of Whitley, co. Worcester, and had,

EDWARD, who s. to the Earldom of Oxford.

Robert, M.P., recorder of Leominster; d. unm. in 1774.

Abigail, m. to the Hon. John Verney, master of the Rolls.

Col. Sir Edward Harley d. 8 Dec. 1700, and was s. by his eldest son,

ROBERT HARLEY, Esq., b. 5 Dec. 1661. This gentleman was first returned to parliament for Tregony, in Cornwall; and afterwards, in 1690, for the town of Radnor, which he continued to represent so long as he remained a commoner. On the 11th of Feb. 1700-1, Mr. Harley was elected speaker of the House of Commons. In 1704, he was sworn of the privy-council and constituted one of the principal secretaries of state, filling the speaker's chair at the same time. In 1710, he was appointed chancellor of the Exchequer. About this period, Mr. Harley had a miraculous escape from assassination, having been stabbed with a penknife by the Marquess of Guiscard, then under examination before a committee of the privy-council at Whitehall. On the 24th May, 1711, the right hon. gentleman was elevated to the peerage by the titles of Baron Harley, of Wigmore, co. Hereford, EARL OF OXFORD, and EARL OF MORTIMER, with remainder, in default of male issue, to the heirs male of his grandfather, Sir Robert Harley, knight of the Bath; and 29 May, in the same year, his lordship was constituted lord-high-treasurer of England. The earl m. 1st, Elizabeth, dau. of Thomas Foley, Esq. of Whitley Court, co. Worcester, by whom he had,

* Jane, sister of this Thomas Harley, of Brampton, m. Roger Mynors, Esq. of Treago, ancestor of PETER RICKARDS-MYNORS, Esq., now of Treago. (See BURKE'S Commoners, vol. i. p. 36.)

His lordship m. 2ndly, Sarah, dau. of Thomas Middleton, Esq., but had no other issue. On the 10th of June, 1715, Lord Oxford was impeached by the Commons of high-treason, and was committed to the Tower by the House of Lords, where he suffered imprisonment until 1 July, 1717, when he was acquitted, after a public trial by his peers. His memory is celebrated by Pope in the following lines:—

“A soul supreme, in each hard instance tried,
Above all pain, all anger, and all pride,
The rage of power, the blast of public breath,
The lust of lucre, and the dread of death.”

The earl d. 21 May, 1724, and was s. by his only son,

EDWARD, 2nd earl. This nobleman devoted himself much to literature, and the country is indebted to him for the celebrated collection so well known as the Harleian Miscellany, purchased by parliament from the countess, in 1754, after the earl's decease, and deposited in the British Museum. His lordship m. 31 Oct. 1713, Lady Henrietta-Cavendish Holles, only dau. and heir of John Holles, last Duke of Newcastle of that family, (the dignity expired in 1713,) by whom he had an only dau. and heir, Margaret-Cavendish, who m. in 1734, William, 2nd Duke of Portland. His lordship is SECRETARY OF STATE FOR FOREIGN AFFAIRS, a lord of Trade and Plantations, a commissioner of the India Board, a keeper of the signet, and an official trustee of the British Museum.

Lineage.

The TEMPLES, from whom this family paternally, and the present ducal house of Buckingham and Chandos maternally, descend, are said to have been of Saxon origin, and to have sprung immediately from the son and heir of Algar, Earl of Mercia,

EDWYN, who was deprived of the earldom by the CONQUEROR, and killed in defending himself against the Normans in 1071. This Edwyn left a son,

EDWYN, styled Earl of Leicester and Coventry, who is said to have assumed the surname of TEMPLE from the manor of Temple, in the hundred of Sparkenhoe, Wellesborough, "which manor (says Burton, in his Leicestershire) was given by the old Earls of Leicestershire to the knights-templars, who usually gave the name of Temple to their lands, and they granted it to one whose family was called Temple, of great account and livelihood in those parts." Be this, however, as it may,

HENRY DE TEMPLE was Lord of Temple and Little Shepey in the reign of the CONQUEROR, and from him descended

THOMAS TEMPLE, of Whitney, co. Oxford, whose great-grandson,

PETER TEMPLE, received, in the last year of Edw. VI., a grant of the manor of Marston-Boteler, in the co. Warwick, and purchased, in 1560, the right which Laurence Denet had therein. This Peter being likewise lord of the manor of Stowe, co. Bucks, his descendants fixed their residence there. He received the honour of knighthood, 4 May, 1622, from the Lord-Deputy St. John, and was appointed one of the masters in Chancery. Sir William m. Martha, dau. of Mr. Robert Harrison, of the co. Derby, by whom he had two sons, and was s. in Jan. 1627, by the elder,

SIR JOHN TEMPLE, Knt., b. in 1600, who was constituted master of the Rolls in Ireland, and sworn of the privy-council there. He filled, for a series of years, high and confidential places in the government of Ireland; and was appointed, in 1648, joint-commissioner of the great seal with Sir William Parsons. He joined, however, the standard of CROMWELL, but was nevertheless retained as master of the Rolls after the Restoration, when he was constituted vice-treasurer of Ireland. He m. Mary, dau. of John Hammond, M.D. of Chertsey, in Surrey, and had two surviving sons, viz.,

His lordship espoused 2ndly, in 1822, Miss Elizabeth Barton, but has no other issue. This nobleman, who is the 2nd son of George Ramsay, 8th Earl of Dalhousie, having inherited, through his grandmother, JANE MAULE, dau. of the Hon. Harry Maule, of Kellie, the estates of the Earls of Panmure, changed his paternal surname and arms for those of the family of MAULE, and obtained his peerage by letters patent, dated 9 Sept. 1831.

Lineage.

The ancient family of MAULE was of French extraction, their surname having been assumed from the town and lordship of MAULE, in the Vexin François, eight leagues from Paris, a lordship which belonged to the lords of that name for four centuries. Roger, last Lord of Maule, was slain at the battle of Nicopolis, in Hungary, fighting against the Turks, anno 1398, and his coat of arms was set up in the Parisian cathedral of Notre Dame. His only dau. and heir espoused Simon de Morainvilliers, Lord of Flaccourt.

ROBERT DE MAULE, attaching himself to David, Earl of Huntingdon, afterwards DAVID II., removed into Scotland with that monarch, and obtained broad lands in Lothian, by grants from the crown. From this Roger we pass to his descendant,

SIR PETER DE MAULE, who m. about the year 1224, Christian, only dau. and heir of William de Valoniis,* of Panmure, with whom he got the baronies of Panmure and Benvie, with other lands, both in England and Scotland, and by whom he had two sons, viz.,

WILLIAM, his successor.

Thomas, (Sir) who was governor, in 1303, of the castle

* The family of VALONIIS was one of the most eminent established by the CONQUEST.

PETER DE VALONIIS acquired from his victorious chief no less than fifty-seven lordships in the cos. Essex, Norfolk, Suffolk, Hertford, Cambridge, and Lincoln. He was high-sheriff of Essex in 1087, and fixed his residence at the Castle of Orford, in Suffolk, which he had erected. He obtained from HENRY I. the manors of Essenden and Begeford, and the mills of Hertford; of which grants his son,

ROGER DE VALONIIS, had a confirmation from the EMPRESS MAUD. This Roger had six sons, viz.,

Peter, who d. s. p.

The fifth son,

The son,

WILLIAM DE VALONIIS, d. in 1219, leaving an only dau. and heir,

of Brechin, the only fortress that interrupted the course of the conquests of EDWARD I. Sir Thomas Maule was a soldier of acknowledged intrepidity and boldness, of great vigour and bodily strength; and his resistance to the power of England was strenuous, valiant, and obstinate. He fell, mortally wounded, however, and the garrison of Brechin capitulated the day after.

The elder son,

SIR WILLIAM DE MAULE, of Panmure, held the office of sheriff of Forfarshire at the death of ALEXANDER III., and swore fealty to EDWARD I. at St. Andrews, 10 July, 1292. He m. Ethama, dau. of John Vaux, Lord of Dirletoun; the great-grandson of this marriage,

SIR WILLIAM MAULE, of Panmure, espoused Marion, only child of David Fleming, of Biggur, and grandaun., maternally, of SIR DAVID BARCLAY, of BRECHIN. From this Sir William we pass (over two centuries at least) to his descendant,

PATRICK MAULE, of Panmure, who s. his father in 1600; and dying in five years afterwards, was s. by his only son,

PATRICK MAULE, of Panmure, who accompanied KING JAMES VI. into England, in 1603, and was appointed one of the gentlemen of the bedchamber to that monarch; an office which he afterwards held under CHARLES I., who constituted him keeper of the palace and park of Eltham, and sheriff of the co. Forfar. He subsequently adhered with great fidelity to the king in his troubles, and was engaged in all the battles fought by his majesty; for which services he was elevated to the peerage of Scotland, 3 Aug. 1646, as Baron Maule, of Brechin and Navar, and EARL OF PANMURE. His lordship m. thrice; but had issue by his 1st wife, Frances, dau. of Sir Edward Stanhope, of Grimston, co. York, only. He d. 22 Dec. 1661, and was s. by his elder son,

JAMES, who s. his brother.

Harry, of Kelly. This gentleman was a member of the convention of estates in 1689, but retired from the assembly when he discovered the determination to dethrone JAMES II. He subsequently joined the banner of the CHEVALIER ST. GEORGE, in 1715, and died at Edinburgh, in 1734. He m. 1st, in 1695, Lady Mary Fleming, only dau. of William, 1st Earl of Wigton, and had surviving issue,

GEORGE RAMSAY, 8th Earl of Dalhousie, whose 2nd son,

WILLIAM RAMSAY, assumed, as already stated, the surname and arms of MAULE, and is the present LORD PANMURE.

Mr. Maule, of Kelly, espoused 2ndly, Anne, dau. of the Hon. Patrick-Lindsay Crawford, of Kilbirney, and had, with other issue,

Lineage.

Fuller says, that the Pilkingtons were originally of Rivington, co. Lancaster, and a right ancient family; that they were gentlemen of repute in the shire before the Conquest, at which time, the chief of the house being sought after by the Norman soldiery, was fain to disguise himself as a thrasher in a barn; from which circumstance, partly alluding to the head of the flail falling sometimes on the one, and sometimes on the other side, and occasionally on himself, he took for the motto of his arms "Now thus! now thus!" The first of the family we find upon record is

LEONARD PILKINGTON, of Pilkington Tower, co. Lancaster, living in the reign of HENRY I.; from him descended

The RIGHT REV. LEONARD PILKINGTON, fellow of St. John's College, Cambridge, and Bishop of Durham in 1560. In 1569, the northern rebels coming to Durham, tore the Bible and English Liturgy into pieces, and the bishop would most probably have shared a similar fate could they have found him. His lordship subsequently instituted a suit at law against QUEEN ELIZABETH, for the lands and goods of the rebels attainted in the bishopric, and would have succeeded had not parliament interfered, and adjudged these forfeitures, "pro hoc tempore," to the crown. From this learned prelate we pass to

THOMAS PILKINGTON, Esq. of Nether Bradley, co. York, (the 12th in lineal descent from the 1st Leonard,) who m. Barbara, dau. of Lionel Reresby, Esq. of Thriberg, near Rotherham, and was s. by his son,

Lineage.

This family is descended from a common ancestor with the Fitzgeralds and Fitzmaurices of Ireland, and the Carews of Cornwall; namely,

WALTER FITZ-OTHO, warden of the forests in Berkshire and castellan of Windsor in the time of WILLIAM THE CONQUEROR; which Walter was descended from Othoere, a rich and powerful lord, mentioned in the appendix to the Life of KING ALFRED, as living in that monarch's reign. Walter Fitz-Otho left at his decease three sons,

WILLIAM, his successor.

Robert, Lord of Eston, or Estains, in Essex, whose line terminated with an heiress, his granddaughter, who m. Robert de Hastings.

Gerald, sent as capt.-gen. by HENRY II. against Rhese, Prince of South Wales, whose dau., Nesta, after the submission of that prince, he married, and from that marriage descended the Geraldts, the Fitz-Maurices, the Fitz-Geraldts, &c.

Walter Fitz-Otho was s. at his decease, in the wardenship of the forest of Berkshire, and the governorship of the castle of Windsor, by his eldest son,

WILLIAM, who bore the name of Windsor, as also Fitz-Walter, and was a baron of very extensive possessions. He was s. by his eldest son,

WILLIAM DE WYNDESORE, a powerful baron, temp. HENRY II., from whom descended,

SIR RICHARD DE WYNDESORE, of Stanwell, co. Middlesex, M.P. for that shire, 26th and 33rd of EDWARD I., and again, 2nd, 5th, and 6th EDWARD II. Sir Richard d. in the 19th year of the latter reign, seised of the manors of Stanwell, Middlesex, and West-Hakeburn, Berks, also the ward of the castle of Windsor, and was s. by his son,

RICHARD DE WYNDESORE, of Stanwell, who had issue by his 2nd wife, Julian, dau. and co-heir of James Mulyns, co. Southampton,* two sons,

JAMES, his successor.

William, (Sir) a person of great military renown, who was constituted by EDWARD III. his lieutenant in Ireland, in the 49th year of that king's reign. This William married the celebrated Alice Perrers, of whom Barnes, in his History of the reign of EDWARD III., says, "That, being a person of extraordinary beauty, she was, in the 48th of EDWARD III., made lady of the sun, and rode from the Tower of London, through Cheap-side, accompanied with many lords, knights, and ladies, every lady leading a lord or a knight by his horse's bridle, till they came into West Smithfield, where presently began solemn justs, which held for seven days together."† Sir William was summoned to parliament as a baron, 4th RICHARD II., and died in the 8th year of the same monarch, without issue, (see BURKE'S Extinct and Dormant Peerage, article Windsor.)

Richard de Wyndesore d. in 1367, and was s. by his elder son,

SIR JAMES DE WYNDESORE, of Stanwell, who m. Elizabeth, dau. and co-heir of Sir John Strehie, Knt. of Wombro', in Wilts; and dying 44th EDWARD III., was s. by his only son,

SIR MILES WINDSOR, Knt., who was knighted before 1383, when he appeared on that great trial at Chester, on 30 Sept., before John of Gaunt, in relation to the bearing of the coat-of-arms then in contest between Scrope and Grosvenor. He m. Alice, dau. of Adam de Wymondham, of Wymondham, co. Norfolk, and was s. by his son,

BRIAN DE WINDSOR, who m. Alice, dau. of Thomas Drewe, Esq. of Segreve, in the co. of Leicester; and dying 22nd RICHARD II., was s. by his son,

MILES DE WINDSOR; who dying unm., was s. by his brother,

RICHARD DE WINDSOR, who m. Christian, dau. of

* And of his wife Margaret, dau. and co-heir of William de Bintworth.

† BARNES proceeds, "That she (Alice Perrers) had been constantly misrepresented by most of our writers (one taking it from another) as being KING EDWARD'S concubine, but that it was improbable, from the reputation she had of being taken in marriage by so considerable a person as the Lord William Windsor. That the records wherein she is mentioned are not so severe on her reputation, as appears from the charge against her brought into parliament, in 1st RICHARD II., in those words:—

"Dame Alice Perrers was introduced before the lords, and by Sir Richard le Scrope, Knt., steward of the king's household, charged for pursuing of matters contrary to orders taken two years before; namely, that no woman should, for any advantage, present any cause in the king's court, on pain of losing all they had, and being banished the realm for ever. That particularly she had procured Sir Nicholas Dagworth to be called from Ireland, whither he was sent; and that she procured from the king restitution of lands and goods to Richard Lyon, merchant of London; whereas, the same lands having been forfeited by him, had been given to the king's own sons. To all which the same Dame Alice replied, that she had not pursued any such thing for any advantage of her own; whereupon divers officers, councillors, and servants to KING EDWARD III. being examined, proved that she made such pursuit, and that in their conceits, for her own private gain. Then judgment was given by the lords against the said dame, that, according to the order aforesaid, she should be banished all her goods and lands whatsoever." But Sir Robert Cotton makes this remark on it:—"To say truth of the devil is counted commendable, and therefore surely the record against the said lady, being very long, proves no such heinous matter against her; only it sheweth that the same dame was in such credit with EDWARD III. as she sat at his bed's head, when all of the council, and of the privy-chamber, stood waiting without doors, and that she moved those suits that they dared not, and these two suits whereof she was condemned seemed very honest; her mishap was, that she was friendly to many, but all were not so to her."

Richard Faulkner, of the co. of Southampton; dying 6th HENRY VI., was s. by his only son,

MILES DE WINDSOR, who m. Joan, dau. of Walter Green, Esq. of Bridgnorth; and dying in 1450-1, was s. by his son,

THOMAS WINDSOR, who m. Elizabeth, eldest dau. and co-heir of John Andrews, Esq. of Baylham, co. Suffolk; and dying in 1485, was s. by his eldest surviving son,

SIR ANDREWS WINDSOR, of Stanwell, knight of the Bath,* was created knight-banneret for his valour at the battle of Spurs, in 1513, and summoned to parliament, in 1529, as Baron Windsor, of Bradenham, co. Bucks. Of this nobleman Sir William Dugdale states, "That, after the dissolution of the great monasteries, KING HENRY sent a message to Lord Windsor, communicating his intention of dining with his lordship on a certain day at Stanwell, and accordingly came, when he was magnificently entertained. Whereupon the king told him he liked that place so well that he was resolved to have it, yet not without a more beneficial exchange. And the Lord Windsor answering, he hoped his highness was not in earnest, it having been the seat of his ancestors for many ages, and humbly begging he would not take it from him; the king, with a stern countenance, replied, 'It must be;' commanding him, on his allegiance, to go speedily to his attorney-general, who would more fully acquaint him with his reason for it. Being, therefore, afraid of his displeasure, he accordingly repaired to the attorney-general, who shewed him a draught ready made of an exchange of his lordship and manor of Stanwell, in lieu of Bordsley Abbey, with the lands and appurtenances thereunto belonging, in Worcestershire. Whereof being constrained to accept of this exchange, he was commanded to quit Stanwell, though he had then laid in his Christmas provisions for the keeping of his wonted hospitality there, all which he left in the house, saying, 'they should not find it bare Stanwell.'" His lordship m. Elizabeth, dau. of William Blount, Lord Mountjoy, and sister and co-heir of Edward, Lord Mountjoy, and had issue,

* He was made one of the knights of the Bath in the Tower of London, 23 June, 1509, the day before the coronation of HENRY VIII. In the summons sent to him to take that degree, the king recites, "That he hath appointed twenty-six of the most able persons, and of honourable blood, and ancient houses coming, being no knights of this his realm, to take the order of knighthood, and to repair to the Tower of London, the 22nd June, and that day to serve the king at his dinner, and they that shall be made knights to bear dishes unto the king that said day, in token that they shall bear none after that day, and to be knights of the Bath in the Tower of London, the 23rd day of June next coming, called the even of his coronation," &c.

POMFRET.

POMFRET, EARL OF, (George-William-Richard Fermor,) Baron Lempster, or Leominster, of Leominster, co. Lineage.

The family of Fermor derives from one of the companions in arms of the CONQUEROR, and was, at a very early period, seated on the lordship of Somerton, in Oxfordshire.*

* A branch of the family was established in the sister island by ROBERT FERMOR, or FARMAR, an officer of rank in the army, who having obtained from the crown, temp. ELIZABETH, considerable grants of land, chiefly in the co. of Tipperary, settled in Ireland, where his descendants have since continued to reside. His great-great-grandson and representative,

RICHARD FERMOUR, Esq., having amassed considerable wealth as a merchant at Calais, settled himself at Eston-Neston, co. Northampton; but exciting the hostility of HENRY VIII., by a zealous adherence to the church of Rome, and inciting the cupidity of Thomas Cromwell, Earl of Essex, his majesty's vicar-general, by the extent of his possessions, the whole of his large fortune was confiscated, under a præmunire, because of his having relieved Nicholas Thayne, his quondam confessor, while a prisoner in the gaol of Buckingham. It was, however, partly restored by EDWARD VI.; and Mr. Fermour regained his mansion-house of Eston-Neston, where he died, universally esteemed, 17 Nov. 1552, and was s. by his eldest son, (by Anne, dau. of Sir William Browne, lord mayor of London,)

JOHN FERMOR, Esq., who was made one of the knights of the Carpet at Westminster, 2 Oct. 1553, the day after the coronation of QUEEN MARY, in her majesty's presence, under the cloth of state, by the Earl of Arundel, commissioner for the occasion. Sir John Fermor represented the co. of Northampton in two parliaments, and was sheriff of that shire in the 4th and 5th of PHILIP and MARY. He m. Maud, dau. of Sir Nicholas Vaux, Knt., Lord Vaux, of Harrowden, and was s. at his decease, 12 Dec. 1571, by his eldest son,

GEORGE FERMOR, Esq., who received the honour of knighthood in 1586. Sir George had the honour of entertaining JAMES I. and his queen at Easton, 11 June, 1603, when his majesty was pleased to confer the honour of knighthood upon his eldest son, (by Mary, dau. and heir of Thomas Curson, Esq. of Water Perry, co. Oxford,)

SIR HATTON FERMOR, who s. his father in Dec. 1612. This gentleman was sheriff of Northamptonshire in the 15th of JAMES I. PORTSMOUTH.

PORTSMOUTH, EARL OF, (John-Charles Wallop,) Viscount Lymington, and Baron Wallop, of Farley Wallop, co. Southampton; b. 18 Dec. 1767; s. as 3rd earl, at the demise of his father, 16 May, 1797; m. 1st, 19 Nov. 1799, Grace, dau. of Fletcher (Norton), 1st Lord Grantley, but by that lady (who d. 15 Nov. 1813) had no issue. He wedded 2ndly, Anne, eldest daughter of John Hanson, Esq. of Bloomsbury Place, London, which marriage was annulled, by a decree of the lord chancellor, in 1828. The earl has been declared, by the verdict of an inquisition held in 1823, to be in a state of mental derangement.

Lineage.

This family was settled at Wallop, co. Hants, at a period antecedent to the Conquest; and it is thus noticed by Camden: "The Test having taken into it a little river from Wallop, or more truly Well-hop; that is, by interpretation out of our forefather's language, a pretty well in the side of a hill, whereof that right worshipful family of the Wallops, of knight's degree, dwelled hard by, took name."

MATTHEW DE WALLOP obtained a grant, 27 April, 1203, to himself and his heirs for ever, of the custody of the house, castle, and gaol of Winchester, with the lands of Wodecote, and one hide of land in Andover, with the appurtenances &c. thereunto belonging; and in the 9th of KING JOHN, he had a grant from that monarch of two hundred and eight acres of land in Wallop, which had been Stephen de Bendenge's. This Matthew was s. by his son,

JOHN DE WALLOP, of Wallop, living in 1228, who was s. by his son,

SIR RICHARD DE WALLOP, a person of considerable importance in the reign of HENRY III., who d. in the 11th year of EDWARD I., leaving an only dau. and heir,

ALICE WALLOP, who m. Peter de Barton, lord of West Barton, co. Southampton; and her grandson and heir having assumed the name of Wallop, inherited as

RICHARD DE WALLOP, and was returned to parliament for the co. Southampton in the 2nd year of EDWARD III. He m. Alice, dau. of Sir John Husee, Knt. of Beechworth Castle, co. Surrey, and was s. by his eldest son,

THOMAS WALLOP, who m. in the 16th of EDWARD III., Margaret, dau. of — Wellington, and was s. by his son,

JOHN WALLOP, M.P. for Salisbury, temp. HENRY IV. He m. Avice, dau. of John Buck, and had a son,

Thomas, who m. Margaret, dau. and heir of NICHOLAS VALOYNES, Lord of Farley and Clydesden, co. Southampton, and left, with three younger sons, at his decease, in the lifetime of his father, JOHN, successor to his grandfather.

John Wallop d. in the 16th of HENRY VI., and was s. by his grandson,

JOHN WALLOP, who inherited the estates of the VALOYNES through his mother, and made the manor-house of FARLEY his chief residence, as it was of his descendants, until destroyed by fire in the year 1667. It was rebuilt, in 1733, by John, 1st Earl of Portsmouth. This John Wallop was sheriff of the co. of Southampton in the 33rd of HENRY VI. and in the 1st year of EDWARD IV.; in the 12th year of which latter monarch he represented the co. of Southampton in parliament. He was s. by his son,

RICHARD WALLOP, Esq., who m. Elizabeth, dau. and co-heir of — Hampton, Esq. of Old Stoke, co. Southampton, but having no issue, was s. by his brother,

SIR ROBERT WALLOP, Knt.; at whose decease s. p., the estates devolved upon (the eldest son of his brother Stephen, by a dau. of Hugh Ashley, Esq. of Wymburn St. Giles) his nephew,

SIR JOHN WALLOP, Knt., an eminent military and diplomatic personage in the reign of HENRY VIII., who was installed a knight of the Garter in 1544. Sir John m. twice; but having no issue, his estates passed at his decease, in the 5th year of EDWARD VI., to his brother,

SIR OLIVER WALLOP, Knt., so created for his gallant conduct at the great battle of Musseborough, in 1547. He m. 1st, Bridget, dau. of Pigot, of Beechampton, Bucks, by whom he had three sons and a daughter, Rose, who m. Walter Lambert, Esq. Sir Oliver espoused 2ndly, Anne, dau. of Robert Martin, Esq. of Athelhampton, in Dorsetshire, and widow of Thomas Tregonwell, Esq., and had two other sons and two daughters. He was s. at his decease by his eldest son,

SIR HENRY WALLOP, Knt., vice-treasurer and treasurer-of-war in Ireland in the reign of QUEEN ELIZABETH. This gentleman was constituted by her majesty, in 1582, (in conjunction with Lord Grey, of Wilton, and Adam Loftus, Archbishop of Dublin and lord chancellor,) lord-justice of Ireland. And we have upon record the following account of a trial by battle before their lordships:—"Two near kinsmen of the noble family of the O'Connors having charged each other with sundry treasons in the late rebellion, and desiring a trial by combat, the lords-justices consented to it. Whereupon all things being prepared, according to the customary laws in such cases, and the lords-justices, the lords of the council, judges, &c., sitting in their places, every one according to his degree, the appellant, stripped in his shirt, was brought before the court with only his sword and target, and when he had done his reverence to the lords-justices and the court, was set on a stool; the defendant was likewise brought in the same order, and with the like weapons, and placed over against the appellant. After the challenge was read, each combatant took an oath of what he averred, and that it was true, and would justify the same both with sword and blood. Then the signal, by sound of trumpet, being given them to engage, the appellant did not only disarm the defendant, but also, with the sword he took from him, cut off his head, and on the point thereof presented it to the lords-justices, who thereupon acquitted him." Upon Sir Henry's return to England he had the honour of entertaining QUEEN ELIZABETH, anno 1591, for some days, with her court, at Farley Wallop. This gentleman obtained considerable estates in Ireland, and, amongst others, the castle, manor, and abbey of Enniscorthy. He d. 14 April, 1599, and the inscription to his memory, in St. Patrick's Church, Dublin, records that, during his government in Ireland, "the wars of Desmond terminated, and that the head of that nobleman was sent into England." Sir Henry was s. by his eldest son, (by Catherine, dau. of Richard Gifford, Esq.,)

SIR HENRY WALLOP, Knt., who m. Elizabeth, only dau. and heir of Robert Corbet, Esq. of Morton Corbet, by whom he acquired the manor and noble seat of RED CASTLE, and divers other lordships and manors in Salop, and had one son and five daughters. He d. 5 Nov. 1624, and was s. by his son,

ROBERT WALLOP, Esq., M.P. for the co. of Southampton, and subsequently for Andover. This gentleman taking an active part against CHARLES I., was named one of the unhappy monarch's judges, and he sate as such in the painted chamber, but did not sign the warrant for the king's execution. At the Restoration, the parliament excepted him from receiving any benefit from his estate, &c.; and being brought to the bar of the house, he was sentenced to be degraded of his gentility, drawn upon a sledge to, and under the gallows of, Tyburn, with a halter round his neck, and to be imprisoned for life, which sentence was put in force, 30 Jan. 1662. He d. in the Tower of London, 16 Nov. 1667, and was s. in his estates by his son, (by Anne, dau. of Henry Wriothesley, Earl of Southampton,)

HENRY WALLOP, Esq., who was s. by his brother,

JOHN WALLOP, Esq. This gentleman m. Alicia, dau. and co-heir of William Borlase, Esq. of Great Morlow, co. Buckingham; and dying in 1694, was s. by his eldest son,

BLUET WALLOP, Esq.; at whose decease unm. in 1707, the estates devolved upon his brother,

JOHN WALLOP, Esq., b. 15 April, 1690; who was created *Baron Wallop, of Farley Wallop, co. In his letter to Secretary Walsingham, he says, "My good livings and life are to her majesty's disposition, and I am ready to lose them this next morrow if it shall so please her, acknowledging that I hold them as of her meet and most gracious favour, and do not desire to enjoy them but with her highness's good liking; but God forbid that I should make so foul a shipwreck of my conscience, or leave so great a blot to my posterity, to shed blood without law or warrant." Lineage.

The surname of Wingfield is derived from the manor of Wingfield, co. Suffolk, where the progenitors of this family are stated to have been located before the Conquest, and the place of their abode was denominated Wingfield Castle. Camden says, that this manor gave both a name and seat to a large family in those parts, famous for their knight-hood and ancient gentility, which brought forth an abundance of renowned knights, and among them two celebrated companions of the order of the Garter under the reign of HENRY VIII.

SIR RICHARD WINGFIELD, (lineally descended from the Wingfields of Letheringham, in Suffolk, of which distinguished family a full account may be seen in BURKE'S History of the Commoners, vol. ii. page 476, article WINGFIELD, OF TICKENCOTE,) a personage of high military reputation, commenced his career under his uncle, the Lord-Deputy Sir William Fitzwilliam, in the civil wars in Ireland. He was afterwards engaged upon the Continent; and returning to Ireland, was appointed by QUEEN ELIZABETH, in 1600, mareschal of that kingdom, which office was confirmed to him by JAMES I., and he was at the same time called to his majesty's privy-council. In 1613, Sir William was joined in the government of Ireland, and again in 1622, having in the interim been elevated to the peerage of that kingdom, (19 Feb. 1618,) by the title of VISCOUNT POWERSCOURT; but d. without issue, in 1634, when the dignity expired, while the estates devolved upon his cousin,

P R E S T O N.

PRESTON, SIR ROBERT, of Valleyfield, co. Perth; b. 21 April, 1740; m. 27 April, 1790, Elizabeth, dau. of George Brown, Esq. of Stockton, but had no issue. Sir Robert s. as 6th baronet, at the decease of his brother, 23 March, 1800; and d. in May, 1833.

 This baronetcy having been assumed since the decease of Sir Robert by a gentleman, the foundation of whose right to do so we can form no opinion upon, not having any information on the subject, the details are allowed for the present to remain, and the dignity not deemed to be extinct.

Lineage.

The name of Preston, which is of great antiquity in North Britain, was assumed by the ancestors of the present family from their territorial possessions in Mid-Lothian, in the time of MALCOLM CEAN-MOHR. The first of the family upon record is,

LEOLPHUS DE PRESTON, living temp. WILLIAM THE LION, whose grandson,

SIR WILLIAM DE PRESTON, Knt., was one of the Scottish nobles summoned to Berwick by EDWARD I., in the competition from the crown of Scotland, between Bruce and Baliol, after the death of KING ALEXANDER III. in 1291. This Sir William was s. by his son,

NICHOL DE PRESTON, one of the Scottish barons who swore fealty to KING EDWARD. He d. in the beginning of the reign of DAVID II., and was s. by his son,

SIR LAWRENCE PRESTON, who was s. by his son,

SIR JOHN DE PRESTON, a gallant soldier, high in the favour and confidence of KING DAVID BRUCE, who accompanied that monarch in his unfortunate expedition into England, and falling into the enemy's hands at the battle of Durham, in 1346, suffered several years imprisonment in the Tower of London, and was released only by ransom. His son,

SIR SIMON DE PRESTON, witnessed a charter of donation to the monastery of Newbottle in 1360. He was s. by his son,

SIR SIMON DE PRESTON, who left issue,

Henry, (Sir.)

ANDREW, whose son,

GEORGE, of Whitehill, was great-grandfather of

SIR RICHARD PRESTON, who was created a peer of Scotland, in the dignity of BARON DINGWALL, 8 June, 1609, to himself and his heirs whatsoever. His lordship, through the favour of his royal master, JAMES I., obtained the hand of Lady Elizabeth Butler, only surviving child of Thomas, 10th Earl of Ormonde and Ossory. By this lady he left an only child,

ELIZABETH, Baroness Dingwall, who m. James, 12th Earl (afterwards Duke) of Ormonde, and was s. by her grandson,

JAMES, second Duke of Ormonde, who was impeached in 1715, and attainted, when all his English honours expired; but it is doubtful if the attainder could affect the claim of the PRESTON family to the BARONY OF DINGWALL, the line (BUTLER) of the attainted duke having failed, and the dignity reverting, as it has done, to the heir general of the 1st Lord Dingwall.

Sir Simon was s. by his eldest son,

SIR GEORGE PRESTON, whose great-grandson, WILLIAM PRESTON, of Craigmiller, had issue,

ROBERT PRESTON, of Craigmiller, in 1639.

HENRY.

The second son,

HENRY PRESTON, living in the reigns of JAMES IV. and JAMES V., was father of

JAMES PRESTON, Esq., who acquired by charter, dated in 1544, the lands and barony of Valleyfield, from William, commendator of Culross, upon the resignation of Patrick Bruce; and his descendants have ever since been designated from that estate. He was s. by his son,

ARCHIBALD PRESTON, Esq., second baron of Valleyfield, whose grandson,

SIR JOHN PRESTON, 4th baron of Valleyfield, m. Grizel Colville, dau. of Alexander, commendator of Culross, by whom, with three daus., he had two sons,

GEORGE, his successor.

Robert, a lord of Session, from whom the Prestons of Gourtown are descended.

Sir John was s. by his eldest son,

I. GEORGE PRESTON, Esq. of Valleyfield, who was created a Baronet of Nova Scotia, 31 March, 1637. Sir George m. in 1634, Marian, only dau. of Hugh, 3rd Lord Sempill, and grandau. (maternally) of James, Earl of Abercorn, and was s. by his eldest son,

II. SIR WILLIAM. This gentleman m. Anne, dau. of Sir James Lumsden, of Innergelly, and was s. by his eldest son,

III. SIR GEORGE, who m. Agnes, dau. of Patrick Muirhead, Esq. of Rashyhill; and dying in 1741, was s. by his eldest son,

IV. SIR GEORGE. This gentleman m. Anne, dau. of William, Lord Cochrane, of Ochiltree, and grandau. (maternally) of the Earl of Kincardine, by whom he had issue,

1 ANN, Lady Baird, widow of the late Sir David Baird, without issue.

Lineage.

MARGARET (MARR), Countess of Marr, s. her brother Thomas, 13th of the old Earls of Marr, in 1377, and marrying William, Earl of Douglas, that nobleman assumed the designation of Earl of Douglas and Marr. Of this marriage there were two children,

JAMES, who s. to the honours.

Isabel, who became eventually Countess of Marr.

The countess was divorced from Lord Douglas, and m. 2ndly, Sir John Swinton, of Swinton; and dying in 1385, her son,

JAMES, became Earl of Douglas and Marr. This distinguished chieftain making an excursion into England, in 1388, penetrated to the gates of York; whence returning spoil-laden, his lordship had many skirmishes with the English at Newcastle, in one of which he became possessed of the pennon of Henry Percy (Hotspur), and vaunting that he should erect it on the pinnacle of his own castle, Percy retorted with an oath, "Thou shalt never bear it out of Northumberland;" and to uphold by arms the declaration, himself and his brother, Ralph Percy, attacked Douglas in his camp at Otterburn, 19 Aug. 1388, when a furious conflict ensued, wherein Lord Douglas fell; but the Percys eventually sustained a signal defeat. While Douglas lay wounded in the brunt of the battle, one of his knightly companions (Sinclair) inquired, "How goes it, cousin?" "But so so; praise be to God, (replied the sinking soldier,) few of my ancestors have died in chambers or in beds. Avenge me, for I die. My heart faints too rapidly. Raise again my banner, and shout 'DOUGLAS!' But tell not friend nor foe how it fares with me, for my enemies would exult, and my friends be disconsolate." The earl married, but leaving no legitimate issue, his only sister, Isabel, succeeded as Countess of Marr, while the Earldom of Douglas passed to the male heir of that family. Lord Douglas and Marr left an illegitimate son,

SIR WILLIAM DOUGLAS, upon whom he had conferred the Barony of Drumlanrig, co. Dumfries, by charter, sans date. Lineage.

This family is maternally descended from

SIR JOHN RAMSAY, Knt. of Balmaine and Tasque, co. Kincardine, who was created by JAMES III. a lord of parliament in 1433, and sate under the title of LORD BOTHWELL. Adhering, however, to his unfortunate sovereign, against whom the nobles of Scotland rebelled, his lordship was outlawed, and his estates subjected to confiscation, in 1488, by the first parliament of JAMES IV., while that monarch conferred the dignity of Earl of Bothwell upon Hepburn, Lord Hailes, whose descendant became the third husband of MARY, Queen of Scots, and was the last of his family that enjoyed the peerage. In 1498, the disgraced lord received, however, a royal pardon, but under the simple designation of John Ramsay; and he obtained, at the same time, some lands in the cos. of Forfar and Wigtoun; which favours were followed by a charter, in 1510, of the Barony of Balmaine. The grandson of this personage,

GILBERT RAMSAY, Esq., was created a Baronet of Nova Scotia; 3 Sept. 1625, and the title passed, in regular succession, to

SIR ALEXANDER RAMSAY, the 6th bart.; at whose decease, 11 Feb. 1806, it passed to his kinsman and heir-at-law, and has since become extinct, while the estates devolved, by bequest, upon Sir Alexander's nephew,

I. ALEXANDER BURNET, Esq., 2nd son of Sir Thomas Burnet, Bart. of Leys, by Catherine Ramsay, sister of the deceased baronet, who assumed, in consequence, by sign-manual, in the same year, the surname and arms of Ramsay; and was created a Baronet, 18 May, 1806, by the designation of "Sir Alexander Ramsay, of Balmaine." REAY.

REAY, LORD, (Eric Mac Kay,) of Reay, co. Caithness, in the peerage of Scotland; and a Baronet of Nova Scotia; b. in Dec. 1773; s. as 7th baron, at the decease of his cousin, 26 Jan. 1797.

Lineage.

This very ancient family, according to the best authorities, held possessions in the north of Scotland seven centuries ago; which possessions were originally denominated Strathnaver, but more recently Lord Reay's country.

ODO MACKY, descended from Angus Dow Macky, (who is styled leader of 4000 Mackys of Strathnaver,) obtained extensive territorial grants in the counties of Caithness and Sutherland in 1499 and 1507. He fell at Flodden, and was s. by his son,

JOHN MACKY, who was s. by his brother,

DONALD MACKY, characterised by historians as "a great general, and a wise and political gentleman." This personage was at the battle of Solway-Moss, and returned to Edinburgh with the king three days after the conflict, when his majesty bestowed upon him, in requital of his faithful services, the forfeited lands of several individuals, by charter, dated 28 Nov. 1542. He d. in 1565, and was s. by his son,

Y MACKY, who obtained his father's lands from the Earl of Huntly, to whom they had been granted by the crown. He had several conflicts with the Earl of Sutherland, to whom surrendering himself in 1556, he was sent prisoner to the castle of Edinburgh. Being released, he returned to Strathnaver, where he conducted himself turbulently until his death, in 1571. His wife was Barbara Sinclair, dau. of the Laird of Dim, and he was s. by his son,

HUCHEON MACKY, a personage of a very different disposition to that of his predecessors. He is described as "very liberal, if not rather inclining towards prodigality, and yet preserving the ancient inheritance of his family free from any burden of debt. Finding his countrymen consumed almost with civil discords and slaughters by the iniquity of the times, he conducted himself so that in a short space they were finally reconciled. He delighted in hunting and public conventions; but fearing that such meetings would produce dissensions, he gave them over, till in the end all quarrels were quite forgotten." He m. 1st, Lady Elizabeth Sinclair, 2nd dau. of George, 4th Earl of Caithness, by whom he had an only child, Christian, m. to John Macintosh, of Dalzell. He espoused 2ndly, in 1589, Lady Jaen Gordon, eldest dau. of Alexander, 11th Earl of Sutherland; and dying, beloved and bewailed, in 1614, was s. by his elder son,

SIR DONALD MACKAY, Knt. of Far, was created a Baronet of Nova Scotia, 18 March, 1627, and elevated to the peerage by the dignity of BARON REAY, with remainder to his heirs male for ever bearing the name and arms of Mackay, 20 June, 1628. His lordship, who was a distinguished and gallant soldier, took an active part during the civil war in favour of royalty; but being one of those excepted from pardon in the treaty between the covenanters and KING CHARLES, he was obliged to retire to Denmark, where he died in Feb. 1649. He m. 1st, in 1610, Barbara, eldest dau. of Kenneth, Lord Kintail, by whom he had John, his successor, with two other sons and two daughters. His lordship espoused 2ndly, Rachel Winterfield, or Harrison, by whom he had two other sons. Of this latter marriage Lord Reay procured a sentence of nullity, and then married Elizabeth, dau. of Robert Thompson, of Greenwich; but the judges' delegates at London having found that Rachel Winterfield, or Harrison, was the wife of his lordship, she went into Scotland, in 1637, to prosecute him for an aliment, and he was ordered to pay her £2000 sterling for by-past maintenance, and £300 yearly during his non-adherence. He was s. by his eldest son,

JOHN, 2nd baron; who, like his father, took up arms in the royal cause. His lordship m. Barbara, dau. of Donald Mackay, of Scaury, by whom he had, with two younger sons, Donald, master of Reay, who pre-deceased him, leaving by Anne, dau. of Sir George Monro, of Culcairn, a son, by whom his lordship was succeeded,

This family traces its descent to the ancient noblesse of France. The first of its members, however, that settled in England was,

VI. Augusta-Charlotte, m. 1st, in 1798, to Thomas Crespigny, Esq., who d. in 1799; and 2ndly, 3 Feb. 1827, to Joseph Whatley, Esq.

Mr. Thelusson, after bequeathing large fortunes to each member of his family, devised the residue of his immense possessions—namely, landed estates of the annual value of £4,500, and personal property to the amount of £600,000—to trustees, for the purpose of accumulation during the lives of his three sons, and of all their sons who should be living at the time of his death, or should be born in due course afterwards, and the lives of the survivors of them; the accumulated fund then to be expended in the purchase of estates, and to be conveyed to the eldest male descendant of his three sons, with the benefit of survivorship. This extraordinary will was mooted before the House of Lords, but finally confirmed by that branch of the legislature, 25 June, 1805; an act of parliament, however, subsequently passed to interdict in future any accumulation of property so devised beyond the term of twenty-one years after the decease of the testator. It is supposed that this bequest of Mr. Thelusson's will exceed a million and a half before it can be inherited. He d. 21 July, 1797, and was s. at Broadsworth by his eldest son,

At this period, and previously, the knights of the Garter wore the blue ribbon round the neck with the George appendant on the breast; but the duke's mother having, sometime after his installation, introduced him to the king with his ribbon over his left shoulder and the George appendant on the right side, his majesty was so much pleased with the alteration that he commanded it in future to be adopted. RIDDELL.

RIDDELL, SIR WALTER-BUCHANAN, of Riddell, co. Roxburgh; barrister-at-law; b. 8 Aug. 1810; s. as 10th baronet, at the decease of his father, in April, 1819.

Lineage.

The family of Riddell is supposed to have been of Norman extraction, from the circumstance of one of the men of note who accompanied WILLIAM THE CONQUEROR to England, and whose name appears in the roll of Battle Abbey, being the Sieur de Ridell.

The first of the family who settled in Scotland was,

GERVASIUS DE RIDALL, the earliest high-sheriff of the co. Roxburgh upon record. This Gervasius is a witness to one of the oldest Scottish documents, the "Inquisitio Principis Davidis," anno 1116, and to other legal deeds. From Gervasius de Ridall descended

WALTER DE RYDELL, OF RIDDELL, who had a charter from DAVID I. of the lands of Lilisclive, and the Whit-tunes, co. Roxburgh, to hold of the crown, "sicut unus baronum nostrorum." This is the oldest royal charter known to exist from a Scottish king to a laic, having been granted sometime between 1126 and 1153. This document having become frail by lapse of time, was legally transumed by order of the Lord Grey, justice-general of Scotland south of the Forth, in a justice court held by him at Jedburgh, in the year 1506. The lands mentioned in the above charter were subsequently denominated the "Baronies of Riddell and Whitton," and the "style of the ilk," or "de eodem," became the appellation of the family, according to the practice generally followed by the chiefs of the Scottish baronial houses. From the brother and heir of this Walter,

SIR ANSKITTELL, OF ARKITTELL, DE RIDDELL, descended, in lineal succession,

I. JOHN RIDDELL, (eldest son of Andrew Riddell, of that ilk,) who was created in the lifetime of his father, 14 May, 1628, a Baronet of Nova Scotia, and received at the same time a grant of lands in Nova Scotia, to be denominated the Barony and Regality of New Riddell. GALFRIDUS RIDEL, who carried on the family, but it would exceed our limits to follow its successive generations. Lineage.

This family, of English origin, was brought into Ireland towards the close of QUEEN ELIZABETH'S reign, by WILLIAM PARSONS, a person then in an humble station of life, who rose to great wealth and power, and was eventually one of the lords-justices of that kingdom,—his immediate line being, however, extinct, we shall briefly detail it, and then proceed with that of the existing family.

WILLIAM PARSONS settled in Ireland about the close of QUEEN ELIZABETH'S reign; and being a commissioner of plantations, obtained very considerable territorial grants from the crown. In 1602, he succeeded Sir Geoffrey Fenton as surveyor-general of Ireland; in 1610, he obtained a pension of £30 a year, English, for life; in 1611, he was joined with his brother, Laurence, in the supervisorship of the crown lands, with a fee of £60 a year for life; in 1620, presenting to the king, in person, surveys of escheated estates, in his capacity of surveyor-general, he received the honour of knighthood, and was created a Baronet, 10 Nov. in the same year. Sir William Parsons represented the co. Wicklow in parliament in 1639, and was constituted lord-deputy, with Lord Dillon, in 1640; but that nobleman being soon removed, he was resworn with Sir John Borlace, master of the ordnance. He continued in the government until 1643, when he was removed, charged with treason, and committed to prison, with Sir Adam Loftus and others. He m. Elizabeth, eldest dau. of Mr. Alderman John Lany, of Dublin, and niece of Sir Geoffrey Fenton, by whom he had several children. He d. at Westminster, in Feb. 1650, and was s. by his grandson,

SIR WILLIAM, of Bellamont, co. Dublin, 2nd bart., (only son of Richard Parsons, Esq., by his 1st wife, Lettice, eldest dau. of Sir Adam Loftus, and grandau., maternally, of Walter Vaughan, Esq. of Golden Grove.) This gentleman m. Catherine, eldest dau. of Arthur, Viscount Ranelagh; and dying in 1658, was s. by his only surviving son,

His lordship m. 1st, Anne Walsingham; 2ndly, Catharine Brydges, dau. of George, Lord Chandos, both of whom d. issueless; and 3rdly, in 1685, Elizabeth, eldest dau. of Sir George Hamilton, and niece of Sarah, Duchess of Malborough, by whom he had two sons and three daus. He d. in 1702, and was s. by his elder son,

RICHARD, 2nd viscount; who was advanced to the Earldom of Rosse, 16 June, 1718. His lordship m. in 1715, Mary, eldest dau. of Lord William Paulet, by whom he had two sons and a dau.; and dying in 1741, was s. by his elder son,

LAURENCE PARSONS, Esq., brother of the Lord-Justice Sir William Parsons, was appointed attorney-general for the province of Munster in 1612, when he received the honour of knighthood from the Lord-Deputy St. John. In 1620, Sir Laurence was joined in the surveyor-generalship with his brother, and appointed, four years afterwards, 2nd baron of the Exchequer. He m. Jane, dau. of — Malham, Esq. of the co. of York; and dying 8 Sept. 1628, was s. by his eldest son,

SIR JAMES, who inherited the peerage at the decease of his maternal uncle,

ALEXANDER WEDDERBURN, (eldest son of the above-mentioned Peter Wedderburn, Lord Chesterhall.) This eminent person was born at Chesterhall, 13 Feb. 1733, and was early distinguished by those powers of reason and eloquence, which ultimately raised him to the highest dignity of the state. Well adapted to the legal profession by great natural talents and indefatigable perseverance, he was called to the Scottish bar when only nineteen years of age, and was coming rapidly into notice, when an illiberal attack from the bench disgusting him with his own country, determined his seeking a wider sphere for his professional pursuits. He became a member of the Inner Temple in 1753, and under the tuition of Macklyn, endeavoured, with more than doubtful success, to lose his national accent. He was called to the English bar in 1757, and by his talents soon won the applause of Lord Camden, and the assistance of Lords Bute and Mansfield, pleading in the Douglas and Hamilton cause, and successfully defending Lord Clive. He was appointed solicitor-general, 26 Jan. 1771; promoted to the attorney-generalship in 1778; and elevated to the bench, as lord-chief-justice of the court of Common Pleas, in 1780, when he was created Baron Loughborough, of Loughborough, co. Leicester, (14 June, 1780.) In 1793, his lordship was appointed first-commissioner for keeping the great seal; and 27 Jan. 1793, constituted LORD-HIGH-CHANCELLOR OF GREAT BRITAIN. On the 31st of Oct. 1795, the chancellor obtained a new patent, creating him Baron Loughborough, of Loughborough, co. Surrey, with remainder, in default of male issue, to his nephew, Sir James St. Clair-Erskine; and after him, to John Erskine, Esq., the brother of Sir James; and 21 April, 1801, he was advanced to the dignity of EARL ROSSLYN, co. Mid-Lothian, with the same remaindership. His lordship m. 1st, in 1767, Betty-Anne, dau. and heir of John Dawson, Esq. of Morley, co. York; and 2ndly, in 1782, Charlotte, dau. of William, 1st Viscount Courtenay, of Powderham Castle; but died without issue, 3 Jan. 1805, (his remains were interred in ST. PAUL'S CATHEDRAL,) when the original Barony of Loughborough, of Leicester, expired; while that of Loughborough, of Surrey, and the Earldom of Rosslyn, devolved, according to the limitation of the patent, upon his nephew,

SIR JAMES ST. CLAIR-ERSKINE, Bart., as 2nd earl. His lordship was a general-officer, col. of the 9th regiment of dragoons, and a knight-grand-cross of the Bath. He m. in 1790, Henrietta-Elizabeth, eldest dau. of the late Hon. Edward Bouverie,* and by her, who d. 8 Aug. 1810, had issue,

Lineage.

The ancient family of Ruthven derives from THOR, a person of Saxon or Danish blood, who settled in Scotland under DAVID I., and whose son,

SWAN, living temp. WILLIAM THE LION, lord of the manors of Ruthven, Tubermore, and other lands in the co. Perth, was progenitor of

His lordship is included in Walpole's catalogue of royal and noble authors, having written a narrative of that sanguinary deed without one expression of regret or compunction. He was s. by his eldest son,

WILLIAM, 4th Lord Ruthven; who participated in the assassination of Rizzio, and fled into England with his father, but eventually making his peace, obtained a pardon after the decease of the late lord, and was created Earl of Gowrie, 23 Aug. 1581; the lands and Barony of Gowrie, which belonged to the monastery of Scone, being erected by royal charter into an earldom. His lordship was tried and convicted of treason 28 May, 1584, and executed in the evening of the same day; but his estates and honours were restored to his eldest son,

JAMES, 2nd Earl of Gowrie; at whose decease, in 1588, the honours devolved upon his brother,

JOHN, 3rd earl; who fell with his brother, Alexander Ruthven, in an attempt upon the life of JAMES VI., at Perth, 5 Aug. 1600. The dead bodies of the Ruthvens were afterwards arraigned and convicted of treason at Edinburgh, and the honours and the whole of the estates of the deceased declared forfeited by parliament.

William, 2nd Lord Ruthven, had a younger son,

The HON. ALEXANDER RUTHVEN, of Freeland, co. Perth, who d. in 1599, and was s. by his eldest son,

Lineage.

"Though none of this family arrived to the dignity of peerage until the reign of HENRY VIII.," says Dugdale, "yet were they persons of great note in Northumberland for many ages before; for in the 25th of HENRY II., Henry de Maners paid eighty marks for livery of his father's lands in that county." This Henry is not, however, mentioned in the pedigree of the family; in which the first name that occurs is,

SIR ROBERT DE MANNERS, Knt., lord of the manor of Ethale (now Etall), co. Northumberland, from whom descended

SIR ROBERT DE MANNERS, Knt., who, in the 17th EDWARD II., was returned into Chancery among the principal persons in the co. of Northumberland certified to bear arms by descent from their ancestors. This Sir Robert signalized himself by the defence of Norham Castle, of which he was governor in the 1st year of EDWARD III. The circumstance is thus stated in Barnes's History of that monarch's reign:—"The Scots, encouraged by former successes, and despising KING EDWARD's youth, on the very night of that day whereon KING EDWARD was crowned, intended to take Norham Castle, between the Marches of England and Scotland, by surprise; and so well they managed their design, that about sixteen of them had already mounted the walls; but the captain, Sir Robert Manners, being warned of the matter beforehand by one of the garrison, who was a Scotsman, had so well provided to receive them that, of those who had mounted, he took five or six and put the rest to the sword; their companions below, upon this disappointment, retiring." In the 14th year of the same KING EDWARD, Sir Robert served in parliament for the co. Northumberland. In the next year he obtained royal permission to strengthen and embattle his mansion of Ethale with a wall made of stone and lime; and in that year was commissioned, with others, to treat with David Bruce and his adherents about a peace. Sir Robert m. Joane, dau. and heir of Sir Henry Strother, Knt. of Newton-Glendall; and dying in 1355, was s. by his son,

SIR JOHN MANNERS, Knt., who was s. by his son,

SIR JOHN MANNERS, Knt., constituted sheriff of the co. of Northumberland in 1413. This Sir John was accused, with his son, in the reign of HENRY VI., of the death of William Heron, Esq., and Robert Atkinson; and being prosecuted for the same by Sir Robert Umphreville, Knt., and Isabel, then the widow of William Heron, an award was made, bearing date 28 Sept. 1430, by John, then prior of Durham, and Thomas, prior of Tinnmouth, to whom the affair was referred, that the said John de Maners and John, his 2nd son, should cause 500 masses to be sung for the health of the soul of the same William Heron within one year then next ensuing, and paying unto Sir Robert Umphreville and Isabel, to the use of her the said Isabel, and her children by the said William Heron, 200 marks. Sir John Manners m. Anne, dau. of Sir John Middleton, Knt.; and dying in 1438, was s. by his eldest son,

SIR ROBERT MANNERS, sheriff of Northumberland in the 33rd of HENRY VI., and M.P. for that co. in five years afterwards. In the 3rd and 4th years of EDWARD IV., he was again sheriff of Northumberland, an office of great power and profit prior to the reign of EDWARD VI.; for the sheriffs of that co. never accounted to the king in his Exchequer, but received the issues and profits to their own use, with all debts, fines, and amerciements within their jurisdiction, and all emoluments accruing from alienations, intrusions, wards, marriages, &c., in order to encourage them to be upon their guard against the Scots. This Sir Robert m. Eleanor, eldest sister and co-heir of Edmund, Lord Ros, of Hamlake, Triesbut, and Belvoir, who d. 13 Oct. 1508, and dau. of Thomas, Lord Ros, to which barony her ladyship succeeded, and to considerable possessions, which devolved upon her husband, with Belvoir Castle, co. Lincoln, built by Robert de Todenci, a noble Norman. The issue of this marriage were two sons and three daus. Sir Robert was s. by his elder son,

THOMAS, 13th Lord Ros; who was installed a knight of the Garter in the 17th year of HENRY VIII., and created Earl of Rutland, 18 June, 1525. This nobleman, who enjoyed in a high degree the favour of HENRY VIII., filled the most honourable offices in that monarch's reign, and obtained for his good services a grant of the manor of Muston, co. Lineage.

This family flourished for several generations in the co. of Devon before it removed into Cornwall; and in the beginning of the 15th century, we find Walter Eliot returned amongst the gentry of that shire. The Cornwall pedigree, made in 1620, commences with

JOHN ELIOT, who m. Jane, dau. of John Bonville, of Shute, co. Devon; and whose great-grandson,

RICHARD ELIOT, Esq., having purchased the site &c. of the priory of St. Germans, and giving it the name of Port Eliot, resided with great hospitality there. This gentleman d. in 1609, and was s. by his son,

SIR JOHN ELIOT, Knt. of Port Eliot, M.P. for the co. of Cornwall in the 3rd of CHARLES I. This gentleman, a strenuous opponent of the court, was appointed by the House of Commons one of the managers of the impeachment of the Duke of Buckingham; for which, with Sir Dudley Digges, the other manager, he was committed to the Tower, but was soon afterwards released. In 1628, Sir John Eliot, with other members of the House of Commons, was again sent to the Tower for refusing to answer before the privy-council for parliamentary conduct; and on the 29th of May in that year, an information was exhibited in the star-chamber against Sir John and his companions for their undutiful speeches; upon which charge being afterwards arraigned before the court of King's Bench, they were adjudged to be imprisoned during the king's pleasure, and to give security for their good behaviour, and Sir John was also fined £2000. These gentlemen were subsequently offered their freedom, upon the terms of making submission, but they rejected the proposition; and Sir John Eliot died in the Tower, 27 Nov. 1632. He had m. Redigund, dau. and co-heir of Richard Gedy, Esq., and had a numerous family; of which

JOHN, the eldest son, s. to the estates; and dying in 1685, left an only son,

RICHARD ELIOT, Esq. of Port Eliot, M.P., auditor and receiver-general to the Prince of Wales. This gentleman m. 4 March, 1726, Harriot, dau. of the Right Hon. James Craggs, secretary of state in the reign of GEORGE I., by whom (who m. 2ndly, the Hon. Capt. Hamilton) he had issue,

EDWARD, his heir.

Blanche-Mary-Harriett.

His lordship, who is high-steward of Hertford and colonel of the Hertfordshire militia, inherited as 2nd marquess, at the decease of his father, 13 June, 1823.

Lineage.

This family was founded by

The HON. ROBERT CECIL, (youngest son of William Cecil, Lord Burghley, QUEEN ELIZABETH'S celebrated high-treasurer, by his 2nd wife, Mildred, dau. of Sir Anthony Cooke,) who received the honour of knighthood in 1601, was sworn of the privy-council, appointed secretary of state, and subsequently master of the court of Wards in the reign of ELIZABETH, but did not attain the honours of the peerage until after the accession of JAMES I.,

when he was created, 13 May, 1603, Baron Cecil, of Essendon, co. Rutland; advanced to the Viscounty of Cranbourne, co. Dorset, 20 Aug. 1604; and created Earl of Salisbury, 4 May, 1605; during which periods he continued secretary of state, but succeeded subsequently, at the decease of the Earl of Dorset, to the lord-high-treasurership. Although Secretary Cecil was remarkable for deformity of person, it appears, by the following quaint epistle from William Brown to the Earl of Shrewsbury, dated 18 Sept. 1592, (from Lodge's Illustr. vol. iii.,) that he was not deficient in gallantry: "I send your lordship," says Brown, "here enclosed some verses compounded by Mr. Secretary, who got Hales to frame a ditty unto them. The occasion was, as I hear, that the young Lady Derby" (wife of Earl William, dau. of Lord Oxford) "wearing about her neck in her bosom a picture, which was in a dainty tablet, the queen espying it asked what fine jewel that was. The Lady Derby was curious to excuse the shewing of it; but the queen would have it, and opening it, and finding it to be Mr. Secretary's, snatched it away, and tied it upon her shoe, and walked along with it there; then she took it thence, and pinned it on her elbow, and wore it sometime there also; which Mr. Secretary being told of, made these verses, and had Hales to sing them in his chamber. It was told her majesty that Mr. Secretary had rare music and songs; she would needs hear them; and so this ditty was sung, which you see first written. More verses there be likewise, whereof some or all were likewise sung. I do boldly send these things to your lordship, which I would not do to any one else, for I hear they are very secret. Some of these verses argue that he repines not though her majesty please to grace others, and contents himself with the favour he hath." The Earl of Salisbury m. also Elizabeth, sister of the unhappy Henry Brooke, Lord Cobham, and d. worn out with business, 17 Feb. 1611-12. In his last illness, he was heard to say to Sir Walter Cope, "Ease and pleasure quake to hear of death; but my life, full of cares and miseries, desireth to be dissolved." He had some years previously (1603) addressed a letter to Sir James Harrington, the poet, in pretty much the same tone. "Good knight," saith the minister, "rest content, and give heed to one that hath sorrowed in the bright lustre of a court, and gone heavily on even the best seeming fair ground. 'Tis a great task to prove one's honesty and yet not mar one's fortune. You have tasted a little hereof in our blessed queen's time, who was more than a man, and, in truth, sometimes less than a woman. I wish I waited now in your presence chamber, with ease at my food and rest in my bed. I am pushed from the shore of comfort, and know not where the winds and waves of a court will bear me. I know it bringeth little comfort on earth; and he is, I reckon, no wise man that looketh this way to heaven." His lordship was s. by his only son,

WILLIAM, 2nd earl, K.G. This nobleman m. in Dec. 1608, Catherine, youngest dau. of Thomas Howard, Earl of Suffolk, and was s. at his decease by his grandson,

This nobleman, being a convert to the Roman-catholic faith, was presented by the grand jury of Middlesex, immediately before the Revolution of 1688, as a popish recusant; and on the 26 Oct. 1689, the Commons resolved, that his lordship and the Earl of Peterborough be impeached for high-treason, for departing from their allegiance and being reconciled to the church of Rome, but the prosecution was eventually abandoned. SANDWICH.

SANDWICH, EARL OF, (John-William Montagu,) co. Kent, Viscount Hinchinbroke, and Baron Montagu, of St. Neot's, both in the co. Huntingdon; b. 8 Nov. 1811; s. as 7th earl, upon the decease of his father, 20 May, 1818; m. in 1838, Lady Mary Paget, dau. of the Marquess of Anglesey.

Lineage.

This family is descended from a common ancestor with the ducal house of Manchester, with the extinct Earls of Halifax, and with the late Duke of Montagu. Its immediate progenitor was,

SIR SIDNEY MONTAGU, Knt., master of the court of Requests to CHARLES I.; who represented the co. Huntingdon in parliament in 1640, but was expelled and committed to the Tower, in 1642, for declining to subscribe an oath framed by the house, "That they would live and die with their general, Lord Essex." Sir Sidney m. Paulina, 3rd dau. of John Pepys, Esq. of Cottenham, co. Cambridge; and dying 25 Sept. 1644, was s. by his only surviving son,

SIR EDWARD MONTAGU, Knt., M.P. for the co. Huntingdon, a very distinguished military commander under the parliamentary banner during the civil war, and subsequently joint high-admiral of England, in which capacity, having had sufficient influence to induce the whole fleet to acknowledge the restored monarchy, he was elevated to the peerage by CHARLES II., 12 July, 1660, by the titles of Baron Montagu, Viscount Hinchinbroke, and EARL OF SANDWICH; his majesty conferring also upon his lordship the noble order of the Garter, and appointing him master of the great wardrobe, admiral of the narrow seas, and lieutenant-admiral to his Royal Highness the Duke of York, lord-high-admiral of England. At the subsequent coronation of the king his lordship carried St. Edward's staff.

He m. Jemima, dau. of John, Lord Crew, of Stene, by whom he had six sons and four daus.; of whom

EDWARD, the eldest, was his successor.

Sidney, the 2nd, m. Anne, dau. and heir of Sir Francis Wortley, Bart. of Wortley, co. York, and assumed the surname of WORTLEY. This gentleman was a member of parliament, and amongst those who invited over the PRINCE OF ORANGE. He d. in 1727, and was s. by his son, EDWARD WORTLEY-MONTAGUE, Esq., who m. Lady Mary Pierrepont, daughter of Evelyn, 1st Duke of Kingston. This celebrated woman, so well known as Lady MARY WORTLEY-MONTAGUE,* accompanied her husband in his embassy to the Turkish court, and her letters thence attained the highest degree of popularity. By this lady Mr. Montague left a son, EDWARD, who d. unm., and a dau., Mary, m. to John, Earl of Bute, and her grandson, JAMES, Lord Wharnccliffe, has inherited the WORTLEY estates.

His lordship, who, after the Restoration, attained the highest renown as a naval officer, fell in the great sea-fight with the Dutch, off Southwold Bay, 28 May, 1672, and was s. by his eldest son,

EDWARD, 2nd earl; who m. Anne, 4th dau. of Richard Boyle, Earl of Burlington; and dying in Feb. 1688-9, was s. by his son,

EDWARD, 3rd earl, lord-lieutenant and custos-rotulorum of the co. Huntingdon. His lordship m. Elizabeth, 2nd dau. of John Wilmot, Earl of Rochester, and sister and co-heir of Charles, 3rd earl, and was s. at his decease, 20 Oct. 1729, by his grandson,

JOHN, 4th earl, (son of Edward - Richard, Viscount Hinchinbroke, who d. in 1722, by Elizabeth, only dau. of Alexander Popham, Esq. of Littlecote, co. Wilts — see BURKE's Commoners.) This nobleman, an eminent diplomatist and statesman, assisted at the celebrated congress of Aix-la-Chapelle, in 1748. His lordship was subsequently secretary of state and first-lord of the Admiralty. He m. in March, 1740-1, Judith, dau. of Charles, Viscount Fane, of the kingdom of Ireland, and was s. at his demise, in 1792, by his only surviving son,

* Lady MARY WORTLEY-MONTAGUE was born at Thoresby, in Nottinghamshire, the seat of her father, the Duke of Kingston, about 1690; and lost her mother, Mary, dau. of William, Earl of Denbigh, in 1694. She was educated under the superintendence of Bishop Burnet, and obtained a high degree of mental cultivation. Amongst her other talents was an extraordinary facility in learning languages; and in the assemblage of ten embassies from different countries, of which the society at Pera and Belgrade was composed, she had daily opportunities of extending her knowledge and practice of them. She even attempted the Turkish language, under the tuition of one of Mr. Wortley's interpreters. For several years after her return, and before the death of her husband, she resided upon the Continent, but came back to England in 1761, the year in which Mr. Montagu died. At that period she is thus described by Mrs. Montagu, in a letter to her sister, Mrs. William Robinson:—"You have lately returned us from Italy a very extraordinary personage, Lady Mary Wortley. When nature is at the trouble of making a very singular person, time does right in respecting it. Medals are preserved, when common coin is worn out; and as great geniuses are rather matters of curiosity than use, this lady seems to be reserved for a wonder to more than one generation. She does not look older than when she went abroad; has more than the vivacity of fifteen; and a memory which perhaps is unique. Several people visited her out of curiosity, which she did not like. I visit her because her husband and mine were cousin-germans; and though she had not any foolish partiality for her husband and his relations, I was very graciously received, and you may imagine entertained, by one who neither thinks, speaks, acts, or dresses, like anybody else. Her domestique is made up of all nations; and when you get into her drawing-room, you imagine that you are in the first story of the Tower of Babel. An Hungarian servant takes your name at the door; he gives it to an Italian, who delivers it to a Frenchman; the Frenchman to a Swiss; and the Swiss to a Polander; so that by the time you get to her ladyship's presence, you have changed your name five times without the expense of an act of parliament." Lady Mary Wortley-Montagu d. 21 Aug. 1762.

JOHN, 5th earl; who m. 1st, in 1766, Elizabeth, only surviving dau. of George, 2nd Earl of Halifax, by whom he had a son, George, Viscount Hinchinbroke, who m. Dorothy-Charlotte, dau. of Stephen Beckingham, Esq., but d. s. p. in 1790, and a dau., Caroline. His lordship m. 2ndly, in 1772, Lady Mary Paulett, dau. of Harry, sixth and last Duke of Bolton, by whom he had two sons and two daughters. The earl d. in 1814, and was s. by his eldest son,

GEORGE-JOHN, 6th earl, b. 5 March, 1773; m. 9 July, 1804, Louisa, dau. of Armar, 1st Earl of Belmore, and sister of the present earl, by whom he left issue,

JOHN-WILLIAM, present peer.

Harriet-Mary, m. 12 April, 1823, to the Hon. William Bingham Baring, Esq., M.P.

Lineage.

This family derives its honours from females, through the very ancient houses of Say and of Fienes. The founder of the former family in England,

WILLIAM DE SAY, one of the companions of the CONQUEROR in 1066, m. Agnes, dau. of the famous Hugh de Grentesmaisnill, and grandau. (maternally) of Ivo, Count de Ballemonte, and was grandfather of

WILLIAM DE SAY, Baron Say, whose grandson,

GEOFFREY DE SAY, was one of the barons who took up arms against KING JOHN; and dying in 1230, was s. by his son,

WILLIAM DE SAY, Lord of Berling, Sele, &c., in Kent, and governor of the castle of Rochester in 1260, who was s. by his son,

WILLIAM DE SAY, summoned to parliament in 1294; and dying in the following year, was s. by his son,

GEOFFREY DE SAY, who was summoned to parliament from 1313 to 1321. He d. in 1322, and was s. by his only son,

SIR GEOFFREY DE SAY, summoned to parliament from 1342 to 1353. This baron was admiral of the fleet, and knight-banneret. He m. Maud, dau. of Guy de Beauchamp, Earl of Warwick, by whom he had issue,

William de Say, who was summoned to parliament, but whose male line ceased with his son, JOHN, who was also summoned to parliament, and at whose decease the Barony of Say devolved upon his (John's) sister, ELIZABETH DE SAY, at whose decease, s. p. in 1399, it fell into ABEYANCE, as it still continues, between the descendants of her ladyship's aunts, IDONEA, Lady Clinton, and JOAN, Lady Fienes. (Refer to BURKE'S Extinct Peerage.)

Idonia, m. to John, 3rd Lord Clinton.

zabeth, dau. and heir of William Battisford, and had two sons,

Roger, (Sir) whose son,

Richard, marrying Joan, dau. and heir of Thomas, Lord Dacre, was declared Lord Dacre in the 37th year of HENRY IV.

And

SIR JAMES FIENES, who was summoned to parliament, 3 March, 1447, as Lord Saye and Sele, and created, on the 6th of the same month, in open parliament, the lords spiritual and temporal acquiescing, a baron of the realm, by the same title. His lordship had previously obtained a grant of the office of constable of Dover, and warden of the Cinque-Ports, to himself and his heirs male for ever, and was constituted lord - treasurer of England in 1449. The ultimate fate, however, of this powerful noble marks the instability of greatness at the period in which he lived. Being a prisoner in the Tower when Jack Cade's mob entered the city of London, he was dragged by the riotous multitude from thence to the Standard at Cheapside, and there beheaded, 4 July, 1451. The baron was s. by his son, (by his wife, Emmeline Cromer, of Wilingham, maternally, one of the co-heirs of Trillow,)

WILLIAM, 2nd Lord Saye and Sele. This nobleman obtained, in 1461, a grant of the office of constable of Porchester Castle, and of Pevensey Castle, for life; and being one of the lords who attended the king into the north, was made vice-admiral to Richard Nevil, the great Earl of Warwick, then high - admiral of England. SCARBOROUGH, EARL OF, (John Lumley-Saville,) Viscount Lumley, and Baron Lumley, of Lumley Castle, co. Durham, in the peerage of England; Viscount Lumley, of Waterford, in the peerage of Ireland; b. in 1788, s. as 8th earl, 21 Feb. 1835.

Lineage.

The surname of this family was assumed from LUMLEY on the Weare, in the bishoprick of Durham, and the family deduces its lineage from

LIULPH, (son of Osbert de Lumley,) who m. Algetha, dau. of Aldred, Earl of Northumberland, by Edgina, dau. of ETHELDRED II. This Liulph, who was a nobleman of great popularity in the time of the CONFESSOR, was murdered by means of Leoferiso, chaplain to Walcher, Bishop of Durham; a crime soon after avenged by the populace of Durham, who sacrificed both the chaplain and the prelate to their just resentment. The eldest son of Liulph, assuming the surname of Lumley, succeeded as

UCHTED DE LUMLEY, and from him lineally descended

ROGER DE LUMLEY, who m. Sybil, one of the daus. and co-heirs of the great Northumberland feudal baron, HUGH DE MOREWIC, and was s. by his son,

SIR ROBERT DE LUMLEY, who m. Lucia, one of the three sisters and co-heirs of William, Robert, and Thomas de Thweng, Barons Thweng, and was s. by his son,

SIR MARMADUKE DE LUMLEY, Knt., who first assumed the arms of the ancient House of Thweng, which arms the family have ever since borne. This Sir Marmaduke was s. by his eldest son,

ROBERT DE LUMLEY, who d. unm. 48th EDWARD III., and a minor, was s. by his brother,

SIR RALPH DE LUMLEY, Knt., who was summoned to parliament among the barons of the realm from 1384 to 1399. This nobleman was a deputy-governor of Berwick-upon-Tweed, under Henry de Percy, Earl of Northumberland, in the 15th of RICHARD II., and obtained royal permission, in the 16th of the same reign, to convert his manor-house of Lumley into a castle. His lordship joining subsequently, however, in the rebellion of Thomas de Holland, Earl of Kent, was attainted, and died in the field of battle. He had m. Eleanor, dau. of John, Lord Nevil, of Raby, and sister of Ralph, Earl of Westmorland, and left, with three daus., four sons; of whom the youngest, Marmaduke, was successively master of Trinity Hall, Cambridge, and chancellor of that University, Bishop of Carlisle, (1430,) treasurer of England, (1446,) and Bishop of Lincoln, (1451.) Thomas, the eldest son, d. in 1404, and was s. by his brother,

SIR JOHN DE LUMLEY, Lord Lumley, who doing homage in the 6th of HENRY IV., had livery of all castles, manors, and lands, whereof Sir Ralph Lumley, his father, was seised at the time of his attainder, and was restored in blood by parliament in 1411. This nobleman was actively engaged in the French wars of HENRY IV. and in those of HENRY V.; in the 10th year of whose reign he lost his life with Thomas, Duke of Clarence, at the battle of Baugy, in Anjou, (13 April, 1421,) and was s. by his only son,

THOMAS DE LUMLEY, who obtained from parliament, in 1461, a reversal of the attainder of his grandfather, and was summoned as a baron from 1461 to 1497, in which latter year he is supposed to have died. His lordship m. Margaret, dau. of Sir James Harrington, and was s. by his only son,

This nobleman was sheriff of Northumberland, a powerful office in those days, in the 2nd year of EDWARD IV. His lordship m. Elizabeth, dau. and heir of Roger Thornton, Esq., an opulent merchant of Newcastle-upon-Tyne, with whose bastard son, Giles Thornton, he had subsequently procrasted litigation, until at length he slew the said Giles at Windsor. His lordship's eldest son, Thomas Lumley, pre-deceasing him, left four sons and three daus. by his wife, Elizabeth-Plantagenet, natural dau. of EDW. IV., by Lady Elizabeth Lucy. Lord Lumley d. in the 23rd year of HENRY VII., and was s. by his grandson,

Barbara, m. to Humphrey Lloyd, Esq. of Denbigh, and her descendant, the REV. DR. LLOYD, claimed, unsuccessfully, the Barony of Lumley in 1723. (See BURKE'S Extinct Peerage.)

JOHN, who was restored in blood by an act of parliament passed in 1547, whereby it was enacted, that the said John and his heirs male should enjoy the dignity of a baron. This nobleman was one of the peers who sat in judgment upon MARY, Queen of Scots, and Robert Devereux, Earl of Essex. His lordship m. twice; but dying issueless, 11 April, 1609, the ancient Barony of Lumley expired, (the act of parliament which restored his lordship to the dignity of Lord Lumley not having repealed the attainder of his father,) as did the barony of the new creation, it being limited to heirs male only, while the estates devolved by his lordship's will, and by deed of settlement, upon his kinsman,

SIR RICHARD LUMLEY, Knt., (refer to the Hon. Anthony Lumley, 2nd son of Richard, Lord Lumley,) who was elevated to the peerage of Ireland, as Viscount Lumley, of Waterford, 12 July, 1628. This nobleman, adhering faithfully to the king during the civil wars, made Lumley Castle a garrison, and being a principal commander under Prince Rupert, marched with that general into the west of England, and was at the siege of Bristol, where he remained until its surrender, in 1645. His lordship m. Frances, dau. of Henry Shelley, Esq. of Worminghurst Park, in Sussex, and was s. on his decease by his grandson,

SCOTT.

SCOTT, SIR WILLIAM, of Ancrum, co. Roxburgh; b. 26 July, 1803; s. as 6th baronet, at the decease of his father; m. in 1828, Elizabeth, dau. and heir of David Anderson, Esq. of Balgay, co. Forfar, and has issue, four sons and one dau.

Lineage.

The founder of the ancient and far-spreading family of Scot in North Britain,

UCHTREDUS FILIUS SCOTI, was witness to the foundation charters of the abbeys of Holyrood House and Selkirk, by DAVID II., in the years 1128 and 1130. It does not appear, however, that this person had assumed the name of Scot as a surname, but that he was designated "filius Scoti," as the son of a Scotsman, to distinguish him from other persons called Uchtred, which was then a common Christian name beyond the Tweed. This Uchtred was father of

RICHARD, who did assume the surname of Scot, and was living in the reigns of MALCOLM IV. and WILLIAM THE LION. This Richard Scot founded the Priory of St. Andrews, and d. in 1158, leaving two sons,

Richard, ancestor of the Dukes of Buccleuch;

And

SIR MICHAEL SCOTT, a person of great power in the co. Fife about the middle of the twelfth century. This gentleman m. Margaret, dau. of Duncan Syras, of that ilk, by whom he had one son, DUNCAN, with whose consent, and that of his lady, Sir Michael made a donation to the monastery of Dunfermline, "pro salute animæ suæ," &c. &c., of the lands of Gascumenfen, in Fifeshire. The great-grandson of this Sir Michael,

SIR MICHAEL SCOTT, 2nd Baron of Balweary, was a person of very extraordinary abilities, and made a remarkable figure at the time in which he lived. After pursuing, with unusual success, the study of languages, belles lettres, and mathematics at home, Sir Michael travelled into France, where he remained several years, and thence passed into Germany, where he spent sometime at the court of FREDERICK II. The extraordinary discoveries of Sir Michael in the science of chemistry obtained him the character of a magician; and to this day there are marvellous tales told in Scotland of his communings with the evil one. In the year 1290, Sir Michael Scott and Sir Michael de Wemyss were, by the states of the nation, deputed ambassadors-extraordinary to the court of Norway, to bring home QUEEN MARGARET, then the undoubted heir to the crown of Scotland, and who was to have espoused Prince Edward of England; but, unfortunately, her majesty died at Orkney, in her way to Scotland, in 1291. Sir Michael d. about the year 1294, and from him lineally descended

SIR WILLIAM SCOTT, of Balweary, who, in the lifetime of his father, was put in possession of the lands and Barony of Innertiel, and was long designated by that title. This gentleman had two sons,

William, who succeeded him;

And

ANDREW SCOTT, Esq., who obtained from his father the lands and Barony of Glendoick, co. Perth, with the express provision that, after his death, those lands should return to the family of Balweary. This Andrew lived temp. QUEEN MARY, and obtained the lands of Kirkstyle, co. Perth, which subsequently became the title of his family. The great-grandson of this Andrew,

I. JOHN SCOTT, Esq. of Kirkstyle, obtaining a charter under the great seal, in 1670, of the lands and Barony of Ancrum, assumed that designation, and was created a Baronet of Nova Scotia, 27 Oct. 1671, with remainder to his heirs male generally. Sir Patrick m. 2ndly, Margaret, dau. of Sir William Scot, of Harden, by whom he had two sons and four daus., viz.,

I. WALTER SCOTT, the illustrious "Author of Waverley," was born in the College Wynd of Edinburgh, 15 Aug. 1771. He received his education at Mr. Leechman's seminary, at the High School, and finally at the University of Edinburgh: he was called to the bar, as an advocate, 10 July, 1792. His love of literature, however, prevented his entering with energy into his profession, and he very soon relinquished the labours of the law for those of an author, more congenial to his taste. After attaining the highest reputation as a poet, he commenced his brilliant career as a novelist, by the anonymous publication of Waverley, in 1814. On the 22nd April, 1820, Mr. Scott was created a Baronet, his baronetcy being the first conferred by KING GEORGE IV., and the only one during that year. Though generally ascribed to Scott, the authorship of the Waverley Novels remained an inviolate secret until the failure of the publishers, Messrs. Constable and Co., in 1826. By this unfortunate event, Sir Walter Scott's affairs were brought to the verge of ruin; but he met the calamity with inflexible courage and honour. "Gentlemen," said he to his creditors, "time and I against any two: let me take this good ally into company, and I believe I shall be able to pay you every farthing." This, had he lived, he would have accomplished; for during the last years of his life the revenue of his intellect may be fixed at £10,000 a year. In the winter of 1830 his health first declined, and in the autumn of the ensuing year he went upon the Continent, but finding his strength rapidly decay, he returned, and died in Scotland, 21 Sept. 1832, leaving behind him a name which already receives honour in every civilized nation of the globe, and which will go down to posterity coupled with those of Shakspeare, Milton, Burns, and Byron. Sir Walter, who was one of the principal clerks of the Session of Scotland, and sheriff-depute of the shire of Selkirk, m. 24 Dec. 1797, Margaret-Charlotte, dau. of Jean Charpentier, of Lyons, a devoted royalist during the French Revolution, and sister of Charles Carpenter, Esq., commercial resident at Salem, by whom (who d. 14 May, 1826) he had issue,

SETON, SIR HENRY-JOHN, of Abercorn, in the county of Linlithgow.

Lineage.

This very ancient and eminent family deduces its descent from

DOUGAL DE SETON, who lived in the reign of KING EDGAR, son of MALCOLM III., and was father of

SECKER DE SETON, who is found a witness in the charters of KING DAVID I., and from whom lineally descended

SIR CHRISTOPHER SETON, one of the great Scottish barons who supported ROBERT THE BRUCE; and at the battle of Methven, in 1306, had the honour of being of the party which rescued that monarch from the hands of the English. Soon afterwards, however, Sir Christopher had the misfortune to be taken prisoner himself in the castle of Lochdown, and with his brother John, and other Scottish patriots, was ordered to be put to death by KING EDWARD. This gallant supporter of his country's cause m. Christian Bruce, sister of KING ROBERT, and was s. by his only son,

SIR ALEXANDER SETON, who was restored by his uncle, KING ROBERT BRUCE, to all the lands possessed by his progenitors in Scotland, and obtained several other important grants and privileges from the same monarch. Sir Alexander was governor of Berwick-upon-Tweed; and heading an army to oppose Edward Balliol, who landed in Fifeshire, he fell in the conflict, near Kinghorn, in 1332, and was s. by his eldest son,

SIR ALEXANDER SETON, in his estates and the governorship of Berwick. This gallant person has been justly celebrated for his defence of the town of Berwick against KING EDWARD III. and the whole English army. The English monarch having called upon the garrison to surrender, threatened, in case of refusal, to put the governor's two sons, then in his hands as hostages, to death; but nothing could induce Sir Alexander to give up the town so long as he had the power of defending it; and the king is accused of having put his menace into execution, by causing William and Thomas Seton to be hung upon a gibbet within view of their gallant father. Berwick subsequently fell, after the battle of Halidon Hill, in 1333. Sir Alexander d. in 1337, and was s. by his son,

SIR ALEXANDER SETON, of Seton, who was s. by his son,

SIR ALEXANDER SETON. This gentleman m. Catherine, dau. of Sir William Sinclair, of Herdmanstown, by whom he had two sons,

Sir John, afterwards Lord Seton, progenitor of the Earls of Winton; and

SIR ALEXANDER SETON, who m. Elizabeth, dau. and sole heiress of Sir Adam Gordon, by which marriage he obtained the estates of Gordon, Huntly, &c. This Sir Alexander, who was deputed one of the ambassadors to the court of England, to negotiate for KING JAMES's liberty, had been created by that monarch a lord of parliament. He was s. at his decease by his eldest son, ALEXANDER SETON, Lord Gordon. This nobleman m. thrice: 1st, Jean, dau. of Robert, Lord Keith, by whom he had no issue; 2ndly, Egidia, dau. and sole heiress of John Hay, Esq. of Tillybody, by whom he acquired the lands of Touch and other great estates, and had an only son, ALEXANDER. He m. 3rdly, Elizabeth, dau. of William, Lord Crichton, lord-chancellor of Scotland, by whom he had several children. His lordship was created Earl of Huntly in 1445, and by a second patent, in 1449, he had the succession altered from heirs male generally to the heirs male of his third marriage; in consequence of which, his eldest son by that marriage, George Seton, s. at his decease to the peerage; whilst his eldest son by his second marriage,

SIR ALEXANDER SETON, inherited the lands of Touch, Tillybody, &c. This Sir Alexander being a person of great influence, was appointed heritable armour-bearer and squire of the body to KING JAMES III. He m. Elizabeth, dau. of Thomas, 2nd Earl of Marr, and was s. by his only son,

SIR ALEXANDER SETON, of Touch; from whom lineally descended

I. SIR WILLIAM SETON, who obtained a charter under the great seal, in 1662, of the lands and Barony of Abercorn, co. Linlithgow, and was created a Baronet of Nova Scotia in 1663, with remainder to his heirs male whatsoever. Sir William m. Christian, dau. of George Dundas, of Dundas, and was s. by his eldest son,

II. SIR WALTER, an advocate before the court of Session, and commissary-clerk of Edinburgh. This gentleman m. Eupham, dau. of Sir Robert Murray, of Priestfield, and was s. by his eldest son,

III. SIR HENRY, who m. Barbara, dau. of Sir John Wemyss, Bart. of Bogie, by whom he had four sons and a dau. Upon the demise of the last James Seton, Esq. of Touch, without issue, Sir Henry became undoubted male heir of Sir Alexander Seton, eldest son of Alexander, Lord Gordon, 1st Earl of Huntly. He d. in 1751, and was s. by his eldest son,

IV. SIR HENRY, of Culbeg, who m. Margaret, dau. of Sir Alexander Hay, Esq. of Drumelzier, and had,

SETON, SIR WILLIAM COOTE, of Pitmedden, co. Aberdeen; b. 19 Dec. 1808; m. 26 Nov. 1834, Eliza-Henrietta, 2nd dau. of the late Henry Lumsden, Esq., and relict of Captain Wilson, of the Hon. E. I. Co.'s service, and has issue. Sir William s. as 7th baronet, upon the decease of his grandfather, in 1819.

Lineage.

From a curious MS., entitled "The Genealogie and History of the illustrious House and Sirname of Seton, collected and sett furth by Sir Richard Maitland, of Le-thington, a sister's son of the said house," (father of the famous secretary so memorable in the days of the unhappy Mary, and ancestor of the noble house of Lauderdale,) we extract the following particulars regarding the origin of this family:—"There were few surnames in Scotland (says Sir Richard) before the time of KING MALCOLM CANMORE, except that after the manner yet used in the highlands, they used their fathers' names subjoined to their own, in form of a patronymic. The said KING MALCOLM gave to his nobles and gentlemen particular surnames; some by reason of their offices, and some after the names of the lands which they possessed, and some for other causes. Amongst whom the predecessor of this family got the name of Seton, as the chronicles testify, by occasion of the possession of the lands of that name, which was given to the lands by reason that the town thereof is situate hard upon the sea.

"I cannot find the proper name of him who first received the surname; the first whose proper name I find is called Dougal Seton; he was son, or else nephew, to him who first received this surname, and lived in the time of KING ALEXANDER I."

CHRISTALL SETON, (and then continues,) "who, in the days of William Wallace, was made knight by KING ROBERT BRUCE, and styled (for his many valiant acts against the Englishmen) Good Christall Seton. At the field of Methven, KING ROBERT BRUCE being taken captive, his taker crying in derision, 'who will help the new made king?' the said Christall rescued the king, and beat down them who had him in hands. He m. the sister of the said KING ROBERT, who gave him the double-tressure about his coat-of-arms, in like manner as it is borne by the king himself. At length he was taken and carried to London, where he was most cruelly put to death; which, when KING ROBERT heard, as he was walking upon a little hill beside the town of Dumfries, after much sorrow and regret for the unworthy death of so noble a knight, in the same place where he was walking founded a chapel in honour of the Virgin Mary; and, in remembrance of the said Sir Christall, founded a priest to do service therein perpetually, and to pray for the said Sir Christall, mortifying five pounds yearly out of the barony of Caerlaverock for sustentation of the said priest. The chapel was commonly called Christall's chapel, and was standing undecayed in 1552." From this gallant and unfortunate knight we pass to

WILLIAM SETON, who was created a lord of parliament. This nobleman (we are informed) bought the marriage of the lady, heretrix of Gordon and Strabougie, intending to bestow her on his eldest son, John; but he being in affection of a daughter of the Earl of March, did marry her without his father's knowledge; whereof the said Lord William bestowed her on his second son,

ALEXANDER SETON, of whom are descended the Earls of Huntly, and the Setons of Meldrum, of Touch, and Tillybodie; for she bore to him two sons; the eldest, Alexander, was 1st Earl of Huntly, having adopted the name of Gordon; and the second,

WILLIAM SETON, m. Elizabeth, dau. and heiress of William de Meldrum, by whom he got that barony and several other estates. From this William lineally descended

WILLIAM SETON, of Meldrum, who s. in 1533, and m. 1st, Janet, dau. of James Gordon, Esq. of Lesmoir, by whom he had three sons; and 2ndly, Margaret, dau. of Innes, of Leuchars, by whom he had George, chancellor of Aberdeen, and

JAMES SETON, who having acquired the lands of Pitmedden, in Aberdeenshire, adopted that designation. The grandson of this gentleman,

JOHN SETON, of Pitmedden, a devoted royalist, was shot through the heart by a cannon-ball, with the king's standard in his hand, at the battle of the bridge of Dee, June, 1639. He had m. in 1633, Elizabeth, daughter of Sir Samuel Johnston, Knt., and left two sons, viz.,

JAMES, a gallant naval officer; d. of wounds received in an engagement with the Dutch, in 1667.

ALEXANDER, who continued the line.

The second son,

I. SIR ALEXANDER SETON, Knt. of Pitmedden, having obtained great eminence as a lawyer, was appointed one of the senators of the College of Justice and a lord of Justiciary in 1677. He was also elected knight of the shire for Aberdeen, and created a Baronet of Nova Scotia, 15 Jan. 1684. After the Revolution, he was offered the station of lord of Session by KING WILLIAM, but declined the office, deeming it inconsistent with the oaths he had already taken; he retired therefore into private life. Sir Alexander m. Margaret, dau. of William Lauder, Esq., and had issue,

Lineage.

RICHARD COOPER, Esq., succeeding his father and brother in large estates in the cos. of Sussex and Southampton, augmented those possessions by the manor of Paulett, which he purchased in the 23rd HENRY VIII., from Sir Amias Paulett, Knt. He m. Jane, dau. of Sir John Kingsmill, of Sydmonton, co. Southampton; and dying 8 May, 1566, was s. by his eldest son,

SIR JOHN COOPER, M.P., in 1586, for Whitechurch, Hants; who m. Martha, dau. of Anthony Skutt, Esq. of Stanton Drew, in Somersetshire; and dying in 1610, was s. by his only son,

I. JOHN COOPER, Esq. of Rockbourne, co. Southampton, who was created a Baronet, 4 July, 1622. Sir John m. 1st, Anne, dau. and sole heiress of Sir Anthony Ashley, Knt. of Wimbourne St. Giles, co. Dorset, secretary-at-war in the reign of QUEEN ELIZABETH, by whom he had two sons and a dau. He espoused 2ndly, Mary, relict of Sir Charles Morrison, and dau. and co-heiress of Baptist Hicks, Viscount Camden, but had no other issue. He d. 23 March, 1631, and was s. by his elder son,

II. SIR ANTHONY-ASHLEY COOPER, b. 22 July, 1621, who became one of the most prominent statesmen of the troubled times in which he lived. Actively engaged in public affairs during the civil wars, Sir Anthony is to be found at the commencement espousing the cause of royalty; subsequently a parliamentarian; and finally, contributing to the Restoration of the monarchy; after the accomplishment of which desirable event he was elevated to the peerage, by the title of Baron Ashley, of Wimborne St. Giles, co. Dorset, (20 April, 1661,) and under that title became a member of the celebrated cabinet of CHARLES II., so well known as the "Cabal." His lordship was constituted lord-lieutenant of the co. Dorset in Jan. 1671-2, and advanced to an earldom, by the titles of Baron Cooper, of Paulett, co. Somerset, and EARL OF SHAFTESBURY, 23 April, 1672, and declared, in the Nov. following, lord-high-chancellor of England. To the Earl of Shaftesbury this country owes her second great charter of freedom, the HABEAS CORPUS ACT. His lordship was not only the originator of that measure, but in its doubtful course through both houses he preserved it, and ensured its ultimate success. Lord Shaftesbury was also the first that introduced a bill to render the judges independent of the crown. The earl m. 1st, Margaret, dau. of Thomas, Lord Coventry, by whom he had no issue; he espoused 2ndly, Frances, dau. of David (Cecil), Earl of Exeter, by which lady he had one surviving son, ANTHONY; and 3rdly, Margaret, dau. of William, Lord Spencer, of Wormlighton, but had no other issue. His lordship becoming a strong opponent of the measures of the court, was obliged to retire to Holland, where he died of the gout in his stomach, 22 Jan. 1683. Of this wily politician Horace Walpole gives the following character:—"As Lord Rochester was immersed only in the vices of that reign he was an innocent character compared to those who were plunged in its crimes; a great weight of the latter fell to the share of the lord in question, who had canted tyranny under CROMWELL, practised it under CHARLES II., and who disgraced the cause of liberty by being the busiest instrument for it when every other party had rejected it. It was the weakest vanity in him to brag that CROMWELL would have made him king; the best he could hope for was not to be believed; if true, it only proved that CROMWELL took him for a fool. That he should have acted in the trial of the regicides was but agreeable to his character, or to his want of it. Let us hasten to his works; he was rather a copious writer for faction than an author, for in no light can one imagine that he wished to be remembered." He is elsewhere, however, described as a great encourager of learning and learned men; a master of several languages; a critic in the Latin, which he spoke with the utmost elegance and fluency; as also well versed in Greek and French, and a complete master of the English, his speeches being equalled by few of his contemporaries—surpassed by none. He is said to have made the laws his chief study, and that having such a capacious memory, and so true a judgment, everything he read he made his own. Deeply read, too, in ancient and modern history; knowing the interests of the several princes and states in Christendom, with the characters of the ministers and persons of note at every court; the names of whom, with some account of each, he had by him written in an alphabetical tablet. As chancellor, Lord Shaftesbury's merits were admitted by all—in his judicial capacity he had no enemy. His lordship was s. by his only son,

ANTHONY-ASHLEY, 2nd earl; who m. Dorothy, dau. of John, Earl of Rutland, and had issue,

ANTHONY-ASHLEY, 3rd earl, b. in 1670; a man of letters, who attained at one period considerable reputation in the literary world, and whom Voltaire designated the boldest English philosopher. His lordship m. in 1709, Jane, dau. of Thomas Ewer, Esq. of Lea, co. Hertford; and dying in Feb. 1712-13, was s. by his only son,

ANTHONY-ASHLEY, 4th earl. His lordship m. 1st, in 1725, Lady Susannah Noel, dau. of Baptist, 3rd Earl of

ODARD, one of the companions in arms of the CONQUEROR, having seated himself in that county, acquired large possessions, according to Domesday-Book, from Hugh Lupus, Earl of Chester. From this Odard lineally descended

SIR THOMAS DUTTON, of Dutton, high-sheriff of Cheshire in 1268, whose great-grandson,

SIR THOMAS DUTTON, was seneschal, governor, and receiver of the castle and honour of Halton, in Cheshire, and sheriff of that county in the 30th and 33rd of EDWARD III. He d. in 1381, and from him descended

SIR PIERS DUTTON, who built, in 1539, the New Hall at Dutton, still in part remaining. His great-great-grandson,

THOMAS DUTTON, Esq., purchased the manor of Sherborne, in Gloucestershire; and dying 4 Oct. 1581, was s. by his eldest son,

WILLIAM DUTTON, Esq. of Sherborne, who served the office of sheriff for the co. of Gloucester in 1590 and in 1601. He m. Anne, dau. of Sir Ambrose Nicholas, Knt., lord mayor of London, by whom he had seven sons and four daus., and was s. at his decease, in 1618, by his eldest surviving son,

JOHN DUTTON, Esq. of Sherborne, M.P. for, and deputy-lieut. of, the co. of Gloucester. Of this gentleman, Wood, in his Athenæ Oxonienses, speaks thus:—"John Dutton, Esq. of Sherbourne, in Gloucestershire. He was one of the knights for that county to sit in the said parliament, 1640; but being frightened thence by the tumults that came up to the parliament doors, as other royalists were, he conveyed himself privately to Oxford, and sate there. He was a learned and prudent man, and as one of the richest, so one of the meekest men in England. He was active in making the defence and drawing up the articles of Oxon when the garrison was to be surrendered to the parliament; for which, and his steady loyalty, he was afterwards forced to pay a round sum in Goldsmiths' Hall,

His lordship s. as 17th earl, at the decease of his uncle, 6 April, 1827. Lord Shrewsbury is premier earl of England, and hereditary lord-high-steward of Ireland, (see Waterford and Wexford, Earl of.)

Lineage.

This family deduces its descent from a period antecedent to the Conquest; the first person of note, however, upon record is,

RICHARD DE TALBOT, mentioned in Domes-day-Book as holding nine hides of land from Walter Giffard, Earl of Buckingham. This Richard m. the dau. of Gerard de Gournay, by whom he had two sons,

Geffrey, progenitor of the Talbots of Thornhill and Bashall, in Yorkshire;

And

HUGH DE TALBOT, ancestor of the house of Shrewsbury, who was made governor of the castle of Plessey, in Essex, by his uncle, Hugh de Gournay, in 1118, (then in rebellion against HENRY I.,) after he had caused the king's governor to be put to death. Hugh de Talbot subsequently assumed the habit of a monk, and retired into the monastery of Beaubek, in Normandy, leaving three sons, Richard, William, and Hugh, by his wife, Beatrix, dau. of William de Mandeville. The eldest son,

RICHARD DE TALBOT, obtained from KING HENRY II. a grant of the lordship of Eccleswall and Linton, co. Hereford, which grant KING RICHARD I. confirmed for two hundred marks. This Richard de Talbot m. a dau. of Stephen Bulmer, of Appletreewick, co. York, and was s. by his eldest son,

GILBERT DE TALBOT, who was present at the coronation of KING RICHARD I.; in the 5th of whose reign he had lands given to him in Linton, for the custody of the castle of Ludlow. In 1199, this Gilbert paid a fine of forty shillings that he might not go beyond sea, and that he might have the scutage of his own demesnes. He was s. by his son,

RICHARD DE TALBOT, who m. Aliva, dau. of Alan Basset, Baron of Wickombe, co. Bucks, sister of Gilbert Basset, justice of England, and widow of Dru de Montacute, by whom he had issue,

Richard, who was elected Bishop of London in the 46th of HENRY III., but d. before consecration;

And an elder son,

GILBERT DE TALBOT, his successor, who was made governor of the castles of Grosmond, Skenfrith, and Blancminster, by KING HENRY III., and constituted justice-itinerant for the co. of Hereford by the same monarch. He m. Gwendaline, dau. of Rhese ap Griffith, Prince of South Wales, and relinquished in consequence his paternal arms, viz., bendy of ten pieces, ar. and gu., to assume a lion, rampant, or, in a field, gules, with a bordure, engrailed, of the first, the armorial ensigns of the Princes of Wales, which his descendants have ever since borne. He d. in 1274, and was s. by his son,

RICHARD DE TALBOT, feudal baron of Eccleswall, sheriff of Gloucester in the 28th of EDWARD I.; who m. Sarah, dau. of William Beauchamp, Baron of Elmley and Earl of Warwick; and dying in 1306, was s. by his eldest son,

SIR GEORGE TALBOT, who being involved with Thomas Plantagenet, Earl of Lancaster, in the murder of Piers de Gaveston, Earl of Cornwall, had his pardon for the same. This Sir Gilbert, who was lord-chamberlain to the king in the 2nd EDWARD III., had summons to parliament as a baron in 1331; and dying in 1346, was s. by his son, (by Anne, his wife, dau. of William, Lord Boteler, of Wem,)

SIR RICHARD TALBOT, 2nd baron, summoned to parliament from 1341 to 1355. This nobleman was an eminent warrior in the reign of EDWARD III., and was made a knight-banneret. He d. in 1356, possessed of immense estates, (amongst which was Goderich Castle, co. Hereford, where he chiefly resided,) and was s. by his only son,

GILBERT, 3rd baron, summoned to parliament from 1362 to 1386. This nobleman m. 1st, Patronil, dau. of James Bottiller, Earl of Ormonde, by whom he had an only son; and 2ndly, Joan, dau. of Ralph, Earl of Stafford; and was s. at his decease, in 1387, by his son,

SIR RICHARD, 4th baron; who having m. Ankaret, sister and eventually sole-heiress of John, Baron Strange, of Blackmere, was summoned to parliament (A.D. 1387), in the lifetime of his father, as "Ricardo Talbot de Blackmere" and "Ricardo Talbot de Godericke Castell." This nobleman d. in 1396, leaving five sons and four daus.; of whom

Richard, the 3rd son, was Archbishop of Dublin for thirty-two years; during which period he was successively lord-chancellor, lord-justice, and lord-deputy of Ireland.

Lord Talbot was s. by his eldest son,

SIR GILBERT, 5th baron; who m. 1st, Joan, 2nd dau. of Thomas, (of Woodstock,) Duke of Gloucester, youngest son of KING EDWARD III., by whom he had no issue; and 2ndly, Beatrix, illegitimate dau. of JOHN I., King of Portugal, and widow of Thomas, Earl of Arundel, by whom he left at his decease, in 1419, a dau., his successor,

ANKARET TALBOT; at whose decease in minority, 13 Dec. 1431, the original Barony of Talbot and that of Talbot of Blackmere devolved upon her ladyship's uncle,

SIR JOHN TALBOT, 6th baron; who having m. Maud, eldest dau. and co-heir of Thomas Nevil, Lord Furnival, had been summoned to parliament, in 1409, as "Johanni Talbot de Furnyvall." His lordship was appointed in 1412, lord-justice of Ireland, and in two years afterwards, lord-lieutenant of the same kingdom, in which important government he continued for seven years. He subsequently distinguished himself in the French wars of the fifth HENRY, but his highest renown was attained upon the same field, in the reign of HENRY VI., under the REGENT, JOHN PLANTAGENET, DUKE OF BEDFORD, when his name alone became terrible, in consequence of the various successful expeditions he had conducted. His lordship was attacked, however, by the MAID OF ORLEANS, at Patay, in 1429, and his army being entirely routed, he became captive to the enterprising and enthusiastic heroine. He was exchanged soon after for Ambrose de Lore, a celebrated French captain, and continuing to distinguish himself in arms, he was created, 20 May, 1441, EARL OF SHREWSBURY. His lordship was subsequently re-constituted lord-lieutenant of Ireland, and elevated to the peerage of that kingdom, 17 July, 1445, as Earl of Waterford, having been appointed at the same time lord-high-steward of Ireland. This celebrated general being again engaged in foreign warfare, advanced to the relief of Chastillon, and giving the besieging French army battle, 20 July, 1453, in the eightieth year of his age, received a wound in the thigh, which proved immediately mortal. His lordship was said to have been victorious in forty different battles and dangerous skirmishes. The earl had two surviving sons by his first wife,

JOHN, his successor.
Christopher, (Sir.)

And by his second, Margaret, eldest dau. and co-heiress of Richard Beauchamp, Earl of Warwick,

JOHN, who was created, in 1443, Lord Lisle, of Kingston Lisle, in Berkshire; and in 1452, Viscount Lisle. His lordship fell, with his gallant father, at Chastillon. He m. Joan, dau. and co-heiress of Sir Thomas Chedder, of Chedder, in Somersetshire, and left, with two daus.,

THOMAS, 2nd viscount. This nobleman having a dispute with William, Lord Berkeley, regarding some land, lost his life in a skirmish at Wotton-under-Edge, 20 March, 1469, when his honours expired.

Humphrey, (Sir) marshal of Calais; d. s. p. in 1492.
Lewis, (Sir) of Penyard, Herts.
Joan, m. to James, 1st Lord Berkeley.

His lordship was s. by his son,

JOHN, 2nd earl, K.G., lord-treasurer of Ireland during the administration of his father, and subsequently lord-treasurer of England. His lordship fell at the battle of Northampton, 10 July, 1460, fighting under the red rose. The earl m. 1st, Catherine, dau. and co-heiress of Sir Edward Burnel, but had no issue. He espoused 2ndly, Elizabeth, dau. of James Butler, Earl of Ormonde and Wiltshire, and left, (with other issue,)

Gilbert, (Sir) of Grafton, co. Worcester, who was high-sheriff of Shropshire, temp. RICHARD III., but a staunch adherent of the Earl of Richmond at Bosworth, the right wing of whose army Sir Gilbert commanded in that memorable field, and received the honour of knighthood, with a grant of the manor of Grafton and other lands, for his valiant conduct, from the victorious prince. In two years afterwards, Sir Gilbert had a command at the battle of Stoke, when the Earl of Lincoln and Lambert Simnel were defeated, and he was then made a knight-banneret. Sir Gilbert m. 1st, Elizabeth, dau. of Henry, Lord Scrope, of Bolton, by whom he had two sons, Gilbert and Humphry, who both d. issueless. He espoused 2ndly, Audrey, dau. of Sir John Cotton, Knt., and relict of Thomas Barton, Esq., and of Sir Richard Gardiner, lord mayor of London, by whom he left at his decease, in 1516, an only son,

SIR JOHN TALBOT, of Albrighton, co. Salop, who eventually inherited the manor of Grafton; and dying in 1549, was s. by his son,

JOHN, (Sir) whose son,

JOHN, (Sir) m. Catherine, dau. of Sir William Petre, Knt., secretary of state to QUEEN MARY, and left at his decease,

GEORGE, of whom hereafter, as 9th EARL OF SHREWSBURY.

John, of Longford, whose son,

JOHN, s. his uncle as 10th earl.

John, 2nd Earl of Shrewsbury, was s. by his eldest son,

JOHN, 3rd earl; who m. Catherine, dau. of Humphrey Stafford, Duke of Buckingham; and dying in 1473, was s. by his eldest son,

GEORGE, 4th earl; who was installed a knight of the Garter, in 1488, for his valiant conduct at the battle of Stoke, 16 June, 1487. His lordship m. 1st, Anne, dau. of William, Lord Hastings, by whom he had six sons and five daughters. He espoused 2ndly, Elizabeth, dau. and co-heir of Sir Richard Walden, Knt. of Erith, in Kent, by whom he had one surviving dau., Anne, m. 1st, to Peter Compton, son and heir of Sir William Compton, Knt.; and 2ndly, to William Herbert, Earl of Pembroke. Lord Shrewsbury d. 26 July, 1538, and was s. by his second and eldest surviving son,

FRANCIS, 5th earl, K.G.; who had been summoned to parliament as a baron in the lifetime of his father, (7 Feb. 1532-3.) "This nobleman," says Lodge, "although of no ordinary abilities, appears to have been confined almost entirely to a military life. The bravery, prudence, and fidelity which had distinguished him in his important public situations during the reign of QUEEN MARY, induced ELIZABETH to retain him amongst those few servants of the late reign whom she admitted to her privy-council when she mounted the throne; but his steady adherence to the religion of his ancestors probably obstructed his further promotion. Of the whole body of the temporal peers who had so lately, and so unanimously, subscribed to the recognition of the temporal authority (of the papal see) only this nobleman and one more (Viscount Montague) could now be found to oppose the revocation of that concession." He survived this uncourtly act of sincerity but a few months, and dying 25 Sept. 1560, was s. by his only son, (by his first wife, Mary, dau. of Thomas, Lord Dacre, of Gillesland,)

GEORGE, 6th earl, K.G. This nobleman had the custody of MARY, Queen of Scots, committed to his charge in the 11th of ELIZABETH, and was appointed, 16 Jan. 1571-2, at the arraignment of the Duke of Norfolk, lord-high-steward of England; and after the execution of that nobleman, earl-marshal. His lordship m. 1st, Gertrude, dau. of Thomas Manners, Earl of Rutland, by whom he had four sons and three daughters; and 2ndly, Elizabeth, dau. and co-heiress of John Hardwick, of Hardwick, by whom he had no issue. Of this lady, Lodge says, "she had been already thrice married; to Robert Barley, Esq. of Barley, co. Derby; to Sir William Cavendish; and to Sir William St. Loo, captain of the guard to QUEEN ELIZABETH. She prevailed upon the first of these gentlemen, who died without issue, to settle his estate on her and her heirs, who were abundantly produced from her second marriage. Her third husband, who was very rich, was led by her persuasions to make a similar disposition of his fortune, to the utter prejudice of his daughters by a former wife; and now, unsated with the wealth and caresses of three husbands, she finished her conquests by marrying the Earl of Shrewsbury, the richest and most powerful peer of his time. To sum up her character, she was a woman of a masculine understanding and conduct; proud, furious, selfish, and unfeeling. She was a builder, a buyer and seller of estates, a money-lender, a farmer, and a merchant of lead, coals, and timber. She lived to a great old age, and d. in 1607, immensely rich." The Earl of Shrewsbury was s. in 1590, by his eldest surviving son,

GILBERT, 7th earl, K.G.; who m. Mary, dau. of his step-mother, by Sir William Cavendish, and left three daughters, viz.,

Alathea, m. to Thomas Howard, Earl of Arundel.

Upon these ladies the greater part of the earl's estates devolved, and the Baronies of Talbot, Furnival, and Strange of Blackmere, fell into abeyance until the decease of the two elder without issue, when those dignities are presumed to have vested in Alathea, the third daughter, (see BURKE'S Extinct and Dormant Peerage.) The earldom passed to the deceased lord's brother,

EDWARD, 8th earl; at whose decease without surviving issue, 8 Feb. 1617, the earldom reverted to his kinsman,

GEORGE TALBOT, Esq. of Grafton, as 9th earl, (refer to descendants of Sir Gilbert Talbot,* of Grafton, son of James, 2nd earl.) His lordship dying, however, unmarried, the peerage devolved upon his nephew,

JOHN, 10th earl, (son of John Talbot, Esq., by Eleanor, dau. and heiress of Sir Thomas Baskerville, Knt. of Brinsop, in Herefordshire, see BURKE'S Commoners, vol. i. p. 89, for an account of the ancient family of BASKERVILLE.) His lordship m. Mary, daughter of Sir Francis Fortescue, K.B. of Salden Hill, and had, with other issue,

FRANCIS, his successor.

Gilbert, m. Jane Flatsbury, and left,

GILBERT, } 13th and 14th Earls of Shrewsbury.
GEORGE, }

He was s. in 1653, by his eldest surviving son,

FRANCIS, 11th earl. This nobleman m. 1st, Anne, dau. and heiress of Sir John Conyers, of Stockburne, by whom he had an only surviving dau., Mary, m. to John Stonor, Esq. of Watlington Park, co. Oxford. His lordship m. 2ndly, Anna-Maria, dau. of Robert, 2nd Earl of Cardigan, by whom he had two sons; and dying 16 March, 1667, of a wound received in a duel with George Villiers, 2nd Duke of Buckingham, was s. by his elder son,

CHARLES, the 12th earl, b. in 1660, who was created, 30 April, 1694, Marquess of Alton, co. Stafford, and DUKE OF SHREWSBURY, and installed a knight of the Garter. His grace was a prominent statesman in the reigns of WILLIAM AND MARY, QUEEN ANNE, and GEORGE I., and filled some of the highest official situations. He d. 1 Feb. O.S., 1717, and leaving no issue, the dukedom and marquessate expired, but the earldom &c. reverted to his cousin,

The REV. GILBERT TALBOT, as 13th earl, a clergyman of the catholic church, (refer to Gilbert, son of the 10th earl.) This nobleman dying in 1743, the honours devolved upon his brother,

* From Gilbert also descend Earl Talbot and the present Sir George Talbot, Bart.

HENRY ST. CLAIR (descended from Sir William de Sancto Claro, who obtained the Barony of Roslin in the reign of KING DAVID I.) had his claim to the Earldom of Orkney admitted by HAKON VI., King of Norway, in 1379, and dying about 1400, was s. by his eldest son,

KING JAMES III. having, however, acquired the islands of Orkney in marriage with Margaret of Denmark, in 1469, Lord Orkney resigned the earldom into his majesty's hands, and it was annexed to the crown by act of parliament, 1471. In lieu of this resignation his lordship obtained a grant of the castle of Ravenscraig, in Fife, with considerable territorial possessions adjacent to it, and was thenceforward styled Lord Sinclair and EARL OF CAITHNESS. signalized himself by such extraordinary acts of valour, and contributed so much by his personal prowess to that great victory, that, after the battle, BRUCE presented him with the sword which he (BRUCE) himself had fought with on that day, stained with the blood of the enemy. This sword had a basket-hilt, the blade gilded about a span down from the hilt. On one side of the blade was the inscription, in three lines, "Given to Sir William St. Clair for his good service;" on the other, the arms of Scotland and the rugged croce, with this inscription—"Le roy me donne, St. Clair me porte." It was preserved in the family till 1649, at the time CROMWELL was in Scotland, when this much-honoured relict was stolen from the family armory by a servant named Armstrong, who went with it to the moss-troopers. Being taken by the English, he was hanged at the bridge of Lauder; but what became of the sword could never be ascertained. In ROBERT BRUCE's reign there is a charter granted to SIR WILLIAM ST. CLAIR, of Herdmanston, of the lands of Cessford, in Roxburghshire. In the reign of ROBERT II., a charter is granted by Margaret Stewart, Countess of Marr, daughter of Thomas Stewart, Earl of Angus, to her brother, JOHN ST. CLAIR, of Herdmanston, of certain lands. SLINGSBY.

SLINGSBY, SIR CHARLES, of Scriven Park, in the county of York; b. 22 August, 1824; s. his uncle, as 10th baronet, in Feb. 1835.

Lineage.

The Baronetcy of Slingsby, of Scriven, represents the two ancient families of Slingsby and Scriven, and several others of antiquity equal to their own, which are merged in them.

GAMEL DE SCRIVEN, surnamed Ancess, had a confirmation of his lands in Scriven from HENRY I., and was the first of his house who enjoyed the feudal honour of capital or chief forester of the forest and parks of Knaresborough. He had issue,

BALDWIN DE SCRIVEN, whose son,

HENRY DE SCRIVEN, m. temp. HENRY III., Emma, sister and heir of Henry de Markington, and by her had issue, Baldwin, who d. s. p.; and

THOMAS DE SCRIVEN, heir to his brother, who m. temp. EDWARD I., Agnes, dau. of John de Walkingham, and heir of her brother, "Alanus de Walkingham, Cheualier," and by her had issue,

HENRY DE SCRIVEN, who m. temp. EDWARD II., Alice, dau. and co-heiress of Richard de Caperon, of Scotton, and by her had issue, two daughters, co-heirs, of whom the younger, Agnes, m. 1st, William de Newtom; 2ndly, Richard Furneux, from whom she was divorced; and 3rdly, William de Merkesale. The elder,

JOHANNA DE SCRIVEN, carried the manor of Scriven with several others, and also the dignity of capital forester of the forest and parks of Knaresborough, into the house of Slingsby, by intermarrying, in 1357, with William de Slingsby, of Studley, which

WILLIAM DE SLINGSBY, of Studley, in whose issue the families of Slingsby and Scriven were thus united, was son of John de Slingsby, (great-grandson of William de Sclingisbye, of Slingsby, in the North Riding of Yorkshire,) by his wife, Agnes, dau. of William de Stodleigh (Studley), and heir to her brother, William. He d. 23rd EDWARD III., 1349-50, having, by his said wife, Johanna, had a daughter, the wife of Robert de Winkesley, by whom she had issue, and two sons, Gilbert, who m. Margaret, dau. of Henry Querton, and d. 18th EDWARD III., 1344-5, s. p., and

RICHARD DE SLINGSBY, heir of his brother, Gilbert, capital forester in the right of his mother, who bore Scriven in the first quarter quarterly with Slingsby, as has been the custom of most of the family since, though not invariably. He m. Johanna, dau. and co-heir of William Nesfield, of Scotton; and d. 37th EDWARD III., having by her had issue,

WILLIAM DE SLINGSBY, who m. Margaret, dau. of Thomas Winkesley; and d. 15th RICHARD II., 1391-2, and was s. by his son,

WILLIAM DE SLINGSBY, who m. Janet, dau. of Radulph Melton, of Melton Hall, co. Derby, and heir of her brother, John, and by her had issue, (beside a dau., Anne, or Agnes, m. to Thomas de Knarisbury, which Thomas d. 1450,) John, Robert, and William, of whom the two last d. s. p. The eldest,

JOHN DE SLINGSBY, m. Johanna, dau. of Walter Calverley, of Calverley, co. York; and d. 38th HENRY VI., 1459-60, having had three daus., Marjory, m. to Thomas Coughyll, of Knaresborough, Johanna, Lady-Prioress of Nun-Monkton, co. York, Anne, m. to Hugh Tancred, of Boroughbridge, and one son,

JOHN DE SLINGSBY, who m. Marjory, dau. of Simon Pooley, of Badley, co. Suffolk; and d. 16 Sept., 5 HEN. VIII., 1513, having had issue,

THOMAS, of whom presently.

John, } who both d. s. p.
Marmaduke, }

Peter, m. and had issue, one dau., Anne, m. 1st, to William Goldesborough; 2ndly, to Henry Brakenbury.

Simon, m. and had issue, Christopher, Robert, and Peter, (which Peter was father of Anthony Slingsby, created a Baronet of England by letters patent, bearing date 23 Oct. 1628, which date has been usually given for the Nova Scotia creation. Sir Anthony was governor of Zutphen in the Low Countries, and d. 1630, when the baronetcy became extinct. Kimber's conjecture as to the limitation of this patent to Sir Henry, the 1st Nova Scotia Bart., is wrong, for no mention is made in Sir Henry's patent of his being above the rank of a gentleman, nor is it to be supposed he would have had a second patent of baronetcy had he been already a bart.,) and four daus., Anne, m. to John Swayle, of Staveley; Marjory, m. to Walter Pulleyn, of Scotton; Isabella, m. to Thomas Lambton, of Harrowgate; and Elizabeth.

The eldest son,

THOMAS DE SLINGSBY, m. Johanna, dau. of Sir John Mallory, and had issue,

FRANCIS, of whom presently.

Marmaduke, m. Elizabeth, dau. of Sir William Mallory, of Studley, widow of Sir Robert Stapleton.

Christopher, m. Elizabeth, dau. of Richard Tancred, of Pannall, and was buried in Knaresborough Church, 6 Feb. 1602.

William, d. s. p. and was buried in Knaresborough Church, 8 Oct. 1606.

Peter and Thomas, both d. s. p.

Elizabeth, m. to Christopher Coniers, of Holtbye, co. York.

Dorothy, m. to Francis Tancred, of Pannall.

Anne, m. to Christopher Meinell, of Holdenby.

Johanna, m. to Thomas Norton, of Seacroft.

He d. in 1581, was buried in Knaresborough Church, 26 Sept. in that year, and s. by his eldest son,

FRANCIS DE SLINGSBY, who m. Mary Percy, only sister of Thomas and Henry Percy, successively Earls of Northumberland. This lady d. in 1598, aged 66, and he d. in 1600, being buried by his wife, 4 Aug. in that year, in the Slingsby-chapel, in Knaresborough Church. They both lie under a fair altar-tomb, on which are their effigies recumbent of the size of life. On one of the folds of her dress appear the quarterings of Percy and Lucy. It should be noticed that this Francis is commonly called Sir Francis; even Mr. Pennant has fallen into the mistake; but he is not called even on his tomb, "Miles," and the family evidences abundantly prove that he never was knighted. The mistake has doubtlessly arisen from the knighthood of his son, Sir Francis. He had issue by his lady four daus., who all d. s. p., and,

2 Margaret, m. to Thomas Barret, of the city of York.

3 Maria, aged 20 in 1617.

vii. William, (Sir) (founder of the Kippax branch, extinct in 1695, by the death of his grandson, Henry, without issue,) aged 55 in 1617, was made commissioner-general in 1595, cibicida honorarius to ANNE, queen-consort, in 1603, and one of the deputy-lieutenants of Middlesex in 1617. He m. Elizabeth, dau. of Sir Stephen Board, Knt. of Board Hill, co. Sussex; and d. Aug. 1624. There is a monument in the Slingsby-chapel, containing in a niche a statue of him as large as life. Pennant, in his "Tour from Alston Moor to Harrowgate," says of this figure, after having minutely described it, "The whole is one of the best sculptures I have seen in our churches." Mr. Pennant is inaccurate in saying that Sir William d. in 1634, aged 74; his elder brother, Sir Henry, d. in that year and at that age; Sir William d. in 1624, as appears from his monument, and aged 62. He had issue by his wife,

1 Henry, aged 7 in 1627; master of the Mint to KING CHARLES II., and, as such, author of the motto on our coin, "Decus et Tutamen."

2 William, christened 9 Dec. 1618, in Knaresborough Church; d. 1622.

The eldest surviving son,

SIR HENRY DE SLINGSBY, was knighted by QUEEN ELIZABETH, and held sundry offices under the Duchy of Lancaster, of which he was deprived, in 1611, by an unjust decree of Sir Thomas Parry, then chancellor of the Duchy, who, by a second decree, in 1615, deprived him of certain crown leases, and committed him to the Fleet for his (Sir Thomas Parry's) life, which was two years. Sir Henry was high-sheriff of Yorkshire in 1611-12, and being absent from the summer assizes in 1612, on account of his suit in London for restitution of his offices, was fined £200 by the judges of assize, Barons Altham and Bromley of the Exchequer. The king had a short time previously honoured him with a visit to the Red House, where the bed in which his majesty reposed is still preserved. Sir Henry adhered to the king through all his troubles, had all his estates sequestered and sold, and lived a ruined man till 1658, when, for an attempt, unhappily for him a little too early made, to restore his majesty, KING CHARLES II., he was beheaded, after a mock trial before a pretended court, on 8 June, on Tower Hill, being the time and place also of the martyrdom of the eminent Dr. Hewett. Mary.

Hester.

Sir Michael s. as 3rd baronet, at the decease of his father, the late Hon. Sir William Cusac-Smith, 2nd baron of the court of Exchequer in Ireland, 21 May, 1836.

Lineage.

This family, which is a branch of a Yorkshire house of the same name, and of knightly degree, was founded in Ireland by a

COLONEL SMITH, in the 17th century, who, according to domestic tradition, had two sons killed in action fighting by his side. From this Colonel Smith descended three brothers, viz.,

MICHAEL SMITH, Esq., who possessed considerable estates in the Queen's co. and counties of Carlow and Kildare, and acquired others by intermarriage with Miss Wilkinson, an heiress; which estates descended to his eldest son, Capt. William-Wilkinson Smith, of the 1st dragoon-guards; but this great property has since passed from the family of Smith into other hands.

JOSEPH SMITH, Esq. of Pitchfordstown, co. Kildare, the second brother, left two daughters only; the elder of whom, Sarah, m. Daniel Graham, Esq. of Coolquille, co. Tipperary; and the younger, Elizabeth, m. Matthew Bathurst, Esq. of Nicholstown, co. Kildare.

WILLIAM SMITH, Esq. of Newtown, King's co., (3rd brother,) m. Hester Lynch, of the Galway tribe of Lynch, by whom he had one son, MICHAEL, and a dau., Elizabeth, who m. 1st, Michael Donovan, Esq. co. Cork; and 2ndly, Shawe Cartland, of Ballykillin, King's co. Mr. Smith d. in 1747, and the following monumental lines, written by his son, were inscribed to his memory:—

“For ever doubly sacred be the earth
That wraps his dear remains who gave me birth:
No rude disturbance may it ever know,
Nor near it let one bitter thistle grow;
But may the sweetest flowers that deck the ground
In lovely wildness ever bloom around!
And when, at length, life's trifling drama o'er,
He now who writes and weeps shall be no more,
O be his spirit with his father's blest,
While mingled here their kindred ashes rest!”

By which son,

I. MICHAEL SMITH, Esq., he was succeeded. This gentleman was b. 7 Sept. 1740; and having made a very distinguished figure in the college of Dublin, where he entered as a pensioner at an early age, was called to the Irish bar in 1769, and having shortly after taken the degree of LL.D., was admitted an advocate, and practised in the Ecclesiastical Courts. In 1783, Mr. Smith was returned to the Irish parliament, and continued a member until 1793, when he was elevated to the bench as one of the barons of the Exchequer. (He had previously, in 1784, declined the recordership of Dublin.) In 1799, 28 August, Mr. Baron Smith was created a BARONET OF IRELAND; and in 1801, his lordship was transferred to the Rolls bench, and sworn of the privy-council in Ireland. From this high judicial situation Sir Michael retired in 1806, when he received a very elegant and well-merited address from the Irish bar. Sir Michael Smith m. 1st, Mary-Anne, dau. of James Cusac, Esq. of Coolmines, co. Dublin, and of Ballyronan, co. Wicklow, descended lineally from Sir Thomas Cusac, Knt., lord-chancellor of Ireland, and one of the lords-justices in the reigns of HENRY VIII. and EDWARD VI.; which Sir Thomas sprang originally from Sir Lucas Cusac, or de Cusacque, who, in the reign of HENRY II., was Lord of Killeen, Dunsany, and Gerrardstown; the two former of which dignities, or at least the latter of them, passed with his dau., Joan, or Janet, into the family of Plunkett, upon her marriage with Sir Christopher Plunkett, while the title of Gerrardstown became extinct. To the dignity of Killeen (being a barony in fee) James Cusac, Esq. of Coolmines, grandfather of the present baronet, conceived himself, and was considered by his family, to have a claim. Sir Michael Smith had issue by his marriage,

WILLIAM, his successor, who, in 1784, was entered as a gentleman-commoner at Christ Church, Oxford, where he took a bachelor's degree. He was afterwards called to the Irish bar; and having subsequently taken the degree of LL.D., he was admitted an advocate in the spiritual courts. In 1795, he obtained the rank of king's counsel, and was returned in the same year to the Irish parliament, of which he continued a member so long as his country retained an independent legislature. In 1800, he was appointed solicitor-general for Ireland; and in the following year an occurrence took place which, for its singularity, attracted attention,—that of the solicitor-general accompanying his father, Mr. Baron Smith, upon the same circuit as second judge. In Jan. 1802, Mr. Solicitor-General succeeded to the vacant place in the court of Exchequer, upon the promotion of Sir Michael Smith to the Rolls bench.

Angelina, m. 1st, to Smith Steele, Esq., 2nd son of Sir Richard Steele, Bart.; and 2ndly, to William Borrowes, Esq., son of Sir Kildare Borrowes, Bart.; but d. in 1808, without issue.

II. The Hon. Sir William, D.C.L., F.R.S., and M.R.I.A., who, on the decease of his mother, assumed the additional surname and arms of CUSAC. Sir William, who, as above stated, was 2nd baron of the court of Exchequer in Ireland, was b. 23 Jan. 1766; m. 13 Aug. 1787, Hester, eldest dau. of Thomas Berry, Esq. of Eglis Castle, King's co., and had issue,
